SEVEN VICTIMS YOUTHS

Snow Collapses Roof, 8 Persons Die, 20 Are Hurt

LISTOWEL, Ont. (UPI) — An ice rink roof collapsed with a roar Saturday under the weight of tons of snow and ice, crashing in on a group of boys during Saturday morning hockey practice. Police said at least seven boys and one man were killed and 20 persons were injured.

A door-to-door check of the town was made to determine how many persons were missing in the disaster.

Two teams of boys between 10 and 12 years old were playing Pee-Wee League hockey when the Listowel Hockey Arena roof collapsed.

The rink, constructed five years ago at a cost of more than $90,000, had been designed to withstand the heavy snows that fall in this section of central Canada, about 75 miles west of Toronto.

DESCRIBE HORROR

Boys who survived the tragedy described the horror. One boy who escaped said he and two teammates were in a dressing room when the roof caved in.

"I had just sat down when we heard a loud thud, and the lights went out in the dressing room," the boy said. "Then we heard something like a crack and then a loud crash.

"We ran outside the dressing room and we saw Jerry McLeod and Ross Weith trapped in the big pile of wood."

Jerry and Ross were listed as among the survivors.

Bobby Lusted, 11, was with the boys in the dressing room.

"Jerry was hollering 'get me out, get me out'," Bobby said, "and Ross was crying, 'My legs hurt bad'."

Bobby said he ran home and brought his father back to start digging the trapped boys out.

Among the dead in the accident was Ken McLeod, 37, Listowel recreation director, who succumbed in a hospital after he was pulled from the wreckage.

Jerry McLeod, the dead man's 10-year-old son, survived.

"I dived for the boards," Gerry said. "That's what saved me."

All that was left of the arena was the entrance. The rest was a twisted mass of wreckage. A truck-mounted boom and shovel was brought in to lift the debris

Demos Urged To Back Ike Against Reds

Lyndon Johnson, Rayburn Issue Party Appeals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson used a party political dinner as a forum Saturday night to urge national support of President Eisenhower in the Berlin crisis.

Johnson and his fellow Texan, Speaker Sam Rayburn, also joined in appealing to the Democrats to work for political unity among themselves. The two congressional leaders were the featured speakers at a $100-a-plate Democratic dinner celebrating the party's sweeping victory in the 1958 elections.

Johnson said of party unity: "We have our fights; we keep them in the open and talk them out. Then united we stand."

The powerful Senate leader made an even stronger plea for backing of the President in the Soviet threats to Berlin.

SAYS UNITY VITAL

"The countdown has begun," he said. "It is imperative that no matter how much we discuss, how much we argue, how much we disagree, that we make it plain to the Russians as we approach the crisis in Berlin this is a united country."

Johnson continued:

"It is united behind and in support of the President of the United States, in the policy and doctrine the commander in chief enunciates. We must have one firm clear voice speaking for this nation in relation to other nations."

Rayburn made his major appeal for all Democrats to swear off divisive efforts aimed at driving the South or any other bloc out of the party.

The Democrats grossed about $200,000 from the dinner, at which other congressional leaders and newly elected Democratic gover-

DISCOVERER SATELLITE BLASTS OFF—A Thor missile with a Discoverer Satellite in its nose cone leaves the launching pad with a roar of flame Saturday at Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif. Scientists hoped to throw the satellite into an orbit around the poles.

No Signal Returned By Missile

Antenna Trouble Possible Says U.S. Official

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — A Discoverer satellite roared aloft from this West Coast missile base Saturday but several hours after the launching the Air Force said it could not confirm that the satellite was in orbit.

Rear Adm. John E. Clark, deputy director of the Advanced Research Projects Agency, said the satellite radio signals had not been received by either the Hawaiian or Alaskan tracking stations.

He said this did not necessarily mean the satellite was not in orbit. He said it could be antenna trouble in the satellite itself.

TRACKING SLATED

"It will be late tonight" the admiral said, "before we can determine with radar-tracking equipment whether the satellite is in orbit.

He said preliminary data radioed back by the satellite indicated the launching was successful and that the second stage ignited on schedule.

The firing of the satellite opened a series of research shots designed to show man how he can venture safely into space.

The 1,300-pound cylinder, 19 feet long and 5 feet wide, was blasted skyward by a Thor intermediate range ballistic missile.

Discoverer I is the first satellite launched from this new West Coast missile base 170 miles north of Los Angeles. It also is the first aimed at a north - south orbit around the poles. Previous U.S. satellites, fired from Cape Canaveral

U.S. OFFICIALS WARN

Soviet Blunders Pose War Threat

WASHINGTON (UPI)—High administration officials said Saturday Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's apparent blunders in handling the Berlin Crisis may lead to his eventual downfall.

They acknowledged, however, that in the process he has created one of the gravest threats to peace since World War II.

Well informed officials said Khrushchev's inflexible position on Berlin and his cavalier treatment of visiting British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan have succeeded only in unifying the West to an unprecedented extent.

At the same time, he has deeply committed himself in speeches to his own people to deliver new successes on the international front which do not appear possible short of war.

SOME DISAGREE

According to reliable intelligence sources, Russia's Red Army leaders are showing signs of disagreement with Khrushchev's "brink of war" tactics on Berlin.

These factors under close scrutiny by top allied officials, add up to a completely irrational position unless Khrushchev has some formula whereby he can stage a face-saving retreat which could be interpreted to the Russians as a victory over the West.

Khrushchev's apparent predicament, in the view of American officials, is no source of pleasure to the West since it has grim implications of possible conflict.

Western military and diplomatic planning is reported to be proceeding on the assumption that Khrushchev will carry out his threat to turn East Berlin over to the German Communists by May 27. He also may conclude a separate peace treaty with East Germany.

The Russian premier has said the West must negotiate with the East German puppet regime which they refuse to recognize, for continued access through Red territory to West Berlin.

With Khrushchev's unwillingness to discuss German unification and his militant attitude on Berlin, officials said they have no choice but to parpare for the worst and hope for the best.

Red Chief Plans Trip To Berlin

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev will make a surprise trip to East Germany, possibly foreshadowing the next Soviet move in the Berlin crisis.

Tass, official Soviet news agency, said tersely Saturday that Khrushchev will visit the International Trade Fair at Leipzig. It did not say when, nor would the Foreign Ministry give a date. The fair opens Sunday.

The press chief of the Soviet Embassy in East Berlin said Khrushchev is expected to arrive in Leipzig next Wednesday.

This will be after a closing meeting with visiting British Prime Minister Macmillan in the Kremlin Monday. Macmillan will leave for home Tuesday.

There was speculation that Khrushchev might use the visit to discuss a separate peace treaty with East Germany, after the failure to make any progress on

Five On Navy Plane Die In Fiery Crash

PRESCOTT, Ariz. (UPI)— Five Navy crewmen were killed Saturday when their Military Air Transport Service Superconstellation crashed, exploded and burned at the edge of a busy highway.

There were no survivors. The craft was assigned to Transport Squadron 7 of the Naval Air Station at Moffatt Field, Calif. It was on a routine training flight from Litchfield Naval Air facility near Phoenix.

The cause of the crash was being investigated.

NAMES WITHHELD

Names of the victims were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

An attendant at a funeral home said only parts of bodies were recovered.

The big four - engined triple-fin plane went into a vertical dive from 2,000 feet. Witnesses said it exploded and burst into flames when it hit the edge of U.S. Highway 89. Half of the highway was gouged up by the wreckage 2½ miles south of Prescott Airport. Two cars were narrowly missed.

The plane had been practicing touch and go training landings — the craft being taken up again as soon as its wheels touched.

The airport tower said at least one engine feathered as the plane dove to earth.

Wreckage was scattered over a 300-yard area. The explosion set fire to brush along the highway. A column of smoke was visible in Prescott six miles from the scene.

The highway carries traffic to northern Arizona and to the municipal golf course and airport. One engine was found smouldering only 15 feet from the edge of the highway.

Hero At Party Is Injured By Grenade Blast

GLENDALE, Calif. (UPI) — A live phosphorous grenade rolled into the living room of an apartment during a party early Saturday.

Cypriot Leader Has Close Call In Plane Mishap

LONDON (UPI)— Greek Cypriot leader Archbishop Makarios had a narrow escape Saturday when his Olympic Airways plane developed engine trouble after takeoff for Athens and made an emergency landing.

A relief DC6B took off later carrying Makarios to Athens Saturday and his triumphal return to Cyprus Sunday after three years of exile. Makarios is almost certain to become the first president of an independent republic of Cyprus.

It was only split-second action by the Greek pilot of the first airliner that saved Makarios and 37 other passengers. The plane was aloft only six minutes before it touched back down on the runway. Ambulances and crash crews stood by.

The incident came within a hairsbreadth of repeating the air crash that killed Turkish Premier Adnan Menderes two weeks ago when he was on his way to attend the conferences that led to the Cyprus settlement.

Fourteen persons were killed when Menderes' Viscount airliner crash-landed in a heavy fog near London. Because of his injuries Menderes was unable to take part in the negotiations.

Capt. Haralampos Kalogeridis who piloted the disabled plane said that "if I had lost my head I might have lost my aircraft." He scoffed at the suggestion sabotage may have been behind the near-disaster.

Top Honors To Pineville At Festival

Pineville High School took top honors in the two-day Speech and Drama Festival for high school students which ended yesterday at Northeast State. Waterproof captured second place, and Winnfield and St. Vincent's tied for third.

The festival was the seventh annual event of its kind held here under sponsorship of the college. James W. Parkerson, assistant professor of speech, directed the project.

Fourteen high schools, represented by 150 students, participated in the various individual events and six schools also entered the other two contests, one-act drama and debate. Because the festival was enlarged to include debate, Parkerson explained that the number of entries in individual events had to be limited.

Individual competition covered the fields of oratory, extemporaneous speaking, radio speaking, after dinner speaking, poetry

Area FHA Girls Elect Officers At Ruston Meet

RUSTON (Special) — New officers were elected and a newspaper man and a homemaker were named to honorary membership in the Future Homemakers of America at an area convention of the organization attended by more than 2,000 high school girls at Louisiana Tech Saturday.

Patricia Frunstrom of Fort Necessity was electel president of the North Louisiana FHA, succeeding Patsy Holder of Gilbert.

Honored also was Don Walker of Haynesville, a homemaker with more than 20 years of FHA service and former president of state college homes economics clubs.

Chosen to serve with Miss Frunstrom as officers of the district group for a year were Judy Walker of Gibsland, vice president; Judy Colvin of Start, secretary; Judy Cathey of West Monroe, treasurer; Billie Shaughnessy of the Joseph M. Davidson High School in St. Joseph; parliamentarian; Delinda Norred, Weston, historian; Elizabeth Goldman, Waterproof, reporter, and Marilyn Finch, Kilbourne, song leader.

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Jesse A. Saunders, 52, burned to death Saturday when fire destroyed the inside of his parked car.

Cause of the blaze was not determined.

UNDERWORLD TRADEMARK

Gangsters Dislike Their Nicknames

WASHINGTON (AP) — From Greasy Thumb Guzik to Bottles Capone, a man's nickname is his trademark in the underworld.

But you might get your head bashed in if you address some of them to their faces by the monickers they've won. They frankly would rather be known as "Mr."

The nicknames wished on mobsters and their friends in the rich argot of gangland have been flowing through the Senate Labor-Management Committee's hearings and records, only occasionally with clues to their origin.

Take the late Greasy Thumb, whose name was Jake Guzik. He won the name for thumbing off big bills as a collector for the old Capone mob in Chicago.

Capone, brother of the late gang boss Al (Scarface) Capone, is known properly as Ralph. But the hoods labeled him "Bottles" when he beat some of them in a beer-drinking contest. The name stuck.

Humor and sinister menace are reflected in the nicknames of some. Sam (Golf Bag) Hunt was described in testimony as having won this sobriquet by the trick of packing a machine gun into a golf bag when he had certain errands to perform.

The New York mobster Anthony (Tony Ducks) Corallo sort of grew into his nickname. He was a slick one at being somewhere else when the police were seeking him. His pals would laugh that "Tony Ducks," and it became a name.

Harry (Little Gangy) Davidoff, Henry (Muggsy) Gaster and Ed (Cockeye) Dunn, who was executed for murder, all had their rise in New York.

It would be hard to top the delicacy with which Robert (Barney) Baker, of New York, Chicago, St. Louis and other points, describes the electrocution of Cockeye Dunn.

"Mr. Dunn," says Baker, "went to his maker by electronic means."

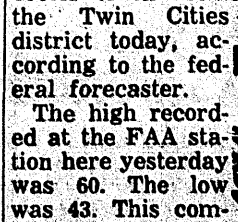
Monroe Resident Seriously Injured

MAGNOLIA, Miss. (Special) — A Monroe, La., man, James S. Osterland of 708 Lakeshore Drive, was in a serious condition at a hospital here last night following an early morning two-car head-on collision two miles south of Magnolia.

The accident occurred, according to officers, on a foggy stretch of Highway 51. Marshal Stewart of McComb was killed, and Osterland suffered a crushed chest, broken leg and arm.

Osterland, who is associated with a water well firm of Welsh, La., was on his way to Monroe for the weekend when the accident occurred.

Cloudy, Cooler Seen For Today



Overcast skies and a slightly cooler touch are in prospect for the Twin Cities district today, according to the federal forecaster.

The high recorded at the FAA station here yesterday was 60. The low was 43. This compares with readings of 72 and 47 degrees for the previous day.

Slightly cooler temperatures are also expected to move into areas of Arkansas today accompanied by cloudy skies.

Detention Home Struck By Blaze

Fire broke out last night in the bedroom of two Negro girls at the Ouachita Parish Detention Home. Firemen were summoned immediately.

Glenn Robertson, of the Green Oaks Detention Home staff, was alerted to the blaze, and engine company 102 of the Monroe Fire Department was dispatched at 10:58 p.m., and returned to their station at 11:45 p.m.

Firemen said that the girls were angry, set fire to a mattress, and that fire blazed up, reaching the attic where it burned two shingles in the process.

Officials reported that the girls would be removed to Monroe Police Headquarters, during the night, to safeguard the lives of the others held at the home.

No one was injured in the near-midnight blaze. This was the first report of such a fire at the home, which was built by parish funds two and one-half years ago. Operation of the home was taken over by Ouachita Parish as of January 1, when the State Welfare Department, which had operated the institution, withdrew support. Both young Negroes and white offenders are housed in the modern structure, with separate sleeping facilities.

Guardsmen Raiders Nab Illegal Liquor

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi National Guardsmen hit 10 establishments at the same minute Saturday, confiscating more than $15,000 worth of illegal liquor and arresting 14 men.

The troops, working in teams of four men, were under the personal command of Maj. Gen. W. P. Wilson, adjutant general of the Mississippi guard. They struck at 3 p.m.

Wilson said it was a most successful haul. The Guardsmen, some steel helmeted, carried carbines and sidearms.

The raiders smashed bottles of whisky and all other liquor with more than the legal 4 per cent alcohol. A few bottles, saved as evidence, were carried along with the prisoners to the National Guard armory here.

The guard was called out on orders by Gov. J. P. Coleman, acting on the petition of a group of Lauderdale County citizens. Search warrants were signed by Chancellor William Neville of Meridian.

Few knew of the raids until they took place. Officers said the office of Lauderdale county Sheriff J. V. Duckworth was notified after the strike was in progress.

Eight of the 10 places raided produced illegal liquor, Wilson said. He listed the following results:

At one point, the Citation Club, gambling equipment was confiscated and club operator Cecil Douglas Baker was arrested.

The largest haul was at the Three Mile Inn, south of here on highway 45. About 50 cases of liquor were taken. Robert Blythe and A. J. Lee were arrested.

Down highway 45 at the White Castle, Guardsmen found liquor concealed in a basement where the entrance was concealed by a wall panel operated by ropes. C. W. Payne was arrested.

Gangsters Dislike Their Nicknames

WASHINGTON (AP) — From Greasy Thumb Guzik to Bottles Capone, a man's nickname is his trademark in the underworld.

But you might get your head bashed in if you address some of them to their faces by the monickers they've won. They frankly would rather be known as "Mr."

The nicknames wished on mobsters and their friends in the rich argot of gangland have been flowing through the Senate Labor-Management Committee's hearings and records, only occasionally with clues to their origin.

Take the late Greasy Thumb, whose name was Jake Guzik. He won the name for thumbing off big bills as a collector for the old Capone mob in Chicago.

Capone, brother of the late gang boss Al (Scarface) Capone, is known properly as Ralph. But the hoods labeled him "Bottles" when he beat some of them in a beer-drinking contest. The name stuck.

Humor and sinister menace are reflected in the nicknames of some. Sam (Golf Bag) Hunt was described in testimony as having won this sobriquet by the trick of packing a machine gun into a golf bag when he had certain errands to perform.

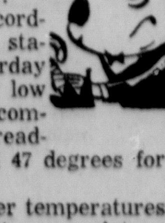
The New York mobster Anthony (Tony Ducks) Corallo sort of grew into that nickname. He was a slick one at being somewhere else when the police were seeking him. His pals would laugh that "Tony Ducks," and it became a name.

Harry (Little Gangy) Davidoff, Henry (Muggsy) Gaster and Ed (Cockeye) Dunn, who was executed for murder, all had their rise in New York.

It would be hard to top the delicacy with which Robert (Barney) Baker, of New York, Chicago, St. Louis and other points, describes the electrocution of Cockeye Dunn.

"Mr. Dunn," says Baker, "went to his maker by electronic means."

Cloudy, Cooler Seen For Today



Overcast skies and a slightly cooler touch are in prospect for the Twin Cities district today, according to the federal forecaster.

The high recorded at the FAA station here yesterday was 60. The low was 43. This compares with readings of 72 and 47 degrees for the previous day.

Slightly cooler temperatures are also expected to move into areas of Arkansas today accompanied by cloudy skies.

Detention Home Struck By Blaze

Fire broke out last night in the bedroom of two Negro girls at the Ouachita Parish Detention Home. Firemen were summoned immediately.

Glenn Robertson, of the Green Oaks Detention Home staff, was alerted to the blaze, and engine company 102 of the Monroe Fire Department was dispatched at 10:58 p.m., and returned to their station at 11:45 p.m.

Firemen said that the girls were angry, set fire to a mattress, and that fire blazed up, reaching the attic where it burned two shingles in the process.

Officials reported that the girls would be removed to Monroe Police Headuarters, during the night, to safeguard the lives of the others held at the home.

No one was injured in the near-midnight blaze. This was the first report of such a fire at the home, which was built by parish funds two and one-half years ago. Operation of the home was taken over by Ouachita Parish as of January 1, when the State Welfare Department, which had operated the institution, withdrew support. Both young Negroes and white offenders are housed in the modern structure, with separate sleeping facilities.

Lyndon Johnson, Rayburn Issue Party Appeals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson used a party political dinner as a forum Saturday night to urge national support of President Eisenhower in the Berlin crisis.

Johnson and his fellow Texan, Speaker Sam Rayburn, also joined in appealing to the Democrats to work for political unity among themselves. The two congressional leaders were the featured speakers at a $100-a-plate Democratic dinner celebrating the party's sweeping victory in the 1958 elections.

Johnson said of party unity: "We have our fights; we keep them in the open and talk them out. Then united we stand."

The powerful Senate leader made an even stronger plea for backing of the President in the Soviet threats to Berlin.

SAYS UNITY VITAL

"The countdown has begun," he said. "It is imperative that no matter how much we discuss, how much we argue, how much we disagree, that we make it plain to the Russians as we approach the crisis in Berlin this is a united country."

Johnson continued:

"It is united behind and in support of the President of the United States, in the policy and doctrine the commander in chief enunciates. We must have one firm clear voice speaking for this nation in relation to other nations."

Rayburn made his major appeal for all Democrats to swear off divisive efforts aimed at driving the South or any other bloc out of the party.

Hero At Party Is Injured By Grenade Blast

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — A live phosphorous grenade rolled into the living room of an apartment during a party early Saturday.

A guest grabbed it, couldn't get it out the front door, and then-as the seconds ticked away-jumped onto a couch and muffled the explosion with his body to protect other guests.

Lloyd A. Wilson, 23, critically hurt by the blast, staggered across the flame-seared room and plunged, screaming, 18 feet to the ground from a living room window.

At a hospital Wilson spent six hours in surgery. Physi-

Five On Navy Plane Die In Fiery Crash

PRESCOTT, Ariz. (UPI)— Five Navy crewmen were killed Saturday when their Military Air Transport Service Superconstellation crashed, exploded and burned at the edge of a busy highway.

There were no survivors. The craft was assigned to Transport Squadron 7 of the Naval Air Station at Moffatt Field, Calif. It was on a routine training flight from Litchfield Naval Air facility near Phoenix.

The cause of the crash was being investigated.

NAMES WITHHELD

Names of the victims were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

An attendant at a funeral home said only parts of bodies were recovered.

The big four - engined triple-fin plane went into a vertical dive from 2,000 feet. Witnesses said it exploded and burst into flames when it hit the edge of U.S. Highway 89. Half of the highway was gouged up by the wreckage 2½ miles south of Prescott Airport. Two cars were narrowly missed.

The plane had been practicing touch and go training landings — the craft being taken up again as soon as its wheels touched.

The airport tower said at least one engine feathered as the plane dove to earth.

Wreckage was scattered over a 300-yard area. The explosion set fire to brush along the highway. A column of smoke was visible in Prescott six miles from the scene.

The highway carries traffic to northern Arizona and to the municipal golf course and airport. One engine was found smouldering only 15 feet from the edge of the highway.

Guardsmen Raiders Nab Illegal Liquor

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi National Guardsmen hit 10 establishments at the same minute Saturday, confiscating more than $15,000 worth of illegal liquor and arresting 14 men.

The troops, working in teams of four men each, were under the personal command of Maj. Gen. W. P. Wilson, adjutant general of the Mississippi guard. They struck at 3 p.m.

Wilson said it was a most successful haul. The Guardsmen, some steel helmeted, carried carbines and sidearms.

The raiders smashed bottles of whisky and all other liquor with more than the legal 1[illegible] per cent alcohol. A few bottles, saved as evidence, were carried along with the prisoners to the National Guard armory here.

The guard was called out on orders by Gov. J. P. Coleman, acting on the petition of a group of Lauderdale County citizens. Search warrants were signed by Chancellor William Neville of Meridian.

Few knew of the raids until they took place. Officers said the office of Lauderdale county Sheriff J. V. Duckworth was notified after the strike was in progress.

Eight of the 10 places raided produced illegal liquor, Wilson said. He listed the following results:

At one point, the Citation Club, gambling equipment was confiscated and club operator Cecil Douglas Baker was arrested.

The largest haul was at the Three Mile Inn, south of here on highway 45. About 50 cases of liquor were taken. Robert Blythe and A. J. Lee were arrested.

Down highway 45 at the White Castle, Guardsmen found liquor concealed in a basement where the entrance was concealed by a wall panel operated by ropes. C. W. Payne was arrested.

Antenna Trouble Possible Says U.S. Official

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — A Discoverer satellite roared aloft from this West Coast missile base Saturday but several hours after the launching the Air Force said it could not confirm that the satellite was in orbit.

Rear Adm. John E. Clark, deputy director of the Advanced Research Projects Agency, said the satellite radio signals had not been received by either the Hawaiian or Alaskan tracking stations.

He said this did not necessarily mean the satellite was not in orbit. He said it could be antenna trouble in the satellite itself.

TRACKING SLATED

"It will be late tonight" the admiral said, "before we can determine with radar-tracking equipment whether the satellite is in orbit.

He said preliminary data radioed back by the satellite indicated the launching was successful and that the second stage ignited on schedule.

The firing of the satellite opened a series of research shots designed to show man how he can venture safely into space.

The 1,300-pound cylinder, 19 feet long and 5 feet wide, was blasted skyward by a Thor intermediate range ballistic missile.

Discoverer I is the first satellite launched from this new West Coast missile base 170 miles north of Los Angeles. It also is the first aimed at a north - south orbit around the poles. Previous U. S. satellites, fired from Cape Canav-

Cypriot Leader Has Close Call In Plane Mishap

LONDON (UPI)— Greek Cypriot leader Archbishop Makarios had a narrow escape Saturday when his Olympic Airways plane developed engine trouble after takeoff for Athens and made an emergency landing.

A relief DC6B took off later, carrying Makarios to Athens Saturday and his triumphal return to Cyprus Sunday after three years of exile. Makarios is almost certain to become the first president of an independent republic of Cyprus.

It was only split-second action by the Greek pilot of the first airliner that saved Makarios and 37 other passengers. The plane was aloft only six minutes before it touched back down on the runway. Ambulances and crash crews stood by.

The incident came within a hairsbreadth of repeating the air disaster that struck Turkish Premier Adnan Menderes two weeks ago when he was on his way to attend the conferences that led to the Cyprus settlement.

Fourteen persons were killed when Menderes' Viscount airliner crash-landed in a heavy fog near London. Because of his injuries Menderes was unable to take part in the negotiations.

Capt. Haralampos Kalogeridis who piloted the disabled plane said that "if I had lost my head I might have lost my aircraft." He scoffed at the suggestion sabotage may have been behind the near-disaster.

Among special guests at the pageant last night were Diane Williamson, Miss Lincoln Parish, who performed a western number. She played the piano, danced and sang to the theme of "Have Gun, Will Travel."

A Delhi High School student who also was featured, was A. C. Smith Jr. He performed several rock and roll numbers.

Bob Oldenburg of Monroe was organist. His wife was soloist for the opening of the program.

Judges for the event were Miss Si Yawn of Ruston, Jack Ramsey of Vicksburg, Miss., and Billy Baker of Jonesboro.

from the ice rink and a telephone company sent a derrick to help.

Every wrecking truck in town was sent to the scene to pull debris, away in the search for more victims.

Dr. J. G. Kirk said he believed everyone had been accounted for, but detailed checks were being made anyway.

R. J. Russel, one of the first persons to reach the scene, said there apparently was no warning of the collapse.

Carnival Friday Night

"There was one loud roar and the roof was on the ice," he said. "One father was there with two of his sons. He got one out, but the other was killed."

Russel said a carnival was held at the arena Friday night, attracting 500 persons. A serious disaster would have resulted if the roof had caved in then, he said.

More than 1,000 persons flocked to the scene Saturday to help in rescue operations.

Only other person injured in the explosion was the hostess, Marlys Paulson, 24. She was slightly burned.

Red Chief Plans Trip To Berlin

the German question in talks with Macmillan.

The government newspaper Izvestia quoted First Dep. Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan as saying a separate peace treaty for East Germany may be in the wind.

"If the Western powers do not agree to conclude a peace treaty with Germany," Mikoyan said, "then this will compel the Soviet Union . . . to sign a peace treaty with the German Democratic (East German) Republic."

The Western powers have rejected the Soviet plan for a German peace treaty that would recognize the existing division between East and West Germany. The Russians also proposed that both Germanies disarm.

Nor has either side changed its position on the more immediate question of West Berlin. Khrushchev wants the wartime four-power occupation ended by May 27 and West Berlin turned into an unarmed free city.

nors and members of Congress also were featured speakers.

Rayburn, long a leader among Democratic peacemakers, emphasized the party was a national one, active in every state and presenting all economic and political interests. He said all Democrats could not agree on everything but could agree on fundamentals.

"So I have no patience with people who claim to be Democrats who say they want to run other people who claim to be Democrats out of the party," he said.

He said issues should be debated within the party and that all should go along with the majority when a decision is made.

Without explicit reference to the party - splitting civil rights issue, he recalled that in 1952 and 1956 the party had managed to write platforms "on which all good Democrats could stand."

"If all of us are wise enough and generous enough," he said, "we can write such a platform in 1960. . ."

If that is done on top of the record to be made by the present Democratic Congress, Rayburn said, The Democrats can be confident of electing a president and retaining control of Congress in 1960.

In another speech, Senate Democratic Whipe Mike Mansfield said the Democratic Party's job now is "to point out a constructive path for the Republican administration to follow."

A flock of 1960 presidential contenders were on hand for the dinner but the $200,000 "showcase" was mainly a display setting for Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson.

The lanky Texan, at best an outside prospect for his party's presidential nomination in 1960, shared the speaking honors at the $100 a plate Democratic dinner with House Speaker Sam Rayburn.

At least for Saturday night Johnson dominated the presidential lineup. All of the principal White House prospects except Adlai E. Stevenson were on hand for the annual dinner. But they had no speaking assignments.

The Senate's three other Democratic presidential hopefuls were present but not at the head table like Johnson. They were Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.), the current front runner; Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) and Stuart Symington (D-Mo.).

Governors G. Mennen (Soapy) Williams of Michigan and Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey were the leading aspirants on tap from the field of Democratic state executives.

reading (interpretation) and prose reading (interpretation).

In individual events each contestant was rated: superior, excellent, very good, good or fair. Drama was scored on the same basis. Pineville captured five "superior" ratings, four "excellents," and three "very goods." Waterproof rated three "superiors," seven "excellents," and two "very goods." Winnfield won three "superiors," six "excellents," and two "very goods." St. Vincent's scored five "superiors" and five "excellents."

Results of the drama division were: Pineville, "superior," West Monroe, "superior," St. Vincent's Academy, "excellent," Winnfield, "excellent," Ouachita Parish, "very good," and Waterproof, "good."

Schools were permitted to enter two teams in debate division. St. Vincent's captured first and second places and third place went to two schools, West Monroe and St. Matthew's St. Vincent's No. 1 team comprised Sara Gail Cloutier and Margaret Gorton; No. 2 team included Ann Braswell and Carolyn McCary. West Monroe debaters were Tommy Head, Janice Beckton and Richard Smith. St. Matthew's team included Buddy McStravick, Charles Peck, Freddie Heller and Mitchell Goldman.

Festival debaters were featured yesterday afternoon on the college television production on KNOE - TV during which they expressed views on the debate subject, "Resolved: That the United States should adopt the essential features of the Russian system of education." They also assessed the value of the two-day meet. Participating were: Buddy McStravick and Charles Peck of St. Matthew's; Janice Beckton and Tommy Head of West Monroe; Mike Parkerson and Bill Beckworth of Ouachita Parish High.

Schools participating in the festival were: St. Vincent's Academy of Shreveport, West Monroe, Winnsboro, Pineville, Winnfield, St. Mary's of Natchitoches, Lake Providence, Ruston, Ouachita Parish of Monroe, Tallulah, St. Matthew's of Monroe, Davidson of St. Joseph, Waterproof, and All Saints of Vicksburg.

Representatives from schools agreed that this year's festival surpassed previous ones held here. They pointed to the enlarged program and quality of performance, which they termed "decidedly better" than that displayed in other years. Sponsors and debate coaches stressed the educational value of the event. They referred to the training of students, commentary of judges which each school will receive, and selection of events which offered a balanced program.

Navy Officer Gives Report On Boarding

ford, Conn.—were flown here to report to the Navy.

They also were questioned at the State Department before meeting newsmen at the Pentagon.

Sheely said he was "somewhat nervous" about boarding the Russian trawler Novorossisk but he and other members of the party went unarmed.

The Soviet ship responded, Sheely said, when the U. S. Destroyer Roy O. Hale hoisted an international flag signal to heave to for a boarding party.

He said the Russians were "not social. They accepted us but were not overly friendly."

He said he could tell from the ship's log that it had been operating in the cable area.

Sheely said that the trawler's otter boards were in very bad shape. He explained that the otter boards are used to support the trawlers fishing nets.

He also said the ship's trawling cable appeared to have been "broken under strain."

"I don't know whether it was accidental or intentional," Sheely told newsmen at Argentia. "We had no difficulty in boarding the ship. Our party of five was unarmed. We called for the captain and told them we intended to board. One man on the trawler said 'wait' in English. A ladder was then dropped and the party went aboard."

The diplomatic situation was uncertain.

State Department officials said the United States is reserving the right to claim damages from Russia if investigations disclose the fishing boat damaged trans-Atlantic cables.

The United States Friday night sent Russia a formal note advising the Kremlin that U.S. sailors boarded the trawler after it was detected operating in the vicinity of five recent cable breaks.

eral, Fla., have orbited close to the equator.

The 78-foot-high missile combination - the satellite, actually, is the entire second stage rocket mounted on the Thor's nose—was fired at 1:49 p.m. PST.

It rose slowly from its pad in sand dunes 200 yards from the edge of the Pacific then gathered speed quickly.

Newsmen 10,000 feet away saw it soar straight up and nose over toward the south, still rising. Within three minutes it was out of sight.

The weather was perfect-sunny and warm with just a light breeze.

This, the third launch try for Discoverer I, occurred a little more than an hour after the scheduled launch time of 12:45 p.m. Two previous tries were called off after the countdown had only minutes to go.

Two and a half minutes after launch the first -stage Thor used up its fuel and fell away. The missile coasted 2½ minutes. Then the second and final stage—a Bell Hustler rocket with a special place for the payload—took over. The Hustler rocket burned for 2½ minutes. Its purpose was to kick the second stage into orbit.

On this pioneering trip, the satellite was virtually empty. The payload was only 40 pounds of instruments. This was largely a test run for more elaborate shots in the future.

The Discoverer series of perhaps a dozen shots calls for sending animals into space to help scientists obtain data that will enable man to follow. Later Discoverers will have recoverable capsules containing mice, and later, monkeys.

Scientists will study such things as the animals' reaction to blast-off weightless flight in space, heat from air friction during re-entry and possible jolts during landing. The goal is to find ways to keep man safe and comfortable in space.

Plans called for Discoverer I to stay in orbit as long as two weeks, circling the globe in an oval path bringing it within 140 miles of earth at the closest point and taking it as far out as 450 miles.

Police were unable to learn who pulled the pin and rolled the grenade into the room from the kitchen. Several people were in the kitchen, they said.

"It was probably done as a joke," an officer said.

The grenade was described as a Marine Corps smoke-marking grenade. Police said that Wilson and some friends brought two of the grenades to the party.

Only other person injured in the explosion was the hostess, Marlys Paulson, 24. She was slightly burned.

Red Chief Plans Trip To Berlin

the German question in talks with Macmillan.

The government newspaper Izvestia quoted First Dep. Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan as saying a separate peace treaty for East Germany may be in the wind.

"If the Western powers do not agree to conclude a peace treaty with Germany," Mikoyan said, "then this will compel the Soviet Union . . . to sign a peace treaty with the German Democratic (East German) Republic."

The Western powers have rejected the Soviet plan for a German peace treaty that would recognize the existing division between East and West Germany. The Russians also proposed that both Germanies disarm.

Nor has either side changed its position on the more immediate question of West Berlin. Khrushchev wants the wartime four-power occupation ended by May 27 and West Berlin turned into an unarmed free city.

Demos Urged To Back Ike Against Reds

nors and members of Congress also were featured speakers.

Rayburn, long a leader among Democratic peacemakers, emphasized the party was a national one, active in every state and presenting all economic and political interests. He said all Democrats could not agree on everything but could agree on fundamentals.

"So I have no patience with people who claim to be Democrats who say they want to run other people who claim to be Democrats out of the party," he said.

He said issues should be debated within the party and that all should go along with the majority when a decision is made.

Without explicit reference to the party - splitting civil rights issue, he recalled that in 1952 and 1956 the party had managed to write platforms "on which all good Democrats could stand."

"If all of us are wise enough and generous enough," he said, "we can write such a platform in 1960. . ."

If that is done on top of the record to be made by the present Democratic Congress, Rayburn said, The Democrats can be confident of electing a president and retaining control of Congress in 1960.

In another speech, Senate Democratic Whipe Mike Mansfield said the Democratic Party's job now is "to point out a constructive path for the Republican administration to follow."

A flock of 1960 presidential contenders were on hand for the dinner but the $200,000 "showcase" was mainly a display setting for Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson.

The lanky Texan, at best an outside prospect for his party's presidential nomination in 1960, shared the speaking honors at the $100 a plate Democratic dinner with House Speaker Sam Rayburn.

At least for Saturday night Johnson dominated the presidential lineup. All of the principal White House prospects except Adlai E. Stevenson were on hand for the annual dinner. But they had no speaking assignments.

The Senate's three other Democratic presidential hopefuls were present but not at the head table like Johnson. They were Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.), the current front runner; Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) and Stuart Symington (D-Mo.).

Governors G. Mennen (Soapy) Williams of Michigan and Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey were the leading aspirants on tap from the field of Democratic state executives.

Top Honors To Pineville At Festival

reading (interpretation) and prose reading (interpretation).

In individual events each contestant was rated: superior, excellent, very good, good or fair. Drama was scored on the same basis. Pineville captured five "superior" ratings, four "excellents," and three "very goods." Waterproof rated three "superiors," seven "excellents," and two "very goods." Winnfield won three "superiors," six "excellents," and two "very goods." St. Vincent's scored five "superiors" and five "excellents."

Results of the drama division were: Pineville, "superior," West Monroe, "superior," St. Vincent's Academy, "excellent," Winnfield, "excellent," Ouachita Parish, "very good," and Waterproof, "good."

Schools were permitted to enter two teams in debate division. St. Vincent's captured first and second places and third place went to two schools, West Monroe and St. Matthew's St. Vincent's No. 1 team comprised Sara Gail Cloutier and Margaret Gorton; No. 2 team included Ann Braswell and Carolyn McCary. West Monroe debaters were Tommy Head, Janice Beckton and Richard Smith. St. Matthew's team included Buddy McStravick, Charles Peck, Freddie Heller and Mitchell Goldman.

Festival debaters were featured yesterday afternoon on the college television production on KNOE - TV during which they expressed views on the debate subject, "Resolved: That the United States should adopt the essential features of the Russian system of education." They also assessed the value of the two-day meet. Participating were: Buddy McStravick and Charles Peck of St. Matthew's; Janice Beckton and Tommy Head of West Monroe; Mike Parkerson and Bill Beckworth of Ouachita Parish High.

Schools participating in the festival were: St. Vincent's Academy of Shreveport, West Monroe, Winnsboro, Pineville, Winnfield, St. Mary's of Natchitoches, Lake Providence, Ruston, Ouachita Parish of Monroe, Tallulah, St. Matthew's of Monroe, Davidson of St. Joseph, Waterproof, and All Saints of Vicksburg.

Representatives from schools agreed that this year's festival surpassed previous ones held here. They pointed to the enlarged program and quality of performance, which they termed "decidedly better" than that displayed in other years. Sponsors and debate coaches stressed the educational value of the event. They referred to the training of students, commentary of judges which each school will receive, and selection of events which offered a balanced program.

Navy Officer Gives Report On Boarding

ford, Conn.—were flown here to report to the Navy.

They also were questioned at the State Department before meeting newsmen at the Pentagon.

Sheely said he was "somewhat nervous" about boarding the Russian trawler Novorossisk but he and other members of the party went unarmed.

The Soviet ship responded, Sheely said, when the U. S. Destroyer Roy O. Hale hoisted an international flag signal to heave to for a boarding party.

He said the Russians were "not social. They accepted us but were not overly friendly."

He said he could tell from the ship's log that it had been operating in the cable area.

Sheely said that the trawler's otter boards were in very bad shape. He explained that the otter boards are used to support the trawlers fishing nets.

He also said the ship's trawling cable appeared to have been "broken under strain."

"I don't know whether it was accidental or intentional," Sheely told newsmen at Argentia. "We had no difficulty in boarding the ship. Our party of five was unarmed. We called for the captain and told them we intended to board. One man on the trawler said 'wait' in English. A ladder was then dropped and the party went aboard."

The diplomatic situation was uncertain.

State Department officials said the United States is reserving the right to claim damages from Russia if investigations disclose the fishing boat damaged trans-Atlantic cables.

The United States Friday night sent Russia a formal note advising the Kremlin that U.S. sailors boarded the trawler after it was detected operating in the vicinity of five recent cable breaks.

eral, Fla., have orbited close to the equator.

The 78-foot-high missile combination - the satellite, actually, is the entire second stage rocket mounted on the Thor's nose—was fired at 1:49 p.m. PST.

It rose slowly from its pad in sand dunes 200 yards from the edge of the Pacific then gathered speed quickly.

Newsmen 10,000 feet away saw it soar straight up and nose over toward the south, still rising. Within three minutes it was out of sight.

The weather was perfect-sunny and warm with just a light breeze.

This, the third launch try for Discoverer I, occurred a little more than an hour after the scheduled launch time of 12:45 p.m. Two previous tries were called off after the countdown had only minutes to go.

Two and a half minutes after launch the first -stage Thor used up its fuel and fell away. The missile coasted 2½ minutes. Then the second and final stage—a Bell Hustler rocket with a special place for the payload—took over. The Hustler rocket burned for 2½ minutes. Its purpose was to kick the second stage into orbit.

On this pioneering trip, the satellite was virtually empty. The payload was only 40 pounds of instruments. This was largely a test run for more elaborate shots in the future.

The Discoverer series of perhaps a dozen shots calls for sending animals into space to help scientists obtain data that will enable man to follow. Later Discoverers will have recoverable capsules containing mice, and later, monkeys.

Scientists will study such things as the animals' reaction to blast-off weightless flight in space, heat from air friction during re-entry and possible jolts during landing. The goal is to find ways to keep man safe and comfortable in space.

Plans called for Discoverer I to stay in orbit as long as two weeks, circling the globe in an oval path bringing it within 140 miles of earth at the closest point and taking it as far out as 450 miles.

from the ice rink and a telephone company sent a derrick to help.

Every wrecking truck in town was sent to the scene to pull debris, away in the search for more victims.

Dr. J. G. Kirk said he believed everyone had been accounted for, but detailed checks were being made anyway.

R. J. Russel, one of the first persons to reach the scene, said there apparently was no warning of the collapse.

Carnival Friday Night

"There was one loud roar and the roof was on the ice," he said. "One father was there with two of his sons. He got one out, but the other was killed."

Russel said a carnival was held at the arena Friday night, attracting 500 persons. A serious disaster would have resulted if the roof had caved in then, he said.

More than 1,000 persons flocked to the scene Saturday to help in rescue operations.

Plan Group Maps To Go On Display

Map displays representing the first phase of the Monroe Master Plan now being designed by the Monroe-Ouachita Regional Planning Commission will go on public display here tomorrow.

Commission Chairman Roy Johns announced that the display would be placed in the Central Savings Bank starting tomorrow for a week.

Beginning next Monday, the maps will be displayed in the Ouachita National Bank for a week.

City planners George Parsons and Marvin Hill explained that a group of maps will compose the display, representing the completion of phase one of the program.

PHASE ONE

Phase one called for the tabulation of information bringing out existing conditions within the commission's planning region, which takes in Monroe and three miles beyond the incorporate limits.

A large painted map showing the present use of land within the planning region will be the feature attraction in the display. In addition, an aerial photo of Monroe will be displayed.

Fifteen small maps bringing out physical information on Monroe also will be a part of the display.

Plan Group Maps To Go On Display

Map displays representing the first phase of the Monroe Master Plan now being designed by the Monroe-Ouachita Regional Planning Commission will go on public display here tomorrow.

Commission Chairman Roy Johns announced that the display would be placed in the Central Savings Bank starting tomorrow for a week.

Beginning next Monday, the maps will be displayed in the Ouachita National Bank for a week.

City planners George Parsons and Marvin Hill explained that a group of maps will compose the display, representing the completion of phase one of the program.

PHASE ONE

Phase one called for the tabulation of information bringing out existing conditions within the commission's planning region, which takes in Monroe and three miles beyond the incorporate limits.

A large painted map showing the present use of land within the planning region will be the feature attraction in the display. In addition, an aerial photo of Monroe will be displayed.

Fifteen small maps bringing out physical information on Monroe also will be a part of the display.

Johns urged all citizens to take a look at the map, pointing out, "We think they'll find it not only interesting but most informative."

Proxmire's Folly

Openly seeking to strip the south of its influence, Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis) has proposed that the senate change its rules so that committee chairmanships can be distributed on a geographical basis, rather than on seniority. A similiar suggestion was made by Sen. Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa).

Both of these senators are fluent talkers and both enjoy the limelight. Also, from the standpoint of seniority, they are low on the totem pole, with less than three years of service each. Both are ambitious enough to want to rise to power over the heads of others. The idea of waiting their turns does not appeal to them.

Nine of the 15 important senate committees have southerners as chairmen. This gives the south strong influence in the senate, its power rising well above a numerical basis. If radical - liberals such as Sen. Proxmire could upset the orderly processes of the senate and could apportion the chairmanships on a geographical or population basis, the south would lose most of its influence. That is what Proxmire wants. Clark is willing to go along on the hope that he could advance faster if the chairmenships were thrown open instead of being kept on a seniority basis.

Committee chairmanships held by southern senators include: Armed services, Russell of Georgia; banking and currency, Robertson of Virginia; finance, Byrd of Virginia; foreign relations, Fulbright of Arkansas; government operations, McClellan of Arkansas; judiciary, Eastland of Mississippi; labor and health, Hill of Alabama; post office and civil service, Johnston of South Carolina; agriculture, Ellender of Louisiana.

Some parents take the blame for what their children do but Dr. Theodore S. Proxmire of Chicago says it is not his fault that his son William behaves so strangely. The doctor blames it all on the Harvard influence.

Who would have thought that the well - cared - for son of Dr. Proxmire, after expensive education in eastern schools, would wind up as a liberal's liberal in Wisconsin, home of the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, Republican, whose death was attributed to the tremendous fight he waged against Communism? Proxmire has espoused some of the principles against which McCarthy fought.

Who would have believed that the successor to McCarthy would be singled out by President Eisenhower as a horrible example of a spender gone wild.

Chairmanship by assignment on a seniority basis is traditional in the senate and no better way has been offered. None of the many substitute plans projected over the years has given any assurance of success.

The senator who attains top committee assignments does so by the long process of continued reelection and service. He is thoroughly versed in parliamentary and party procedures by the time he gets to the top.

Usually the most bumptious and radical upstarts in either the house or the senate are those who have been newly elected and want to set the world on fire. They know that the way to get the most attention is by making radical proposals. In making these proposals, they virtually commit themselves to follow and support a radical course.

When a man has been in the senate long enough to get a chairmanship by reason of seniority he has achieved balance and perspective and insight and no longer feels the need for making a big show that faced him as a freshman.

The Milwaukee Journal disapproves of the seniority system but admits editorially that it has "no illusions that changes will be made."

"Seniority provides an escalator for all," says the Journal. "Get on it, keep moving up and eventually you will reach the top. Senators may hate it at first but they come to like it after a term or two."

Sen. Proxmire has been thrashing around in several directions. In addition to attacking the seniority rule, he has lashed out at Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex), challenging the authority Johnson has assumed as senate majority leader. On this question Proxmire may be right, since it is hardly a healthy situation for Johnson to try to make all the decisions for the senate, but Proxmire's attack on Johnson is not likely to bring any support from Johnson on the proposal to shunt aside the seniority rule.

The south is fortunate that so many of the committee chairmanships are in the hands of southern senators. In fact, the whole country is certain to benefit because these southerners provide a big bulwark against legislative attempts by radicals and left-wingers who want to upset this country's constitutional form of government, including the guarantee of states' rights.

Auto And Low Grades

With the subject of education being compared to Elvis Presley and flying saucers during one of the Norteast inauguration speeches here late last week, it is of interest to see other "challenges" confronting educators besides Rock 'n Roll.

William Condict, vice principal of Belmont High in Los Angeles, has made a survey of grades and the degree of motorization of students.

He has come up with some revealing information — some of which may explain why U. S. students seem to lack the motivation possessed by the Russians. As a matter of fact there seems to be a direct tie-in between locomotion (of the body) and motivation (to put the gray matter into motion). There is an inverse relationship as the following figures from Condit's survey bear out:

1. Not a single straight-A student owned a car.

2. Only 15 per cent of the B students did.

3. But 41 per cent of the C students drove their own.

4. That 71 per cent of the D students were fully motorized, and among those who were failing, a spectacular 83 per cent drive in high style and abysmal ignorance.

This isn't to say there is anything about the automobile itself which is detrimental to good study. But there must be—judging from the figures — something in the driving of a car which tends to kill the drive to hit the books.

Between the demands of the "hot rod" or the "heap," and the discipline of plane geometry, English grammar or modern history, the "whole child" is apt to be sharply divided. When it comes to a contest between concentration on studies and the open road, he will choose the latter course if the means is available.

"I became an inhabitant of this lop-sided planet," said Old Sorehead, "due to circumstances over which I had no control."

GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAYS

Work Is Still Possible After Serious Illnesses

The tremendous advances that have been made in the medical and bio-chemical sciences would be purposeless if life were not prolonged by them and if those who are stricken by serious illnesses could not continue to work. The man who suffers what used to be called a fatal heart attack may have many years of life-and work ahead of him if he obeys dietary and other instructions. His major problem is to ration his time and to avoid fatigue. He need not give up his career to accomplish either.

Cancer is a bit more difficult, but the word, cancer, is a generic term for a number of related illnesses which may, in the not too distant future, become unrelated as the cause for some of them is fixed. However, many forms of cancer are handleable in certain stages and then one can go back to work.

I have had a coronary occlusion which is a fancy name for one form of heart attack, two other incidents, one of which was heart failure, and a cancer of one kidney. I am doing as much work as ever but my time is more carefully rationed and my diet is both small and unpleasant because it is saltless. But apart from a few inconveniences, such as not dancing after a day of hard work or walking my dog, Joe., or smoking big, black cigars, there is hardly a change of routine.

I give this personal testimony because Senator Stuart Symington and Senator Hubert Humphrey are making so sharp a point of appointing a new secretary of state while John Foster Dulles is in the hospital taking treatment. His presence in the hospital interferes with his work less than if he were hunting quail or traveling about in distant parts of Missouri or Minesota looking for votes. A telephone is at hand; he is no distance from the State Department; he can be in touch with all the world.

Of course, there are those who are so egotistic that if anything is wrong with them they become so preoccupied with themselves that they can think of nothing else. There are others who find work a form of therapy, who reject themselves as problems even when they feel pain, and become so absorbed in their duties that their will to live is stimulated.

Some people are afraid to die and the scratch of a pin will send them into paroxysms of fear; there are others who fully believe in the life eternal and to whom life and death are stages in the fulfillment of the destiny of the soul. John Foster Dulles, for instance, was raised as a Presbyterian, a faith to which he has been devoted. He surely believes that God's will be done which is a cornerstone of the Calvinistic philosophy which his father preached from the pulpit. Such a man moves through life fearlessly and when he faces death, he does not flinch, for it will come when it comes and is one of the facts of eternal living that needs to be faced.

At this moment, Dulles is valuable to this nation. I do not say indispensable, because we should indeed be a weak and poor nation if any man were indispensable. However, Dulles is useful and needed and as long as his services are available, they are of value. Let them therefore be used up to the last moment.

A word needs to be said about Christian Herter, the acting secretary of state. He has some form of arthritis and uses canes or crutches or a wheel chair to get around. So what? Can he exercise his mind? Does he know what he is doing? Is he a man of ability and experience? Does his arthritis interfere with his ability to work? It would seem that some Americans believe that an official of the United States must be physically perfect. George Washington had bad teeth and Franklin D. Roosevelt was a cripple. Maybe we ought to elect Jayne Mansfield's husband President because he is supposed to be physically perfect —I believe the peepholers call him a muscle man.

It is brains, not muscles of the shank, that we need in the men who do our work. If we find our best brains in cripples, let us use what we find and not be too particular.

LIKES WAYFARER AID

West Monroe, La.

To The Editor,

I want to congratulate your newspaper for the fine article by Bob Luckett on page 1-C of Sunday's World. The title "Wayfarer Finds Food, Shelter, Scripture at Mission Here."

Frankly, I had no idea there was such a place in Monroe, exclusive of the Salvation Army, but it is spiritually heartwarming to learn of people like Reverend and Mrs. C. F. Henry, who are dedicated to empty hearts, stomachs and souls, instead of fame and monetary gain. I have been looking for such a place where I can do a part to help the unfortunate in whatever way I can. I am unemployed at present, but can help some financially, now and then, but I am more anxious to help reach the lost who have neither hope in Christ, nor any certain residence, at least temporarily.

It is heart - rending to see beautiful churches throughout Monroe, many of which have a whopping bank account locked away in a vault with not a cent with which to help the homeless and unfortunate, available.

It is tragic to note that some of our leading pastors demand enormous salaries of $1,000.00 to $1,500.00 a month (although the church laymen often struggle by on $200.00 (or slightly more) per month.

Yet, this so - called leader of the people seldom, if ever, contributes anything to help the homeless, the heartbroken, the unfortunates who are sick, hungry or homeless, often through no fault of their own.

In his pulpit the pastor emphasizes the importance of giving, yet his purse strings are never loosened and he becomes a "sounding brass and tinkling cymbal" to his audience, for he does not practice what he firmly preaches to his followers.

He often makes much of the growth of communism in the world but would never own up to being a part of what has caused the raging growth of communism; half of the world goes to bed hungry, while the other half lock their pocketbooks against the need of their fellow - men. Are we our brothers' keepers? Yes God says that we are! Also, He says that if we "open not the bowels of compassion, how dwell the Love of God within us?"

If all the pastors in Monroe got down on their knees before God and asked His divine advice, I doubt if Rev. Henry would have to wonder where the gas bill, the soup bones, or the rent would be coming from.

No wonder the Bible says "The blind lead the blind, and they fall in the ditch together."

Mr. Pastor, if this letter arouses your ire, examine your heart, and loosen your purse strings, and if God pours out a blessing you can't take without some outward expression of joy, don't be ashamed. It's happened to a lot of honest-hearted people before.

And, to Rev. and Mrs. Henry; God bless you in your work, your reward is certain and sure. And, I'll be joining you, and helping in every way I can. I am a good Bible teacher, and can encourage the down-hearted.

I hope many others in Monroe will do likewise.

Thank you kindly.

Doctors Say Dulles Now Is Stronger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles is growing stronger under treatment for cancer and two specialists are "gratified" by his progress, the State Department said Saturday.

The department said the two cancer experts, Drs. I. S. Ravdin and Gordon Zubrod, consulted with Dulles' physicians at Walter Reed Hospital Friday and reported they were pleased by the secretary's progress since their last visit Feb. 17.

Walter MacPherson, State Department press officer, explained that by "progress" the doctors meant that Dulles' "strength is increasing, he is eating very well and tolerating the treatments."

Dulles now has undergone eight massive radiation treatments for abdominal cancer without showing any adverse reaction such as nausea and weakness experienced by some patients.

Members of Congress, who do not employ relatives seldom criticize those who do. Generally they do not regard it as reprehensible per se. Nearly always they overlook it even when it has a suspicious odor. An exception was the case of Representative Ulysses S. Stone of Oklahoma, thirty years ago. Stone shocked the tender sensibilities of his colleagues by coming out and calling the practice "nepotism," even suggesting that in some cases it was thievery from the public Treasury.

Stone's virtue went unrewarded. He was retired by his constituents at the end of his two year term and if alive is still in private life. Some of those criticized by the upstart Oklahoman went on getting re - elected and in the fullness of years retired on Congressional pensions larger than their salaries were when Stone served.

This much you can depend on: Congress will always leave it to the discretion of its members to chose their personal staffs, whether secretaries, clerks, or whatever designation. In the exercise of this discretion the member will not be subject to annoying restrictions.

Some honorable Senators and Representatives will employ relatives by blood or marriage. Where such persons take their jobs seriously and buckle down to earn the income provided by government through the old man they may do a better job than any one else the legislator could employ. There are notable examples of such.

Where relatives placed on the Congressional payroll work very little or not at all, as is true [...] many cases, the practice deserves the harsh name of "nepotism" or worse.

The people who are the best judges of the services being rendered by a member of Congress and his employees are the constituents of the Senator or Representative. If the voters do not [...] what they are getting they [...]ow what to do about it.

HISTORY NOTE IN PASSING— If George Washington were still alive he'd celebrate his birthday on Feb. 11 — not Feb. 22. Actually, Washington was born on the 11th and it took an official proclamation by President John Adams in 1800 to set Washington's birthday on Feb. 22. The discrepancy in birth observances came with a change in the calendar in 1756 when Washington was a young man of 24. This brought about a difference of 11 days. But Washington was stubborn and refused to change his birth date to suit the calendar. Washington died on Dec. 14, 1799. Under the old calendar this was Christmas Day.

Usually the most bumptious and radical upstarts in either the house or the senate are those who have been newly elected and want to set the world on fire. They know that the way to get the most attention is by making radical proposals. In making these proposals, they virtually commit themselves to follow and support a radical course.

When a man has been in the senate long enough to get a chairmanship by reason of seniority he has achieved balance and perspective and insight and no longer feels the need for making a big show that faced him as a freshman.

The Milwaukee Journal disapproves of the seniority system but admits editorially that it has "no illusions that changes will be made."

"Seniority provides an escalator for all," says the Journal. "Get on it, keep moving up and eventually you will reach the top. Senators may hate it at first but they come to like it after a term or two."

Sen. Proxmire has been thrashing around in several directions. In addition to attacking the seniority rule, he has lashed out at Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex), challenging the authority Johnson has assumed as senate majority leader. On this question Proxmire may be right, since it is hardly a healthy situation for Johnson to try to make all the decisions for the senate, but Proxmire's attack on Johnson is not likely to bring any support from Johnson on the proposal to shunt aside the seniority rule.

The south is fortunate that so many of the committee chairmanships are in the hands of southern senators. In fact, the whole country is certain to benefit because these southerners provide a big bulwark against legislative attempts by radicals and left-wingers who want to upset this country's constitutional form of government, including the guarantee of states' rights.

Auto And Low Grades

With the subject of education being compared to Elvis Presley and flying saucers during one of the Norteast inauguration speeches here late last week, it is of interest to see other "challenges" confronting educators besides Rock 'n Roll.

William Condict, vice principal of Belmont High in Los Angeles, has made a survey of grades and the degree of motorization of students.

He has come up with some revealing information — some of which may explain why U. S. students seem to lack the motivation possessed by the Russians. As a matter of fact there seems to be a direct tie-in between locomotion (of the body) and motivation (to put the gray matter into motion). There is an inverse relationship as the following figures from Condit's survey bear out:

1. Not a single straight-A student owned a car.

2. Only 15 per cent of the B students did.

3. But 41 per cent of the C students drove their own.

4. That 71 per cent of the D students were fully motorized, and among those who were failing, a spectacular 83 per cent drive in high style and abysmal ignorance.

This isn't to say there is anything about the automobile itself which is detrimental to good study. But there must be—judging from the figures — something in the driving of a car which tends to kill the drive to hit the books.

Between the demands of the "hot rod" or the "heap," and the discipline of plane geometry, English grammar or modern history, the "whole child" is apt to be sharply divided. When it comes to a contest between concentration on studies and the open road, he will choose the latter course if the means is available.

"I became an inhabitant of this lop-sided planet," said Old Sorehead, "due to circumstances over which I had no control."

GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAYS

Work Is Still Possible After Serious Illnesses

The tremendous advances that have been made in the medical and bio-chemical sciences would be purposeless if life were not prolonged by them and if those who are stricken by serious illnesses could not continue to work. The man who suffers what used to be called a fatal heart attack may have many years of life-and work ahead of him if he obeys dietary and other instructions. His major problem is to ration his time and to avoid fatigue. He need not give up his career to accomplish either.

Cancer is a bit more difficult, but the word, cancer, is a generic term for a number of related illnesses which may, in the not too distant future, become unrelated as the cause for some of them is fixed. However, many forms of cancer are handleable in certain stages and then one can go back to work.

I have had a coronary occlusion which is a fancy name for one form of heart attack, two other incidents, one of which was heart failure, and a cancer of one kidney. I am doing as much work as ever but my time is more carefully rationed and my diet is both small and unpleasant because it is saltless. But apart from a few inconveniences, such as not dancing after a day of hard work or walking my dog, Joe., or smoking big, black cigars, there is hardly a change of routine.

I give this personal testimony because Senator Stuart Symington and Senator Hubert Humphrey are making so sharp a point of appointing a new secretary of state while John Foster Dulles is in the hospital taking treatment. His presence in the hospital interferes with his work less than if he were hunting quail or traveling about in distant parts of Missouri or Minesota looking for votes. A telephone is at hand; he is no distance from the State Department; he can be in touch with all the world.

Of course, there are those who are so egotistic that if anything is wrong with them they become so preoccupied with themselves that they can think of nothing else. There are others who find work a form of therapy, who reject themselves as problems even when they feel pain, and become so absorbed in their duties that their will to live is stimulated.

Some people are afraid to die and the scratch of a pin will send them into paroxysms of fear; there are others who fully believe in the life eternal and to whom life and death are stages in the fulfillment of the destiny of the soul. John Foster Dulles, for instance, was raised as a Presbyterian, a faith to which he has been devoted. He surely believes that God's will be done which is a cornerstone of the Calvinistic philosophy which his father preached from the pulpit. Such a man moves through life fearlessly and when he faces death, he does not flinch, for it will come when it comes and is one of the facts of eternal living that needs to be faced.

At this moment, Dulles is valuable to this nation. I do not say indispensable, because we should indeed be a weak and poor nation if any man were indispensable. However, Dulles is useful and needed and as long as his services are available, they are of value. Let them therefore be used up to the last moment.

A word needs to be said about Christian Herter, the acting secretary of state. He has some form of arthritis and uses canes or crutches or a wheel chair to get around. So what? Can he exercise his mind? Does he know what he is doing? Is he a man of ability and experience? Does his arthritis interfere with his ability to work? It would seem that some Americans believe that an official of the United States must be physically perfect. George Washington had bad teeth and Franklin D. Roosevelt was a cripple. Maybe we ought to elect Jayne Mansfield's husband President because he is supposed to be physically perfect —I believe the peepholers call him a muscle man.

It is brains, not muscles of the shank, that we need in the men who do our work. If we find our best brains in cripples, let us use what we find and not be too particular.

LIKES WAYFARER AID

West Monroe, La.

To The Editor,

I want to congratulate your newspaper for the fine article by Bob Luckett on page 1-C of Sunday's World. The title "Wayfarer Finds Food, Shelter, Scripture at Mission Here."

Frankly, I had no idea there was such a place in Monroe, exclusive of the Salvation Army, but it is spiritually heartwarming to learn of people like Reverend and Mrs. C. F. Henry, who are dedicated to empty hearts, stomachs and souls, instead of fame and monetary gain. I have been looking for such a place where I can do a part to help the unfortunate in whatever way I can. I am unemployed at present, but can help some financially, now and then, but I am more anxious to help reach the lost who have neither hope in Christ, nor any certain residence, at least temporarily.

It is heart - rending to see beautiful churches throughout Monroe, many of which have a whopping bank account locked away in a vault with not a cent with which to help the homeless and unfortunate, available.

It is tragic to note that some of our leading pastors demand enormous salaries of $1,000.00 to $1,500.00 a month (although the church laymen often struggle by on $200.00 (or slightly more) per month.

Yet, this so - called leader of the people seldom, if ever, contributes anything to help the homeless, the heartbroken, the unfortunates who are sick, hungry or homeless, often through no fault of their own.

In his pulpit the pastor emphasizes the importance of giving, yet his purse strings are never loosened and he becomes a "sounding brass and tinkling cymbal" to his audience, for he does not practice what he firmly preaches to his followers.

He often makes much of the growth of communism in the world but would never own up to being a part of what has caused the raging growth of communism; half of the world goes to bed hungry, while the other half lock their pocketbooks against the need of their fellow - men. Are we our brothers' keepers? Yes God says that we are! Also, He says that if we "open not the bowels of compassion, how dwell the Love of God within us?"

If all the pastors in Monroe got down on their knees before God and asked His divine advice, I doubt if Rev. Henry would have to wonder where the gas bill, the soup bones, or the rent would be coming from.

No wonder the Bible says "The blind lead the blind, and they fall in the ditch together."

Mr. Pastor, if this letter arouses your ire, examine your heart, and loosen your purse strings, and if God pours out a blessing you can't take without some outward expression of joy, don't be ashamed. It's happened to a lot of honest-hearted people before.

Apd, to Rev. and Mrs. Henry; God bless you in your work, your reward is certain and sure. And, I'll be joining you, and helping in every way I can. I am a good Bible teacher, and can encourage the down-hearted.

I hope many others in Monroe will do likewise.

Thank you kindly.

Doctors Say Dulles Now Is Stronger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles is growing stronger under treatment for cancer and two specialists are "gratified" by his progress, the State Department said Saturday.

The department said the two cancer experts, Drs. I. S. Ravdin and Gordon Zubrod, consulted with Dulles' physicians at Walter Reed Hospital Friday and reported they were pleased by the secretary's progress since their last visit Feb. 17.

Walter MacPherson, State Department press officer, explained that by "progress" the doctors meant that Dulles' "strength is increasing, he is eating very well and tolerating the treatments."

Dulles now has undergone eight massive radiation treatments for abdominal cancer without showing any adverse reaction such as nausea and weakness experienced by some patients.

Just This Sunday

JUST this Sunday go to church . . . This once remember God . . . And give your gratitude to Him . . . That you are on this sod . . . Just this once take time from play . . . Or from your slumber late . . . And this small portion of your day . . . To dear God dedicate . . . It will be very comforting . . . And truly helpful too . . . Because as you give thought to God . . . He will inspire you . . . And you will feel much more refreshed . . . To start another week . . . Than you could be with all the rest . . . And pleasure you might seek . . . Just this Sunday go to church . . . And you will surely find . . . Love enveloping your soul . . . And peace of heart and mind.

Under my self - impos... year rule the year 19... skipped. That year it was ... covered that 63 members ... House of Representatives ...ployed persons with the ... names as theirs, with a ... presumption that the lawm... were keeping a con... able amount of government m...ey in the immediate family. ... salaries of $8484 that year ... to ten presumably kinfolk.

The fact that now in 19... new Democratic Congress... from Iowa had his son on ... payroll at $11,081.76 a year ... newsworthy when it became ...lic two weeks ago. The fact ... the son was only 19 and was ...tending college part of the ... and made it more interesting.

Even with inflation, $11,00... year is generous emolument for ... 19 - year - old lad working ... way through college. Yet, if history is repea... ed perhaps the only person wh... will remember the Iowa inciden... two years from now is the can... didate who will oppose the Iow... Congressman for re-election.

When the 1960 election is hel... it will be followed in Februar... 1961 by the bi - ennial hullabalo... about nepotism, for some mem... bers chosen come the next elec... tion will cling to the old Wash... ington habit. Even Thomas Jef... ferson couldn't do much about it. He raised his voice against it whenever possible, particularly excoriating it in a letter to one Dr. Horatio Turpin in 1807, in which the mildest thing he said was:

"The field of public office will not be perverted by me into a family property."

Members of Congress, who do not employ relatives seldom criticize those who do. Generally they do not regard it as reprehensible per se. Nearly always they overlook it even when it has a suspicious odor. An exception was the case of Representative Ulysses S. Stone of Oklahoma, thirty years ago. Stone shocked the tender sensibilities of his colleagues by coming out and calling the practice "nepotism," even suggesting that in some cases it was thievery from the public Treasury.

Stone's virtue went unrewarded. He was retired by his constituents at the end of his two year term and if alive is still in private life. Some of those criticized by the upstart Oklahoman went on getting re - elected and in the fullness of years retired on Congressional pensions larger than their salaries were when Stone served.

This much you can depend on: Congress will always leave it to the discretion of its members to chose their personal staffs, whether secretaries, clerks, or whatever designation. In the exercise of this discretion the member will not be subject to annoying restrictions.

Some honorable Senators and ...epresentatives will employ rel...atives by blood or marriage. ...Where such persons take their ...obs seriously and buckle down ...o earn the income provided by ...overnment through the old man ...hey may do a better job than ...ny one else the legislator could ...mploy. There are notable exam...les of such.

Where relatives placed on the ...ongressional payroll work very ...tle or not at all, as is true ... many cases, the practice de...rves the harsh name of "nep...ism" or worse.

The people who are the best ...ges of the services being ren...red by a member of Congress ...d his employees are the con...tuents of the Senator or Rep...entative. If the voters do not ... what they are getting they ...ow what to do about it.

Sen. Yarbrough Favors Techers

COLLEGE OF DOMESTIC KNOWLEDGE — Sen. Ralph Yarborough, Dem.-Texas, has a soft spot in his heart for school teachers. He was one himself. Speaking before the National Association of School Administrators, Yarborough pointed to the advantages of higher education with this story about a fellow Texan who was hailed into justice court. "Aren't you ashamed," the judge asked, "To have your wife support you by taking in washing?" "I am, your honor," he answered. "But what can I do? She ain't got enough education to do anything else."

DOUBLE OR NOTHING — An interesting alphabetical coincidence has developed in New York politics. Sen. Kenneth Keating's predecessor was Irving Ives. His present senior partner is Sen. Jacob Javits. Does this mean New York Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz is next in line? Says Keating: "If this line of succession should continue — from the double - I of Irving Ives to the double - J of Jack Javits to the double - K of Ken Keating to the double-L of Louis Lefkowitz, then think of the intriguing prospect beyond that. For the only double-M I can think of, at least in this felicitous moment, is Marilyn Monroe!"

A FARMER'S LAMENT —Rep. William Avery, Rep.-Kans., is giving this story wide distribution on Capitol Hill. A farmer rushed his young wife to the big city hospital to have their first baby. A devoted husband, the farmer wanted to remain by his wife's side. In the waiting room this was permitted. When they shifted his wife to another room he tried to follow. But a nurse stopped him and admonished, "You can't go in there, that is for women in labor." With this the farmer declared, "That's what I mean. Everything is for labor these days and not a darn thing for the farmer."

HISTORY NOTE IN PASSING— If George Washington were still alive he'd celebrate his birthday on Feb. 11 — not Feb. 22. Actually, Washington was born on the 11th and it took an official proclamation by President John Adams in 1800 to set Washington's birthday on Feb. 22. The discrepancy in birth observances came with a change in the calendar in 1756 when Washington was a young man of 24. This brought about a difference of 11 days. But Washington was stubborn and refused to change his birth date to suit the calendar. Washington died on Dec. 14, 1799. Under the old calendar this was Christmas Day.

YOU JUST CAN'T WIN — Rep. Silvio O. Conte, Rep.-Mass., just can't please some of his constituents no matter how hard he tries. When he returned to the home district after being sworn in he was driving an old car which he describes as looking like something the farmers use to haul trash. "But, by gosh, when I bought a new one, they were sure the lobbyists had gotten to me already," ...ays sadly. One Sunday he was ... up with some constituents and ...sed church. Some people got ... idea that he turned athiest ...n in Washington. "Several ...ks later, when I was again ... home and did get to church, ... said, 'Why that pious fraud! ... just trying to dig up votes,'" ...e points out dejectedly.

TOMMY AND COLLIE DOG WHO SAVED HIM — Somebody left a collie shepherd on the doorstep of police patrolman Walter Abel's home last summer. The family named the dog Lady. Lady helped save the life of the Abels 3-year-old son, Tommy, yesterday, after the boy had become mired up to his waist in muddy clay. The boy's cries were unheard but Lady's barks brought a repair crew to the rescue. (AP Wirephoto)

West Monroe Bank Moves To New Site

Anyone standing in the 400 block of Natchitoches street early yesterday could have watched as more than $250,000 rolled past.

A quarter of a million dollars in cash plus monetary certificates and furniture was loaded into a moving van and transported from the old location of the First National Bank of West Monroe to its new modernistic building at Cypress and Natchitoches streets yesterday morning.

Delma Carter, vice - president, commented that the entire moving process "was done with the cooperation of the West Monroe City Police and the Ouachita Parish Sheriff's Department."

Police officers and deputy sheriffs were on hand when the moving operation started at 8 a.m. The trips were required from the old site at 311 Natchitoches, and all equipment was in the new location by 1 p.m.

"Still straightening up, but almost finished," was the comment at 5 p.m.

The bank opens for normal business procedure tomorrow morning, with the formal opening day scheduled for next Saturday.

With police riding in front, in back and alongside the van, the money was easily transported, and immediately transferred from the van to the new vault, officials stated.

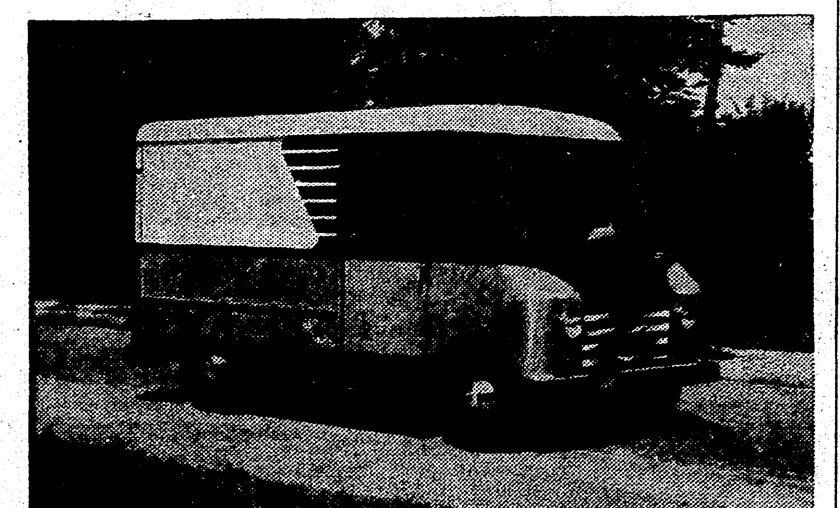
Lake Providence Fire Loss Seen Around $15,000

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) —Loss yesterday was estimated at around $15,000 following a blaze which destroyed a cafe and extensively damaged three adjacent buildings.

Destroyed in the fire which was discovered around 10 p. m. Friday and was not brought under control until 2:30 a.m. Saturday, was Phil's Cafe. Buildings damaged were Atwood's Jewelers, Sam's Barber Shop and Jack's Children's Shop.

The fire was discovered by night watchman Billy Herrington, who noticed smoke coming from the cafe. Between 25 and 30 Lake Providence volunteer firemen turned out to fight the blaze. Traffic in the area was blocked for some three and a half hours, fire department officials said.

The buildings were located on the north side of Lake Street, the town's main thoroughfare.



New for Northeast Louisiana Area

A new International multi-stop delivery truck called the Metro-Mite, the smallest vehicle of its type made in America, has been introduced in the Northeast Louisiana area by Scott Truck & Tractor Co., it was announced by Tom Scott, owner of the firm.

According to Scott, the Metro-Mite which weighs only 2,800 pounds is especially designed to economically meet the needs of multi-stop truck operators who haul light, bulky loads.

"Its new four-cylinder, 51-horsepower engine will idle for approximately eight hours on just one gallon of gasoline," Scott said, "and its all-steel body has a big 200-cubic foot capacity."

Price of the truck in the Northeast Louisiana area, he stated, is only $2488.00.

Other features of the Metro-Mite, according to Scott, include excellent maneuverability and unitized construction which eliminates the need for separate body and chassis frames and results in a fully-integrated, strong box-like unit.

Delivery operations with this new truck are facilitated by means of sliding doors on both sides of its man-high, walk-in driver compartment, or through double rear doors. By using the walk-through aisle of the driver compartment for loadspace, objects up to nine feet long can be carried.

The Metro-Mite is rated at 3,800-pounds gross vehicle weight and can carry 1,000-pound loads. Its overall length is 159-inches; its interior height and width both are 66-inches. Length of loadspace from back of driver's seat to double rear doors is 84 inches.

"This truck's advanced performance and economy features make it especially adaptable to use by laundries, dry cleaners, bakers, florists and other businesses delivering lightweight merchandise," Scott said.

Driver Faces Charges Here In Accident

A Mississippi truck driver, held in the Monroe jail on charges of driving while intoxicated, faces additional charges of hit - run driving involving an injury to a 12-year-old West Monroe Junior High student.

"We're just thankful he wasn't hurt any worse," said Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Stuart, whose son, Mike was struck while walking along the sidewalk in the 1100 block of Cypress Street in West Monroe.

Two young eyewitnesses later identified the red truck driven by John Vance, 37, of Jackson, Miss., as the hit-run vehicle.

Mike suffered a severe arm injury and laceration to the hand at 3:30 Friday afternoon. He had just stepped off his bicycle and was walking along the sidewalk when the truck sideswiped him, injuring him and damaging the bicycle.

"He walked the four-blocks to our home at 1203 Hinkle Dr., but it must have seemed like an awfully long distance to him. The blood was pouring out of his hand, because the truck had gouged a piece of flesh out of it," Mrs. Stuart revealed.

At the time of the accident, a man reported to West Monroe police that he had seen a truck-driver who appeared to be drunk, heading east on the bridge toward Monroe. He described the vehicle as a red school bus-type hatchery truck.

Monroe police were notified, apprehended the driver, and investigation by West Monroe police located two youngsters who had seen the accident.

Jerrell Lindsay, 12, and James Lindsay, 10, of 403 Claiborne St., West Monroe, were taken to Monroe and identified Vance's truck as the one which hit Mike.

The boy was taken to a West Monroe physician who treated him, and then was returned home.

Impala Sport Coupe—like every Chevy—has Safety Plate Glass all around.

Chevy stops quickest . . . goes farthest on a gallon!

Chevy showed the best brakes of the leading low-priced three in a test of repeated stops at highway speeds conducted and certified by NASCAR. Chevy also won over the other two in a NASCAR economy run—getting the most miles per gallon for 6's and V8's at normal cruising speeds of just over 55 mph.*

Fresh as this car is to look at, it's inherited more than its share of those familiar Chevrolet traits—economy and dependability.

It's a car that knows how to get the most out of a gallon. And it's the only car in its field to bring you hydraulic valve lifters in all popular engines—6 and V8. This mark of a modern engine means smoother, quieter performance for you.

There are many other benefits as basic as the efficiency of Chevrolet's engines and the dependability of its new brakes (with more lining area than any other low-priced car). But why not stop at your dealer's and let Chevy do its own sweet talking!

Lebanese Ban Pictures Of Arab Leader

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)— The Lebanese government Saturday banned newsreel pictures of U.A.R. President Gamal Abdel Nasser which ignited the bloodiest fighting between rival factions in Beirut since the revolution last summer.

At least two persons were reported killed and 10 wounded in the clashes between pro and anti Nasser elements Friday before troops and police restored order.

Police rounded up an estimated 50 persons for questioning in connection with the fighting that broke out when Nasser's picture was flashed on the screen of the Hollywood movie theater.

Army patrols working with police confiscated hundreds of weapons from pedestrians in the downtown streets after the fighting.

Minister of Interior Raymond Edde reported to the cabinet on the incident and then told reporters that the government had decided on security measures. He did not disclose what these were.

Edde also said he had ordered the theater owners to cut from the newsreels the pictures of Nasser and of French President Charles de Gaulle.

He charged that "certain political elements" were trying to stir up Lebanese passions.

Dock Strike In Alabama Threatened

MOBIL8, Ala. (UPI)—Alabama Dry Dock and Shipbuilding Co. was threatened with a strike by 800 union workers Sunday midnight unless a new wage agreement is signed.

Negotiators for Local 18 of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America and ADDSCO met Saturday afternoon and scheduled another session Sunday.

W. M. William Jr., executive secretary of the union, reported workers voted unanimously in a Saturday morning meeting to have the negotiation committee call a strike at midnight Sunday if a settlement is not reached.

Williams said the union was asking a 26-cent an hour wage hike immediately and a contract reopening next year. The present contract which expires Sunday calls for $2.54 an hour for first-class mechanics.

J. Paul Keefe, director of industrial relations for the company, said ADDSCO had offered 15 cents an hour immediately, with a 12-cent hike next year and a two-year contract. He termed the offer "commensurate with agreements elsewhere."

Dock Strike In Alabama Threatened

MOBIL8, Ala. (UPI)—Alabama Dry Dock and Shipbuilding Co. was threatened with a strike by 800 union workers Sunday midnight unless a new wage agreement is signed.

Negotiators for Local 18 of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America and ADDSCO met Saturday afternoon and scheduled another session Sunday.

W. M. William Jr., executive secretary of the union, reported workers voted unanimously in a Saturday morning meeting to have the negotiation committee call a strike at midnight Sunday if a settlement is not reached.

Williams said the union was asking a 26-cent an hour wage hike immediately and a contract reopening next year. The present contract which expires Sunday calls for $2.54 an hour for first-class mechanics.

J. Paul Keefe, director of industrial relations for the company, said ADDSCO had offered 15 cents an hour immediately, with a 12-cent hike next year and a two-year contract. He termed the offer "commensurate with agreements elsewhere."

Good Shepherd Sanctuary Society Meets

The Ladies Sanctuary Society of Jesus, the Good Shepherd Parish, Monroe, met Wednesday night in the home of the president, Mrs. Paul Goldman on Deborah Drive.

The meeting was opened with a prayer by Father Dabria, and followed by a welcome into her home by Mrs. Goldman. Following reports by the treasurer and the secretary, Mrs. Orrie White, the arrangements chairman, reported that helpers for the month of March would be Mrs. J. G. Hawkins, Mrs. V. C. Bruscato, and Mrs. Guy H. Popham, Jr. The circles announced their nominations or elections of chairmen for the year 1959. Circle No. 1 announced that Mrs. Malcolm Smith had been nominated, Circle No. 2 that Mrs. Charles Petrus had been elected, and Circle No. 4 that Mrs. J. G. Hawkins had been elected. Circle No. 3 has not as yet voted on their next chairman.

Mrs. Goldman expressed her deep appreciation to the arrangements committee and to all the ladies of the Sanctuary Society for the beautiful Christmas altar arrangement, and for the success of the pot luck supper held on January 26. Two ladies volunteered their services to help with coffee after the eight o'clock mass on Sundays in March; they were Mrs. R. L. Davis, and Mrs. M. E. Bell. It was agreed that appointments should be made by the president for ladies to help with coffee after the 10 o'clock mass.

Mrs. Goldman announced that the Sanctuary Society had volunteered to prepare dinner for the priests at St. Matthews on two days of the forthcoming mission, which will be held from March 1 to March 6. Dates selected by the society for serving were March 3 and 4. The members volunteered their services and attractive menus were planned.

A particular highlight of the meeting was an announcement by the nominating committee of the new slate of officers for 1959. Those selected were: president, Mrs. Paul Goldman; vice president, Mrs. E. F. Dalton; treasurer, Miss Genva Cascio; and secretary, Mrs. V. C. Bruscato.

Father Dave gave a brief inspirational message, and the meeting ended with prayer. The next meeting will be held on March 25th.

Plan New Lingerie For Spring

By BETH BLAIR

A good supply of lingerie and foundation garments makes it easier to be well groomed. Plan some additions for your spring wardrobe, perhaps switching from the full slip to a petticoat or half slip for cool comfort. Add a few pieces in colors to match your basic wardrobe color for spring. A reader writes- -

Dear Miss Blair:

I am in my late thirties and for the first time in years plan to buy a good supply of new lingerie. What would you say would be a basic group to start off with? How many slips for example?

Plan your lingerie wardrobe as a bride usually does- - -have at least six slips and add a few petticoats as well. Choose well-fitting bras and foundations- -I would say six bras and at least four foundations. Of course, they can be selected in colors you prefer--white or pink but have one set in black or navy blue whichever you wear more and then perhaps one set in another color such as the new soft beige, blue, maize or geranium tones.

Camembert cheese and crackers make an ideal accompaniment for winter fruit salad, made by mixing diced apples and pears, halved seeded grapes, diced pascal celery and crisp greens. Add French dressing and toss lightly.

Sure sign of spring in Monroe is the presentation of the new members of the Junior Charity League. This year's provisional class is shown in the pictures on the Society front page today. Following a course of instruction designed to acquaint them with the services of the group to the community, the new members assist in the various departments of the League and are accepted into active membership on the completion of a successful provisional year.

Traditional in the League is the party honoring the new members, which is hosted by the incoming and outgoing presidents. This year's party was held last week in the home of FRANCES ADCOCK, outgoing president, with JOAN SAGER, co-hostess. Frances was wearing a black silk dressmaker suit, while Joan received in a black and white printed silk costume suit. . . . They greeted their guests in the living room, where spring arrangements of white quince used with jonquils and bridal wreath were seen.

Red camellias and flowering quince were used in the family room, where new and active members gathered for a get-acquainted chat. . .The dining table was set up before the picture window in this room. Covered with a white cutwork cloth, it was centered with three silver Revere bowls of graduated sizes. They were filled with white flowering quince, jonquils, narcissus, and white camellias. . .CISSY RYAN, CLAYTON KELLOGG, and HAZEL CALLOWAY alternated at the silver coffee service. At the other end of the table was the silver chafing dish containing a creamed bacon and egg dip. Danish biscuits, pinwheel sandwiches and tiny doughnuts were also served.

Assisting in the courtesies were League board members. Twenty-four new members were present. Unable to attend were provisionals NANCY DAVIS and JOAN PIPES.

BOB CLAY planned a fabulous surprise for MERILYN's birthday. Her instructions were to pack some summer clothes and a bathing suit, bring her birth certificate, and meet him at the airport. They flew away on Tuesday, and word has filtered back that their unknown destination turned out to be Nassau. They'll be back Tuesday or Wednesday.

Leaving this weekend on a flying trip to Las Vegas, Nevada are KATHERINE and FRED COTTON. They are going with PAT and CHRIS HAYNE of Alexandria, and plan to be gone four or five days.

A great deal of local interest has centered in the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Kappa Delta sorority's Epsilon chapter at Louisiana State university. The occasion was marked with an all-day program in Baton Rouge yesterday. The Mother-Patroness club entertained with a coffee in the Kappa Delta room in the Panhellion in the morning, and the Baton Rouge alumnae association held a reception at the French House from two until four in the afternoon. The banquet last night was held in the Grand Ballroom of the Capitol Houst, JULIA FUQUA OBER, past national president of the sorority was speaker.

Going down from Monroe for the festivities were MABEL LANN and the TOMMY GRAYSONS. Mabel has been a Kappa Delta since 1911. Miriam Grayson is also a member of the group, and Tommy's mother, ANNIE BOYD GRAYSON, was a charter member of Epsilon. . .EULA PEARL MONTGOMERY has been a Kappa Delta for forty-seven years, though she was initiated at Judson college instead of LSU. . . . MARY BROADNAX of Bastrop is another Kappa Delta of long standing, and her daughters, MARY BARHAM and MILLICENT M'KOIN and her granddaughter, BETTY CARPENTER, are also sorority members. . .Active Kappa Deltas from Monroe now at LSU are DAWSON ANN FORMAN, JOAN MAGRUDER, KAY PERKINS, and JOAN COTTON.

And speaking of golden anniversaries, "MISS LIZZIE" M'GUIRE has been a daugh- of the American Revolution for fifty years. She received her half-century pin at the last meeting of the local chapter.

Young matrons of Monroe and a number of friends from Ruston were invited to a coffee Saturday morning honoring MRS. LAMAR BUFFINGTON (the former Dorothy Dell Barksdale), who has moved here from Ruston. Hostesses were MRS. ALLEN GUTHRIE of Ruston; MRS. GRAYSON GUTHRIE, JR., in whose home the party was held; and MRS. THOMAS MUNHOLLAND. Beautiful arrangments of pink camellias were used in the living room, where the hostesses stood with the honoree and her mother, MRS. ALLEN BARKSDALE of Ruston.

White camellias in a silver container centered the dining table, where MRS. AYLMER MONTGOMERY, SR., poured. Trays of dainty sandwiches, petit fours, and miniature butterscotch and pecan pies were passed. Those who assisted were MRS. G. A. BOYD, MRS. AYLMER MONTGOMERY, JR., FRAN GUTHRIE, MRS. J. HUNTER THATCHER, MRS. RYAN SARTOR.

Guests lingered in the hospitable family room, where tall white gladiolas were placed on a low table before the wide window. At each end of the mantel were twin arrangments of narcissus and other spring flowers. About sixty ladies called during the morning to meet Dorothy Dell.

BETTY MOORE and EVELYN COLE entertained with two bridge luncheons this week, on Wednesday and on Friday. Individual tables, linen-covered and centered with camellias, were set up in the living room and the den, which were decorated with spring blossoms. The hostesses served creamed shrimp in patty shells, with asparagus and hot rolls. Cheese cake with strawberries was dessert. Twenty friends enjoyed the luncheon, with four tables playing bridge throughout the afternoon.

On Friday evening, CAROLLYN GWIN surprised BENNIE with a party on his birthday. The affair was a small dinner dance in the private dining room of a local restaurant. The table was centered with spring flowers and piled with gay and improbable gifts. Ten friends enjoyed the evening with the Gwins.

A full house was that of the JOHN MULLENS last weekend. Marge's mother and sister, MRS. GEORGE RENDER of Dallas and her daughter SUZANNE were here. And the MIKE CROWSONS (Peggy is another of Marge's sisters) passed through on their way to Baton Rouge and left KAY and BRAD with the Mullens.

The CONWAY CROSSLANDS also had houseguests last weekend. Visiting them were the RUSSELL FORDS, A. H. WRAPE, and the BILL MISENHEIMERS of Paragould, Arkansas. They were here from Saturday until Monday, and their hosts honored them with a small dinner at Bayou DeSiard country club Saturday night.

The JOE POWELLS had out of town visitors for the day on Thursday. MARTHA LOU SMITH and KATIE and MORRIS BARTEY flew in from Orange, Texas, and spent a few hours en route to Houston. Mavis, who learned Wednesday night they were coming, got up an informal, impromptu coffee to afford her friends here a chance to meet the guests.

Plans are already in the works for the Monroe Garden club flower show, which will be held at Bayou DeSiard country club April 28. Other garden clubs will be invited to enter certain classes of exhibits, and the show will be open to the public beginning at two in the afternoon. MARY ALICE LOFLIN is serving as chairman of the show, with JEANINE AMMAN as co-chairman.

For spring time, what more seasonal than a few verses from the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam?

Come, fill the cup, and in the fire of spring
Your winter-garment of repentance fling;
The Bird of Time has but a little way
To flutter—and the bird is on the wing.

A book of verses underneath the bough,
A jug of wine, a loaf of bread—and thou
Beside me, singing in the wilderness—
Oh, wilderness were paradise enough!

Ah, my beloved, fill the cup that clears
Today of past regrets and future fears:
Tomorrow!. . . Why, tomorrow I may be
Myself with yesterday's seven thousand years.

For some we loved, the loveliest and the best
That from his vintage rolling Time hath prest,
Have drunk their cup a round or two before,
And one by one crept silently to rest.

Ah, make the most of what we yet may spend,
Before we too into the dust descend;
Dust into dust, and under dust to lie,
Sans wine, sans song, sans singer—and sans end.

A POPULAR NEWCOMER to Monroe society is Mrs. Lamar Buffington, center, the former Miss Dorothy Dell Barksdale whose marriage last month was a prominent social event in Ruston. She is shown with her cousin, Miss Martha Charlotte Green and her mother, Mrs. Allen Barksdale, both of Ruston at the party given in her honor on Friday morning by Mrs. Grayson Guthrie, Mrs. Allen Guthrie, of Ruston and Mrs. Thomas Munholland. The Buffingtons are residing at 2605 Chaucer St.

Rebecca Davis Entertains At Party In Delhi

Miss Rebecca Davis entertained a group of her friends with a party recently at the Sun Recreation Hall in Delhi.

As the guests arrived they were asked to register and guess the number of buttons in a jar. Steve Echols won the prize for guessing the nearest number.

The room was gaily decorated in the Valentine motif. Red and white crepe paper streamers and a cluster of red and white balloons hung from the center of the ceiling and extending down from this were loops of red and white crepe paper. Valentine cupids and hearts were placed on the walls while the archway was decorated with loops of red and white paper with a large red heart hanging from the center.

Centering the refresnment table, which was covered with a white cloth, was a white cake decorated with red hearts and candles in red arrowhead holders. The table also held a crystal bowl filled with red punch.

Party games were played during the evening highlighted by a balloon - popping race. Present were the following: Tommy Bradley, Gene Dick, Steve Echols, Karen Adcock, Toby Williams, Richard Hurt, Joan Bellows, Vicky Lee, Jerry Benson, Cherly Sinclair, Jean Marie Woodard, Michael McVay, Blackie Floyd, Milton Jones, Red Floyd, Sherlyn Teer, Danny Wilson, Brenda Hixon, Dee Myers, Charlotte Bryant, Bobby Holmes, Edwin Gilliland, Sandra Hall, Bonnie Wilkes, Linda White, Jean Davis and Rebecca Davis.

Sure sign of spring in Monroe is the presentation of the new members of the Junior Charity League. This year's provisional class is shown in the pictures on the Society front page today. Following a course of instruction designed to acquaint them with the services of the group to the community, the new members assist in the various departments of the League and are accepted into active membership on the completion of a successful provisional year.

Traditional in the League is the party honoring the new members, which is hosted by the incoming and outgoing presidents. This year's party was held last week in the home of FRANCES ADCOCK, outgoing president, with JOAN SAGER, co-hostess. Frances was wearing a black silk dressmaker suit, while Joan received in a black and white printed silk costume suit. . . . They greeted their guests in the living room, where spring arrangements of white quince used with jonquils and bridal wreath were seen.

Red camellias and flowering quince were used in the family room, where new and active members gathered for a get-acquainted chat. . .The dining table was set up before the picture window in this room. Covered with a white cutwork cloth, it was centered with three silver Revere bowls of graduated sizes. They were filled with white flowering quince, jonquils, narcissus, and white camellias. . .CISSY RYAN, CLAYTON KELLOGG, and HAZEL CALLOWAY alternated at the silver coffee service. At the other end of the table was the silver chafing dish containing a creamed bacon and egg dip. Danish biscuits, pinwheel sandwiches and tiny doughnuts were also served.

Assisting in the courtesies were League board members. Twenty-four new members were present. Unable to attend were provisionals NANCY DAVIS and JOAN PIPES.

BOB CLAY planned a fabulous surprise for MERILYN's birthday. Her instructions were to pack some summer clothes and a bathing suit, bring her birth certificate, and meet him at the airport. They flew away on Tuesday, and word has filtered back that their unknown destination turned out to be Nassau. They'll be back Tuesday or Wednesday.

Leaving this weekend on a flying trip to Las Vegas, Nevada are KATHERINE and FRED COTTON. They are going with PAT and CHRIS HAYNE of Alexandria, and plan to be gone four or five days.

A great deal of local interest has centered in the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Kappa Delta sorority's Epsilon chapter at Louisiana State university. The occasion was marked with an all-day program in Baton Rouge yesterday. The Mother-Patroness club entertained with a coffee in the Kappa Delta room in the Panhellion in the morning, and the Baton Rouge alumnae association held a reception at the French House from two until four in the afternoon. The banquet last night was held in the Grand Ballroom of the Capitol Houst, JULIA FUQUA OBER, past national president of the sorority was speaker.

Going down from Monroe for the festivities were MABEL LANN and the TOMMY GRAYSONS. Mabel has been a Kappa Delta since 1911. Miriam Grayson is also a member of the group, and Tommy's mother, ANNIE BOYD GRAYSON, was a charter member of Epsilon. . .EULA PEARL MONTGOMERY has been a Kappa Delta for forty-seven years, though she was initiated at Judson college instead of LSU. . . . . MARY BROADNAX of Bastrop is another Kappa Delta of long standing, and her daughters, MARY BARHAM and MILLICENT M'KOIN and her granddaughter, BETTY CARPENTER, are also sorority members. . .Active Kappa Deltas from Monroe now at LSU are DAWSON ANN FORMAN, JOAN MAGRUDER, KAY PERKINS, and JOAN COTTON.

And speaking of golden anniversaries, "MISS LIZZIE" M'GUIRE has been a daughof the American Revolution for fifty years. She received her half-century pin at the last meeting of the local chapter.

Young matrons of Monroe and a number of friends from Ruston were invited to a coffee Saturday morning honoring MRS. LAMAR BUFFINGTON (the former Dorothy Dell Barksdale), who has moved here from Ruston. Hostesses were MRS. ALLEN GUTHRIE of Ruston; MRS. GRAYSON GUTHRIE, JR., in whose home the party was held; and MRS. THOMAS MUNHOLLAND. Beautiful arrangments of pink camellias were used in the living room, where the hostesses stood with the honoree and her mother, MRS. ALLEN BARKSDALE of Ruston.

White camellias in a silver container centered the dining table, where MRS. AYLMER MONTGOMERY, SR., poured. Trays of dainty sandwiches, petit fours, and miniature butterscotch and pecan pies were passed. Those who assisted were MRS. G. A. BOYD, MRS. AYLMER MONTGOMERY, JR., FRAN GUTHRIE, MRS. J. HUNTER THATCHER, MRS. RYAN SARTOR.

Guests lingered in the hospitable family room, where tall white gladiolas were placed on a low table before the wide window. At each end of the mantel were twin arrangments of narcissus and other spring flowers. About sixty ladies called during the morning to meet Dorothy Dell.

A POPULAR NEWCOMER to Monroe society is Mrs. Lamar Buffington, center, the former Miss Dorothy Dell Barksdale whose marriage last month was a prominent social event in Ruston. She is shown with her cousin, Miss Martha Charlotte Green and her mother, Mrs. Allen Barksdale, both of Ruston at the party given in her honor on Friday morning by Mrs. Grayson Guthrie, Mrs. Allen Guthrie, of Ruston and Mrs. Thomas Munholland. The Buffingtons are residing at 2605 Chaucer St.

BETTY MOORE and EVELYN COLE entertained with two bridge luncheons this week, on Wednesday and on Friday. Individual tables,. linen-covered and centered with camellias, were set up in the living room and the den, which were decorated with spring blossoms. The hostesses served creamed shrimp in patty shells, with asparagus and hot rolls. Cheese cake with strawberries was dessert. Twenty friends enjoyed the luncheon, with four tables playing bridge throughout the afternoon.

On Friday evening, CAROLLYN GWIN surprised BENNIE with a party on his birthday. The affair was a small dinner dance in the private dining room of a local restaurant. The table was centered with spring flowers and piled with gay and improbable gifts. Ten friends enjoyed the evening with the Gwins.

A full house was that of the JOHN MULLENS last weekend. Marge's mother and sister, MRS. GEORGE RENDER of Dallas and her daughter SUZANNE were here. And the MIKE CROWSONS (Peggy is another of Marge's sisters) passed through on their way to Baton Rouge and left KAY and BRAD with the Mullens.

The CONWAY CROSSLANDS also had houseguests last weekend. Visiting them were the RUSSELL FORDS, A. H. WRAPE, and the BILL MISENHEIMERS of Paragould, Arkansas. They were here from Saturday until Monday, and their hosts honored them with a small dinner at Bayou DeSiard country club Saturday night.

The JOE POWELLS had out of town visitors for the day on Thursday. MARTHA LOU SMITH and KATIE and MORRIS BARTEY flew in from Orange, Texas, and spent a few hours en route to Houston. Mavis, who learned Wednesday night they were coming, got up an informal, impromptu coffee to afford her friends here a chance to meet the guests.

Plans are already in the works for the Monroe Garden club flower show, which will be held at Bayou DeSiard country club April 28. Other garden clubs will be invited to enter certain classes of exhibits, and the show will be open to the public beginning at two in the afternoon. MARY ALICE LOFLIN is serving as chairman of the show, with JEANINE AMMAN as co-chairman.

For spring time, what more seasonal than a few verses from the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam?

Come, fill the cup, and in the fire of spring
Your winter-garment of repentance fling;
The Bird of Time has but a little way
To flutter—and the bird is on the wing.

A book of verses underneath the bough,
A jug of wine, a loaf of bread—and thou
Beside me, singing in the wilderness—
Oh, wilderness were paradise enough!

Ah, my beloved, fill the cup that clears
Today of past regrets and future fears:
Tomorrow!....Why, tomorrow I may be
Myself with yesterday's seven thousand years.

For some we loved, the loveliest and the best
That from his vintage rolling Time hath prest,
Have drunk their cup a round or two before,
And one by one crept silently to rest.

Ah, make the most of what we yet may spend,
Before we too into the dust descend,
Dust into dust, and under dust to lie,
Sans wine, sans song, sans singer—and sans end.

If food burns an enamelware utensil, shake soda into it, add cold water and let it stand awhile.

Rebecca Davis Entertains At Party In Delhi

Miss Rebecca Davis entertained a group of her friends with a party recently at the Sun Recreation Hall in Delhi.

As the guests arrived they were asked to register and guess the number of buttons in a jar. Steve Echols won the prize for guessing the nearest number.

The room was gaily decorated in the Valentine motif. Red and white crepe paper streamers and a cluster of red and white balloons hung from the center of the ceiling and extending down from this were loops of red and white crepe paper. Valentine cupids and hearts were placed on the walls while the archway was decorated with loops of red and white paper with a large red heart hanging from the center.

Centering the refresnment table, which was covered with a white cloth, was a white cake decorated with red hearts and candles in red arrowhead holders. The table also held a crystal bowl filled with red punch.

Central Baptist Church Scene Of Recent Nuptials

The Central Baptist Church was the scene Saturday evening of the marriage of Miss Glenda Sue Medaries and Dick Sanderson. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Glenn Medaries and Mr. Sanderson is the son of Mrs. Lillie McNabb, of Choudrant.

Smilax and palms formed the background for the arch of greenery entwined with white camellias and white gladioli, where the Reverend Charles B. Littleton heard their marriage vows at 7:30 o'clock.

Miss Charlotte Salley played pre-nuptial selections on the organ and accompanied Ben Carrol, soloist, as he sang, "Because," "Beloved" and "The Lord's Prayer".

Miss Betty Pesnell attended the bride as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Sue Lane Penuell and Miss Elizabeth Ann Van Matre. Their red taffeta dresses were identically styled with fitted bodices and waltz length skirts of red chiffon. The waists were defined with red velvet ribbons and the scooped necklines were draped in chiffon. They wore veiled hats and slippers to match their dresses, their bouquets were of white carnations. Debbie Pesnell, dressed like the other attendants, acted as flower girl. She carried a basket of rose petals. Ronnie Pesnell was ring bearer.

The bride was escorted by her father to the altar, where the bridegroom awaited with Edroe Pesnell who served him as best man.

Her gown was of white Chantilly lace over taffeta with a circlet neckline studded in sequins. Her veil was of illusion and lace reembroidered in sequins. She carried a cascade bouquet of white hyacinths centered with a white orchid on a white Bible.

John E. Upshurch and Bobby Brister ushered the wedding guests to their places.

RECEPTION

At the reception in the church annex after the ceremony, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a gown of pink lace with a corsage of white carnations. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who chose a gown of blue crepe with accessories of navy blue and a white corsage.

The bride's table was covered with a white cloth with an overskirt of white net. Red camellias were scattered about the table while a branched silver candelabra garlanded with white and red blossoms formed the centerpiece.

The bride wore a pink jersey sheath with pink accessories for her wedding trip to Hot Springs Ark. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Sanderson will make their home in Ruston.

Mrs. Porter Elected For Club President

The Y.W.C.A. on Jackson provided the setting of the Annual Luncheon of the Welcome Book Club for its February Meeting. Hearts and flowers carried out a colorful theme in the reception rooms. A display of dolls dressed in pastel colors formed the central decor in the meeting room. The buffet luncheon was served from a table centered with a pink net topiary surrounded by camellias. Each cover was marked with a specimen camellia corsage.

Following the luncheon Mrs. A. S. Gunter presided at the business meeting. Delegates and alternates to the District meeting were elected as follows: Mrs. E. A. Porter, Mrs. Dwight Petty, Mrs. L. F. Bewick, Mrs. J. N. Coon, Mrs. George V. Raymond and Mrs. A. S. Gunter.

Members were invited to attend the Tulane Conference on March 22. A contribution was made to the Heart Fund. The following were elected officers for 1959-60. President Mrs. E. A. Porter, Vice President Mrs. A. J. Speer, second Vice Pres. Mrs. James Horton, Corresponding Secretary Mrs. J. Norman Coon, Treasurer Mrs. George V. Raymond, Parliamentarian Mrs. W. B. Wheelis, Reporter Mrs. Q. O. Cummings, Historian Mrs. C. S. Swain.

Mrs. L. F. Bewick presented Mrs. Henson Coon, who reviewed "The World In Your Garden", an Encyclopedia of Plants edited by the National Geographic Magazine. In a delightful manner Mrs. Coon told of the origin and use of many of the plants in our gardens. Recipes calling for flowers and spices were read. She stressed our dependence upon other countries for many of our plants, particularly countries in South America. Members enjoying this occasion were: Mesdames L. F. Bewick, F. E. Black, Henson Coon, J. Norman Coon, O. O. Cummings, V. S. Garnett, A. S. Gunter, J. H. Hicks, James Horton, E. E. Lawson, Ben R. Oliphant J. D. Petty, G. W. Pomeroy, George V. Raymond, A. J. Speer, W. B. Wheelis, and Cyril Yancey.

Milliner William J., always one to create his own fashion rules, this spring vetoes flowers and veils for sculptured felt hats. In the daytime, he maintains, hats must cover the entire head, but for evening, the hair can show. "Let the hairdressers live," said the milliner. To prove his good faith, he dreamed up tiny hats of lace and organza which set off the coiffure as part of the decoration.

Opening lead: Two of ♠.

Opening lead: Two of ♠.

A very simple convention of defensive play is featured in today's hand.

There was little time consumed in getting to game. South, though he had a balanced hand with 22 high card points, refrained from opening with two no trump because it is not accepted practice to make that call with a hand containing a worthless double'on. North responded with one heart and South for his rebid had a choice between a jump shift to three clubs and a jump to three no trump. Observe that with 19 or 20 points, opener's proper rebid after a one over one response is two no trump, which is not completely forcing. With 21 points the rebid is three no trump and holding 22 points the jump shift is usually preferred. South was content however to make the more conservative bid and that concluded the auction.

West opened the deuce of spades and East's queen went to declarer's ace. On a low heart lead West ducked. Dummy's jack took the trick and East followed with the deuce. This play was very enlightening to West for it marked declarer with exactly two hearts. The deuce must have been played from a holding of three cards in the suit. If East held only two he would conventionally have played the higher card first.

Declarer then came off the dummy with a club, intending to play the nine from his hand and pass the trick into West, but East inserted an honor and South was compelled to win the trick. On the next heart led, West rose with the ace and realized from East's play that he could safely return a club. There was now no way for declarer to take more than eight tricks, for when East got in with the third round of clubs, a spade return yielded the defenders three tricks in that suit which with the club trick and the ace of hearts added up to a one trick set.

GRAPEFRUIT WAS ODD-BALL

At the turn of the century, the grapefruit had great snob appeal. It was a curiosity, and only the elite had tasted it in expensive restaurants in big cities.

Mrs. Porter Elected For Club President

The Y.W.C.A. on Jackson provided the setting of the Annual Luncheon of the Welcome Book Club for its February Meeting. Hearts and flowers carried out a colorful theme in the reception rooms. A display of dolls dressed in pastel colors formed the central decor in the meeting room. The buffet luncheon was served from a table centered with a pink net topiary surrounded by camellias. Each cover was marked with a specimen camellia corsage.

Following the luncheon Mrs. A. S. Gunter presided at the business meeting. Delegates and alternates to the District meeting were elected as follows: Mrs. E. A. Porter, Mrs. Dwight Petty, Mrs. L. F. Bewick, Mrs. J. N. Coon, Mrs. George V. Raymond and Mrs. A. S. Gunter.

Members were invited to attend the Tulane Conference on March 22. A contribution was made to the Heart Fund. The following were elected officers for 1959-60. President Mrs. E. A. Porter, Vice President Mrs. A. J. Speer, second Vice Pres. Mrs. James Horton, Corresponding Secretary Mrs. J. Norman Coon, Treasurer Mrs. George V. Raymond, Parliamentarian Mrs. W. B. Wheelis, Reporter Mrs. Q. O. Cummings, Historian Mrs. C. S. Swain.

Mrs. L. F. Bewick presented Mrs. Henson Coon, who reviewed "The World In Your Garden", an Encyclopedia of Plants edited by the National Geographic Magazine. In a delightful manner Mrs. Coon told of the origin and use of many of the plants in our gardens. Recipes calling for flowers and spices were read. She stressed our dependence upon other countries for many of our plants, particularly countries in South America. Members enjoying this occasion were: Mesdames L. F. Bewick, F. E. Black, Henson Coon, J. Norman Coon, O. O. Cummings, V. S. Garnett, A. S. Gunter, J. H. Hicks, James Horton, E. E. Lawson, Ben R. Oliphant J. D. Petty, G. W. Pomeroy, George V. Raymond, A. J. Speer, W. B. Wheelis, and Cyril Yancey.

Milliner William J., always one to create his own fashion rules, this spring vetoes flowers and veils for sculptured felt hats. In the daytime, he maintains, hats must cover the entire head, but for evening, the hair can show. "Let the hairdressers live," said the milliner. To prove his good faith, he dreamed up tiny hats of lace and organza which set off the coiffure as part of the decoration.

Opening lead: Two of ♠.

A very simple convention of defensive play is featured in today's hand.

There was little time consumed in getting to game. South, though he had a balanced hand with 22 high card points, refrained from opening with two no trump because it is not accepted practice to make that call with a hand containing a worthless doubleton. North responded with one heart and South for his rebid had a choice between a jump shift to three clubs and a jump to three no trump. Observe that with 19 or 20 points, opener's proper rebid after a one over one response is two no trump, which is not completely forcing. With 21 points the rebid is three no trump and holding 22 points the jump shift is usually preferred. South was content however to make the more conservative bid and that concluded the auction.

West opened the deuce of spades and East's queen went to declarer's ace. On a low heart lead West ducked. Dummy's jack took the trick and East followed with the deuce. This play was very enlightening to West for it marked declarer with exactly two hearts. The deuce must have been played from a holding of three cards in the suit. If East held only two he would conventionally have played the higher card first.

Declarer then came off the dummy with a club intending to play the nine from his hand and pass the trick into West, but East inserted an honor and South was compelled to win the trick. On the next heart led, West rose with the ace and realized from East's play that he could safely return a club. There was now no way for declarer to take more than eight tricks, for when East got in with the third round of clubs, a spade return yielded the defenders three tricks in that suit which with the club trick and the ace of hearts added up to a one trick set.

GRAPEFRUIT WAS ODD-BALL

At the turn of the century, the grapefruit had great snob appeal. It was a curiosity, and only the elite had tasted it in expensive restaurants in big cities.

Paris To Have Largest Spring Flower Show

Travelers to France this spring will have a change to see that Paris has its share of biggest as well as of spectaculars. Starting April 24, and lasting until May 3, the newly completed Palais de la Defense, the largest exhibition hall in the world, will welcome the International Floralia 1959, the largest collection of plants and flowers ever assembled in one place.

Open to tourists as well as to professional horticulturists, the show will encompass displays from almost every corner of the world, including as two of the biggest exhibitors the United States and Russia. There will be flowers and plants in both ornamental and industrial units, whole gardens reproduced as in their native territory; ornamental and fruit-bearing trees, tropical foliage and newly developed strains and varieties in almost every possible category. A special section will be devoted to the flower as it appears in art; another to perfumes extracted from flowers. A Turkish exhibit tracing the history of the rose from antiquity to the present day and displays of stamps and of famous tapestries which have incorporated floral themes will be some of the other contributions to the exposition. Outside the Palais, a garden consisting of 200,000 prize hyacinths and tulips sent from Holland will provide appropriate surroundings for the hall.

Approximately 80 countries will be represented; 3 million visitors are expected. The displays will be coordinated by a leading group of architects, landscape gardeners and decorators under the direction of Robert Joffet, chief administrator of parks and gardens for Paris.

ROOF WITHOUT WALLS

The Palais de la Defense, so named because of its location on the Rond-Point de la Defense, is, in its essence, a roof without walls. Its huge shell-like covering of prestressed concrete, measuring a world record 715 feet, shelters five glass enclosed levels inserted in a lightweight stainless steel network. The main story, measuring 27,510 square yards, is built around a central well, 123 feet in diameter, which, in the International Floralia, will be used for an enormous floral centerpiece dominating the proceedings.

The hall is big enough to cover the Place de la Concorde, or in U. S. terms, about 14 New York City blocks. The metal tubing in the scaffolding, placed end to end, would reach from Paris well beyound the English Channel. It has 131 entrances, seven of which can be used by the largest trucks, a heliport connecting with the two major airports of Paris, a 5,000 car parking lot, a post office, rooms available for meetings and conferences, and restaurants and snack-bars on every floor.

DIVISION OF EXHIBITS

The International Floralia will be divided into sections corresponding to the levels of the building. On the first level will be nursery gardens and the larger vegetation. On the second level, the fine arts section will include paintings by such masters as Dufy and the early-modern Vlaminck, and the contemporary Van Dongen, Domergue and Bezombes, as well as the exhibits devoted to stamps and tapestry. Level three will feature most of the French individual and group exhibitors and a hot house measuring 2,187 square yards with the finest orchids known to the world. The fourth level will be devoted to the displays from countries outside France, and the fifth to fashion and perfume shows, and presentations from some individual communities in France, such as Cannes, Nantes and Beziers. A small theatre on the fifth level will provide entertainment for evening visitors.

These will be taken to the show by delegates to the convention. All club members were urged to make plans to attend the show, and to visit the gardens in that part of the state that would be open to the public.

Mrs. Paul Davis, club president, had the secretary, Mrs. G. W. McGinty read the plans that Mrs. LaMonte Wright had formulated for the Ruston Flower Show that will be held sometime in March at Richies of Ruston.

The theme of the show will be "The Beauty of the Earth." General chairman is Mrs. Wright. Other committees are: Schedule, Mrs. B. H. Talbot; Staging, Mrs. Roy Fraser; Properties, Mrs. H. G. Sinclair and Mrs. Jack Brooks; Entries, Mrs. E. J. Mashaw and Mrs. R. L. Seegers; Classification; Mrs. H. E. Townsend; Placement, Mrs. B. H. Rainwater; Judges; Mrs. T. B. Henderson and Mrs. W. W. Durden, Jr.; Conservation, Mrs. Robert Wynn; Education, Mrs. O. L. Tucker; and Hospitality Mrs. P. M. Davis, Mrs. Sylvester Kirkland, Mrs. Roy Cook and Mrs. Cecil Crowley.

The program chairman, Mrs. Townsend, introduced Mr. Robert Tucker who gave a talk on "Birds." A lively discussion followed about the birds that are fed in the yards.

The hostesses served a congealed salad and coffee to the large crowd that attended the meeting.

St. Louis designers show sports pants from above the knee to midcalf. The briefest are short shorts, which look even shorter when worn with a loose pull-over. The longest shorts are "wading length," or just below the knee. Skimmer pants reach the calf.

'DEAR ABBY'

This Cat-Nip Is Strictly For Birds

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband has been getting our cat drunk and she seems to enjoy it but I am wondering if it's bad for her or not? He pours gin into her milk bowl and she licks it up in no time. She acts crazy, and dances and staggers around and finally falls asleep in a corner. My husband thinks this is very funny, but I'm afraid it could harm the cat. Can a cat take the habit? She waits for him by the door and doesn't leave his side until he gives her some gin in her milk. Please reply soon as she sleeps all the time and is losing her hair.

HELEN

DEAR HELEN: A cat can't "take" the habit unless someone GIVES it to her. Your husband has a warped sense of humor. Either see to it that your husband puts the cat on the wagon or give the cat to someone who will treat her humanely.

DEAR ABBY: Please forgive me for troubling you with another letter to read but I must thank you for the wonderful letter I received from you. I was afraid to open it as I thought you would tell me that a paralyzed man should not ask a woman to marry him. Can you realize the thrill I got when the letter said, "Go ahead and ask her." Boy, I was sitting on top of the world. You said I was "courageous" and if you say so, I am! You guessed it, she said "YES" and even asked me why I waited so long to ask her. You will never know how happy you have made me. Abby, I am going to spend the rest of my life making this wonderful little woman happy.

GRATEFUL

DEAR GRATEFUL: Your letter is the highest award I could hope to receive for writing this column. God bless you both!

DEAR ABBY: What do you do with a husband who makes you promise you will leave a party early, and then when you suggest leaving he tries to make it look like you are henpecking him and spoiling his fun? That is my husband. Every time this happens I promise myself I will not do it again — but I always do. Why?

HENPECKING WIFE

DEAR HEN: Because you love him.

The following papers were reported on by members: Consumer Education by Mrs. Oliver; Housing by Mrs. Herman Ragus; Nutrition by Mrs. Hamilton; and Home Management by Mrs. Wyly. Miss Mitchell Guest Speaker For Lambdas

Lambda Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma met for their regular quarterly meeting at the Mangham Methodist Church recently. The guests were welcomed by the Mangham members into the Recreation Room which was beautifully decorated with arrangements of camellias.

After the collect was read in unison, Mrs. Margaret Newman, President, called the meeting to order and conducted the business session. The roll call showed five members present from East Carroll Parish, six from Madison, and thirteen from Richland. Mrs. Bertha Rundell, vice-president and program chairman, introduced Miss Mary Moore Mitchell, Richland Parish librarian, who was the speaker for the day.

Miss Mitchell used for her subject: Administrative Women in Education. She emphasized three main topics for thought and discussion the status of women as compared to that of men in administrative positions in education, reasons for this status, and the possibilities for improving the status of women. Miss Mitchell quoted statistics which proved conclusively that opportunities for advancement are greater for men than for women. She pointed out that in a recent survey of successful men and women teachers that there was no basic difference in the characteristics of men and women teachers as groups, but that seven out of 10 administrators and supervisors were men while two out of 10 teachers were men. She went on to show that in our country it has taken some time for women to gain an opportunity for a liberal education and to achieve their present status in society.

Miss Mitchell gave a short review of the struggles of Mary Lyon, Susan B. Anthony, and Ella Flagg Young who were outstanding in their separate fields for women's rights. She mentioned a number of others who have more recently been outstanding in the field of education: Alice Lloyd, Martha Shull, Martha Berry, Mina Spiegel Rees, and a Louisiana teacher, Carmelite Janiver, and Louisiana State librarian, Miss Essie Martha Culver.

A brief discussion followed this report. Mrs. Rundell announced that Founders' Day will be observed at the next meeting which will be on April 12 in Tallulah. Mrs. Marguerite Sprague and Mrs. Josie Clawson of Tallulah will be initiated at that time.

A delicious salad plate was served by the Mangham members.

There's More To Education Than Books

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

CHICKASHA, Okla. (AP) — There's more to a college education than books, says Dr. Mary Lou Smelser, who occupies a unique position at the Oklahoma College for Women here.

Dr. Smelser is the Elsa Maxwell of Chickasha, the most famous party-giver, the meeter and greeter of most celebrities who pass through the town, the college, or the state.

She holds a doctorate in education, is a former teacher of physical education at the University of Michigan, and at present teaches a course in "social fundamentals" to OCW freshmen.

"If a girl knows how to dress, use makeup, make friends and entertain gracefully, she acquires poise and self-confidence that make her a better student," says Dr. Smelser.

The new, youthful president of the college, Dr. Freeman H. Beets, goes along with this theory. As a result, the OCW student body has a high charm quotient as well as a scholastic standing nationally recognized as good.

A native Oklahoman, Dr. Smelser came back to OCW several years ago and built a home just off campus which has become the favorite social center of students, faculty and townspeople. Girls who enroll as freshmen at the college always find the door open. When a group is invited for a meal or a weekend, the girls get a concentrated course in how a perfectly appointed home is run, and how an accomplished and gracious hostess operates.

At times Dr. Smelser has doubled as dietician and physical education instructor at the college. A former tennis and softball champion, she still can slam a fast serve across the net and sets a fast pace for the students in any athletic endeavor.

A Backseat Driver Serves Sound Purpose

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)— Backseat driving serves a sound purpose if it's done when the man or woman behind the wheel is wool-gathering, according to a psychiatrist.

Dr. Louis J. West, who recently steered a New York disc jockey through 200 sleepless hours, explained that the nagging should be of sufficient intensity to raise the driver's ire.

Otherwise, the driver's alertness won't be heightened. The University of Oklahoma medical expert said this is so because anger brings the "dreamer" back to reality—the task at hand.

Dr. West cautioned against nagging at a driver who is actually sleepy, not merely inattentive. In such a case he suggests that backseat drivers speak softly, inducing the driver to pull off the road for sleep.

For driving, riding, or whatever the circumstance, sleeping is the only thing to do when you can't stay awake, Dr. West said.

"Men and women abuse themselves all too often by looking on sleep deprivation in an all too casual way. If you must stay awake longer than usual, ask yourself if it's worth the risk involved."

Dr. West said science hasn't spelled out all the risks, since sleep remains one of the great biological mysteries. But he noted that science generally accepts the layman's notion that the brain "recharges" itself through sleep.

How much sleep you need and when you get it depends on your type, for, according to Dr. West, there are "morning" and "evening" types of sleepers.

The "morning" type, he said, is bright-eyed and bushy-tailed the minute the alarm goes off. This type also is cheerful through breakfast and full of get-up-and-go while the sun is high.

But when the sun fades, this type follows suit. Biologically, he heads for bed early in the evening.

At day's start, the "evening" type, according to Dr. West, has a terrible time getting out of bed. He said this type usually needs a couple cups of coffee to get the eye-lids half-mast and tends to be grumpy until afternoon.

When the sun's on the wane, the "evening" type gets full of zip, cheerful and wide-eyed.

There's More To Education Than Books

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

CHICKASHA, Okla. (AP) — There's more to a college education than books, says Dr. Mary Lou Smelser, who occupies a unique position at the Oklahoma College for Women here.

Dr. Smelser is the Elsa Maxwell of Chickasha, the most famous party-giver, the meeter and greeter of most celebrities who pass through the town, the college, or the state.

She holds a doctorate in education, is a former teacher of physical education at the University of Michigan, and at present teaches a course in "social fundamentals" to OCW freshmen.

"If a girl knows how to dress, use makeup, make friends and entertain gracefully, she acquires poise and self-confidence that make her a better student," says Dr. Smelser.

The new, youthful president of the college, Dr. Freeman H. Beets, goes along with this theory. As a result, the OCW student body has a high charm quotient as well as a scholastic standing nationally recognized as good.

A native Oklahoman, Dr. Smelser came back to OCW several years ago and built a home just off campus which has become the favorite social center of students, faculty and townspeople. Girls who enroll as freshmen at the college always find the door open. When a group is invited for a meal or a weekend, the girls get a concentrated course in how a perfectly appointed home is run, and how an accomplished and gracious hostess operates.

At times Dr. Smelser has doubled as dietician and physical education instructor at the college. A former tennis and softball champion, she still can slam a fast serve across the net and sets a fast pace for the students in any athletic endeavor.

Jewelry Keyed To New Clothes

Beauty and fashion meet in one of the most welcome collusions of the season as the simple, new clothes are paired with exciting new jewelry for spring.

The fresh, new look of spring jewelry stems from several sources. There are new colors and, brand-new color effects, new lengths, sizes and shapes in everything from necklaces to pins, new motifs and some new points of view about jewelry in the spring scene.

The continuing and flattering trend of open, easy necklines, standing away from the neck, puts necklaces on strong display. These new necklaces sparkle in a brand new effect, such as shorter lengths, new combinations of different sizes and shapes of stones and beads, different colors and different materials all featured together. The beautiful, bunchy chokers are born for the new suit necklines Graduated color in the necklaces makes blending them with spring clothes, especially prints, an easy delight. The lovely, varied look of large and small, smooth and odd-shaped beads used together, of beads and pearls and chains and stones all mixed with a seemingly careless hand gives a fresh and lovely touch to these necklaces.

Fashion's attention has wandered to sleeves this season, and this "above board" emphasis has kept pins of all kinds squarely in the spotlight. Big, bold beauties are worn half hidden under suit collars; they are worn perched on the bigger sleeves themselves to call attention to the new line; they are spotted at necklines, under the bosom, worn in pairs or separately. The newest trend is toward pairs of smaller pins, either in classical or whimsical or abstract motifs. These pretty pairs are worn in many ways and places, chief among them on the simple collars of the new shirtwaist dresses to give a charmingly "different" look to this old fashion favorite.

Suits, with their shortened sleeves, have sparked some new jewelry looks, and the big, beautiful, bulky bracelet, often featuring stones or gems to blend with the costume, is a top favorite worn with short, short gloves.

And flowers — in every size, shape, variety and form that nature or jewelry designers could devise — bloom all over the fashion scene in one of the most frankly beautiful and charming jewelry notes of the season. Everything from enameling to beading creates a real-life effect. Flower shapes are carved of ivory or jade, shaped of gold or silver, set with stones or gems, to give a beautiful, glorious, colorful sparkle to the softly feminine new clothes.

Homemakers make the rounds of stores when it comes to buying meat for the family dinner table, say Michigan State University home economists.

Jewelry Keyed To New Clothes

Beauty and fashion meet in one of the most welcome collusions of the season as the simple, new clothes are paired with exciting new jewelry for spring.

The fresh, new look of spring jewelry stems from several sources. There are new colors and brand-new color effects, new lengths, sizes and shapes in everything from necklaces to pins, new motifs and some new points of view about jewelry in the spring scene.

The continuing and flattering trend of open, easy necklines, standing away from the neck, puts necklaces on strong display. These new necklaces sparkle in a brand new effect, such as shorter lengths, new combinations of different sizes and shapes of stones and beads, different colors and different materials all featured together. The beautiful, bunchy chokers are born for the new suit necklines Graduated color in the necklaces makes blending them with spring clothes, especially prints, an easy delight. The lovely, varied look of large and small, smooth and odd-shaped beads used together, of beads and pearls and chains and stones all mixed with a seemingly careless hand gives a fresh and lovely touch to these necklaces.

Fashion's attention has wandered to sleeves this season, and this "above board" emphasis has kept pins of all kinds squarely in the spotlight. Big, bold beauties are worn half hidden under suit collars; they are worn perched on the bigger sleeves themselves to call attention to the new line; they are spotted at necklines, under the bosom, worn in pairs or separately. The newest trend is toward pairs of smaller pins, either in classical or whimsical or abstract motifs. These pretty pairs are worn in many ways and places, chief among them on the simple collars of the new shirtwaist dresses to give a charmingly "different" look to this old fashion favorite.

Suits, with their shortened sleeves, have sparked some new jewelry looks, and the big, beautiful, bulky bracelet, often featuring stones or gems to blend with the costume, is a top favorite worn with short, short gloves.

And flowers — in every size, shape, variety and form that nature or jewelry designers could devise — bloom all over the fashion scene in one of the most frankly beautiful and charming jewelry notes of the season. Everything from enameling to beading creates a real-life effect. Flower shapes are carved of ivory or jade, shaped of gold or silver, set with stones or gems, to give a beautiful, glorious, colorful sparkle to the softly feminine new clothes.

Homemakers make the rounds of stores when it comes to buying meat for the family dinner table, say Michigan State University home economists.

MRS. GENE BARHAM

Sylvia Gates, Gene Barham Repeat Vows In Afternoon

On Sunday, February 22, the Queensborough Baptist Church was the scene of the afternoon marriage of Miss Sylvia Gates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence E. Gates of Shreveport, and Gene Barham, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Barham of Monroe.

The impressive double ring ceremony which took place at 3 o'clock was performed by the Reverend Stanley Jordan, before a background of white Dutch Iris fern and cathedral tapers in white standards entwined with soft greenery. The chancel rail was outlined with glowing candles. White stain ribbons marked the family pews.

The candles were lighted by Miss Geraldene Barham of Monroe, sister of the groom, and Miss Mary Lynn Harris of Rogers, Arkansas, cousin of the bride. Presiding at the guest books at entrances to the sanctuary were Miss Betty Carter and Miss Beverly Bush.

Mrs. A. B. Millwee at the organ rendered a program of nuptial music. She accompanied Mr. Larry Gates, brother of the bride, as he sang, "Through the Years," "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," and at the close of the ceremony, "The Wedding Prayer".

Mr. Mike Cage of Monroe served Mr. Barham as best man. The usher-groomsmen were: Sidney Worthy of Baton Rouge, Jerry Dyson of Ruston, Don LeLoach of New Orleans, Mack Hunt of West Monroe, Kenneth Caldwell, and Larry Gates.

The bride was preceded to the altar by her maid of honor, Miss Jerry Lasiter bridesmaids, Miss Patricia Osborne, cousin of the bride, Miss Jo Lasiter and Miss Peggy Carter, Miss Vicky Polancic of Arcadia, Miss Martha Harper and Miss Carolyn Humble of West Monroe. The attendants wore identical gowns of aqua lustrous satin designed with a wide band forming an empire bodice over a very full ballet length skirt featuring a wide bow caught up at the hemline in front. They wore matching satin slippers and flattering bandeaux of aqua satin. They carried bouquets of yellow Dutch Iris with satin streamers.

The bride escorted down the aisle by her father who gave her in marriage, wore a gown of imported candlelight silk satin created along princess lines. The fitted bodice swatched in hand clipped Italian lace embellished in tiny seed pearls and crystals was fashioned with a scalloped sweetheart neckline and long tapering sleeves ending in lily points over the hands. The graceful gored skirt falling in soft unpressed pleats formed a pouff back ending in a chapel train. Her tiered veil of imported silk illusion fell from a demi-hat of tiny seed pearls. She wore pearl ear drops a gift from the groom. Her bouquet was a yellow throated white orchid with cascading snow white carnations and satin loops.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Gates chose a dusty rose lace gown designed with bustle back of chiffon. She wore a small flower hat and a corsage of pink garnet roses. Mrs. Barham was attired in a soft shade of pink wool with satin and jewel trim. She wore a matching spring clocke. Her corsage, too, was of pink garnet roses.

Following the wedding, a reception was held in the church parlors. Receiving with the newly married couple were their mothers and bridal attendants.

Arrangements of white carnations and fern were placed at vantage points.

The bride's table covered with a crisp white organdy floor length cloth over white satin held at one end a silver punch service, at the other a tiered wedding confection. The table was centered with branched silver candelabra holding burning white tapers accented with garlands of white carnations and the bride's bouquet.

Mrs. J. E. Hanson greeted the guests. Mrs. L. M. Ratcliff presided at the punch service and Mrs. Tommy Lewis served the cake. Assisting in hostess courtesies were Mrs. L. M. Truly, Mrs. G. W. Caldwell, Mrs. J. C. Blount, Mrs. C. D. Rhodes, Miss Judy Shellhammer, Miss Sharon Ferguson and Miss Theresa Meredity.

Three tiny maidens, dressed in pastel shades of organdy, Sharon Williams, Susan and Debbie Allred distributed dainty bags of rice.

When Mr. and Mrs. Barham left on their wedding trip to the Gulf Coast she was wearing a suit of Italian brocade in a design of new spring colors. Her accessories were of pearlized bone and her becoming hat matched the green of her suit. A white orchid was pinned at her shoulder.

The young couple will reside in New Orleans.

Out of town guests included: Mrs. J. T. Odom of Jena, grandmother of the bride and Mrs. Vesta Lolley, grandmother of the groom; Mr. H. K. Wesson of Stigler, Oklahoma, greatuncle of the bride and his daughter, Dr. Syble Anderson of Tulsa, and his son, Dr. Harold Wesson of Chelsea, Oklahoma; Mr. Bill Preddy of Chelsea; Mr. and Mrs. L. W. MRS. GENE BARHAM

Sylvia Gates, Gene Barham Repeat Vows In Afternoon

On Sunday, February 22, the Queensborough Baptist Church was the scene of the afternoon marriage of Miss Sylvia Gates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence E. Gates of Shreveport, and Gene Barham, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Barham of Monroe.

The impressive double ring ceremony which took place at 3 o'clock was performed by the Reverend Stanley Jordan, before a background of white Dutch Iris fern and cathedral tapers in white standards entwined with soft greenery. The chancel rail was outlined with glowing candles. White stain ribbons marked the family pews.

The candles were lighted by Miss Geraldene Barham of Monroe, sister of the groom, and Miss Mary Lynn Harris of Rogers, Arkansas, cousin of the bride. Presiding at the guest books at entrances to the sanctuary were Miss Betty Carter and Miss Beverly Bush.

Mrs. A. B. Millwee at the organ rendered a program of nuptial music. She accompanied Mr. Larry Gates, brother of the bride, as he sang, "Through the Years," "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," and at the close of the ceremony, "The Wedding Prayer".

Mr. Mike Cage of Monroe served Mr. Barham as best man. The usher-groomsmen were: Sidney Worthy of Baton Rouge, Jerry Dyson of Ruston, Don LeLoach of New Orleans, Mack Hunt of West Monroe, Kenneth Caldwell, and Larry Gates.

The bride was preceded to the altar by her maid of honor, Miss Jerry Lasiter bridesmaids, Miss Patricia Osborne, cousin of the bride, Miss Jo Lasiter and Miss Peggy Carter, Miss Vicky Polancic of Arcadia, Miss Martha Harper and Miss Carolyn Humble of West Monroe. The attendants wore identical gowns of aqua lustrous satin designed with a wide band forming an empire bodice over a very full ballet length skirt featuring a wide bow caught up at the hemline in front. They wore matching satin slippers and flattering bandeaux of aqua satin. They carried bouquets of yellow Dutch Iris with satin streamers.

The bride escorted down the aisle by her father who gave her in marriage, wore a gown of imported candlelight silk satin created along princess lines. The fitted bodice swatched in hand clipped Italian lace embellished in tiny seed pearls and crystals was fashioned with a scalloped sweetheart neckline and long tapering sleeves ending in lily points over the hands. The graceful gored skirt falling in soft unpressed pleats formed a pouff back ending in a chapel train. Her tiered veil of imported silk illusion fell from a demi-hat of tiny seed pearls. She wore pearl ear drops a gift from the groom. Her bouquet was a yellow throated white orchid with cascading snow white carnations and satin loops.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Gates chose a dusty rose lace gown designed with bustle back of chiffon. She wore a small flower hat and a corsage of pink garnet roses. Mrs. Barham was attired in a soft shade of pink wool with satin and jewel trim. She wore a matching spring clocke. Her corsage, too, was of pink garnet roses.

Following the wedding, a reception was held in the church parlors. Receiving with the newly married couple were their mothers and bridal attendants.

Arrangements of white carnations and fern were placed at vantage points.

The bride's table covered with a crisp white organdy floor length cloth over white satin held at one end a silver punch service, at the other a tiered wedding confection. The table was centered with branched silver candelabra holding burning white tapers accented with garlands of white carnations and the bride's bouquet.

Mrs. J. E. Hanson greeted the guests. Mrs. L. M. Ratcliff presided at the punch service and Mrs. Tommy Lewis served the cake. Assisting in hostess courtesies were Mrs. L. M. Truly, Mrs. G. W. Caldwell, Mrs. J. C. Blount, Mrs. C. D. Rhodes, Miss Judy Shellhammer, Miss Sharon Ferguson and Miss Theresa Meredity.

Three tiny maidens, dressed in pastel shades of organdy, Sharon Williams, Susan and Debbie Allred distributed dainty bags of rice.

When Mr. and Mrs. Barham left on their wedding trip to the Gulf Coast she was wearing a suit of Italian brocade in a design of new spring colors. Her accessories were of pearlized bone and her becoming hat matched the green of her suit. A white orchid was pinned at her shoulder.

The young couple will reside in New Orleans.

Out of town guests included: Mrs. J. T. Odom of Jena, grandmother of the bride and Mrs. Vesta Lolley, grandmother of the groom; Mr. H. K. Wesson of Stigler, Oklahoma, greatuncle of the bride and his daughter, Dr. Syble Anderson of Tulsa, and his son, Dr. Harold Wesson of Chelsea, Oklahoma; Mr. Bill Preddy of Chelsea; Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Modern Career Women

No more bridge luncheons for Mrs. Exeter. This chic matron, like millions of others across the country, has given up afternoon parties for a paying job. With her children grown and married, she has discovered that it's fun to bring home a pay check, to meet new and interesting people, to develop new talents.

A change of pace as definite as this requires a change of wardrobe, and plenty of women are making their own softly tailored new outfits, suitable for their new jobs. They select flattering pastel tones, rather than black or navy. They pick patterns with gentle detail and flattering lines.

A perfect dress for business is one of light- weight wool tweed, in warm beige. A shade such as this, brightened with white accessories and gold jewelry, is flattering even to women with gray hair. It is designed with the touch of a couturier, made from a standard pattern and cut on slender lines with a becoming draped V neckline. The wrapped skirt provides freedom of motion. The stand-away neckline is a perfect foil for jewelry.

Local sewing center experts point out that a soft wool such as this requires "stay" stitching, so it will not stretch out of shape. It also should be lined, to prevent sagging and stretching. Remember to press each section as it is completed, so each piece will be smooth before it is joined to the next.

Such a dress may be worn in chilly weather under furs, or go late into spring as a street dress. Its timeless lines will not soon go out of date.

Mon-Ami Club Holds Regular February Meet

The regular meeting of the Mon-Ami Newcomers Club, was held February 12 in the Flamingo Room of the Hollywood Restaurant. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Victor March and Mrs. John Summerfield.

Modern Career Women

No more bridge luncheons for Mrs. Exeter.

This chic matron, like millions of others across the country, has given up afternoon parties for a paying job. With her children grown and married, she has discovered that it's fun to bring home a pay check, to meet new and interesting people, to develop new talents.

A change of pace as definite as this requires a change of wardrobe, and plenty of women are making their own softly tailored new outfits, suitable for their new jobs. They select flattering pastel tones, rather than black or navy. They pick patterns with gentle detail and flattering lines.

A perfect dress for business is one of light- weight wool tweed, in warm beige. A shade such as this, brightened with white accessories and gold jewelry, is flattering even to women with gray hair. It is designed with the touch of a couturier, made from a standard pattern and cut on slender lines with a becoming draped V neckline. The wrapped skirt provides freedom of motion. The stand-away neckline is a perfect foil for jewelry.

Local sewing center experts point out that a soft wool such as this requires "stay" stitching, so it will not stretch out of shape. It also should be lined, to prevent sagging and stretching. Remember to press each section as it is completed, so each piece will be smooth before it is joined to the next.

Such a dress may be worn in chilly weather under furs, or go late into spring as a street dress. Its timeless lines will not soon go out of date.

WHERE WILDLIFE, OIL ABOUND

Marshlands

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Information included in this story of the Louisiana marsh was obtained in interviews with biologists of the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission. Staff Writer Sam Hanna accompanied biologists by plane and boat on a field trip in the marsh. Photos were provided by the commission.)

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

Louisiana is unusual because of its complexity of people and their customs and because it is a state divided in its thinking by hills and bayous and swamps.

Entirely different areas breed entirely different people who compose the populace of Louisiana.

Yet, the Pelican State has still another side, one so different from the north and south sections that it's like a state within itself.

Actually, it's like another world rather than a state, for no area can compare with the Louisiana marsh.

BROAD MARSH

Considered the largest in the world, the marsh stretches 250 miles across the belly of Louisiana from Mississippi to Texas.

It is a land of mud and water and cattails and cane, quiet and mysterious, abundant in wildlife and rich in oil, harnessed but not conquered.

It represents a dozen things to millions of people.

To some the marsh is land of sport; to others it is their livelihood. To a state it is its main source of income.

And because the marsh has meant so much to so many, civilization has taken its toll.

At present the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission considers the marsh has reached its most critical stage, mainly because of industrial development.

A rich bed of oil lying beneath the marsh surface attracted man like the marine industry never dreamed of.

That meant the marsh had to be converted into a navigable stream and scores of canals were dug as man made his pitch for the riches beneath the earth.

Today biologists are faced with a problem far more serious than the increase of nutria and the decline of muskrat. Study has taught them that salt - water intrusion is the basic threat to the over-all wildlife picture of the marsh.

ORIGINALLY

Originally, the marsh was a land of fresh water, providing ideal habitat for waterfowl, shrimp, oysters, fish and fur bearing animals that built the largest fur business in the world.

Following the discovery of oil, however, canals cut through the shallow marsh to wells, let salt water seep in from the Gulf of Mexico.

As a result, natural vegetation is damaged and industries like the shrimp and oyster businesses are hurt, ducks and geese are forced to go elsewhere and man in general feels the bite of the suffering marsh.

Wild Life and Fisheries biologists, while studying the complex problems brought on by salt-water intrusion, point to a program of cooperation with the oil industry as one solution.

They encourage the industry to establish water control areas where canals are dug. In short, levees are built to keep the salt water out.

This, explains Commission biologist Ted Ford, is perhaps the strongest weapon the commission can fire in defense of the marsh.

Ford points to a deep water channel at Calcasieu Lake as an example in which salt-water intrusion changed the marsh vegetation.

EXAMPLE

Best example of what the commission has done in the way of blocking salt water intrusion can be seen on the 83,000 - acre Rockefeller Refuge below Lake Charles.

Although Hurricane Audrey ripped through the refuge in Cameron parish less than two years ago, millions of ducks and geese wintered there this year.

Audrey practically wrecked the refuge, but today it is probably better than ever.

Biologist Richard Yancy, the commission's Refuge Division chief, attributes the construction of levees as the savior to the refuge's fresh water supply, permitting vegetation to grow.

He holds up this year's tremendous migration of waterfowl to Rockefeller as ample proof that the marsh responds readily to biological management.

Audrey not only destroyed the Rockefeller vegetation, but virtually wiped out the refuge's deer herd, and even its nutria and some alligators.

A trip around Rockefeller today submits no evidence of a shortage of nutria and Yancy says enforcement agents have difficulty with violators slipping into the refuge to kill alligators.

White tail deer, smaller than those of the Delta but equipped with big hoofs, are a strange sight as they wade the marsh.

The commission has three refuges and one public shooting area, Pass-A-Loutre, that receive the same management as Rockefeller. There are three federal refuges and a private one.

All total, there are 500,000 acres of refuges in the marsh.

PROGRESS

But while the commission makes progress on one hand, progress itself strikes a blow at wildlife on the other hand.

At present the U. S. Corps of Engineers has plans for three navigation streams, one that will link New Orleans with the Gulf, running 77 miles through the heart of the oyster country.

This particular canal is scheduled to be 40 feet deep with a 500-foot wide bottom and a 700-foot wide surface. Its over-all rightaway will take in a one-mile area.

The commission, although recognizing the industrial value to the City of New Orleans and the State of Louisiana, considers the canal as a "spoil - area" nevertheless.

Ford explains that the huge canal is expected to increase salt-water intrusion, in addition to knocking out a valuable stretch of oyster beds and waterfowl habitat.

Two other navigation proposals by the U. S. Engineers — the Barataria Bay Waterway and the Jefferson Seaway Project — will do virtually the same damage to wildlife.

The Barataria canal is planned for below New Orleans to the Gulf while the Jefferson project will start at Westwego and continue to Grand Isle.

NAVIGATION

All three canals are designed to provide navigation for industrial development.

To make the commission's headache worse, canals are being sought for a navigation stream from the Calcasieu River to the Atchafalaya River.

In the meantime, the commission has hopes of building additional levees in the continued battle to prevent salt water from ruining the marsh entirely.

And while the commission makes plans for one aspect of its problems, developments in the marsh are numerous.

For instance, in 1957 shrimp production dropped to its lowest level in recent years. Although complete reports are still being prepared, it is generally felt among biologists that the 1958 production will return to near its normal standard.

The shrimp industry, felt in North Louisiana only by those who recognize it at the dinner table, is an important one.

Meanwhile, the muskrat in the marsh has almost disappeared while the nutria is literally taking over the place.

Biologist John Newsom, the commission's Pittman - Robertson coordinator, believes the muskrat will return. Muskrats, according to Newsom, increase in cycles. By virtue of the same cycles of nature, they disappear or decline.

But, the biologists point out, the nutria has known no cycle in its short history in the Louisiana marsh.

Introduced into the state in the early 30's when a small number escaped into the marsh, the nutria, which is a South American rodent, has reproduced, gnawed and destroyed and now is generally considered a menace.

Trappers to date have had little luck in the nutria business, for pelts sell for only $1 each. Nutria meat brings only three cents a pound although some people have begun including it on their menus (tastes like rabbit).

While the marsh is of grave concern to the commission, biologists quickly point out that Louisiana has other wildlife problems equally serious, equally important.

It would seem that all the problems facing the Louisiana outdoorsman could be easily lost in the 4½ million acres of marshland. But, unfortunately, they're even bigger than the world's largest marsh.

Memorial To Horrors

By REINHOLD ENSZ

BERLIN (AP) — A secluded West Berlin side street harbors a little-known memorial to the horrors that were Nazi Germany.

The memorial is a villa-type building under constant armed guard. A formidable fence rings the place and at night it is bathed in floodlight.

The building's villa-type front is misleading. Beneath it is a vast network of a underground rooms which the Nazis once used as a communications center.

Today it is packed with millions of official documents which give eloquent testimony to what happened in Nazi Germany.

SORTING

Historians and clerks are still sorting and studying the documents, none of which is accessible to the general public.

The place is known as "the U.S. Document Center, Berlin." No one not even an American, can get information out of it without having his request approved by the French, British, West German or American governments.

One reason is that the building contains almost a complete record of the 10 million membership cards of the Nazi party, including the one which Adolf Hitler got. In these days, when many Germans are trying to forget the past, information about party membership could be dynamite.

The most interesting documents are the methodical records kept by the Nazi party's notorious "people's courts."

For example, on Aug. 11, 1942 —the year after Pearl Harbor— one of these people's courts decided to warn Germans against listening to foreign radio broad' casts. As its victim, the court chose a 17-year-old boy, Helmut Gunther Huebner of Hamburg. It found him guilty of listening to the British Broadcasting Corp. and ordered him beheaded. His parents got the executioner's bill: 300 reichs marks—$120.

BEHEADED

Then there was the case of the 21-year-old girl from Berlin who liked to tell jokes. In 1942 she told one joke too many and she was beheaded.

The joke: Adolf Hitler and his Luftwaffe boss, Hermann Goering, were viewing Berlin from its tall radio tower.

"What a beautiful city this is," Hitler exlaimed. "I would really like to do something wonderful for the Berliners."

Replied Goering: "Then, my fuehrer, why don't you jump off this tower?"

In another section of the center, there is a vast file that covers Hitler's infamous SS troops. The SS men were supposed to be perfect examples of the Nazis' much-advertised superman, so everything was recorded, even exhaustive family trees.

No SS man could marry unless he could prove that his wife came from pure Aryan stock. So the files bulge with family histories that go back hundreds of years.

FOLDER

Checking out these histories gave the Nazis a major headache, and delayed marriages for years.

Nearby was another folder — that of SS boss Heinrich Himmler. A bespectacled, ex-school teacher, Himmler was thoroughly imbued with the German passion for records. He kept a record of every pfennig that could possibly be charged to the SS. One of his items reads: "For sharpening of fingernail scissors—50 pfennige."

"That," comments the chief of the document center, Isaac Stone, of Boston, Mass., "just shows how petty-minded he was."

Mot of the document were found in West Germany during and after the end of World War II. The Nazis had ordered the party membership records destroyed, but the files were seized in Bavaria by the U.S. Army.

"The files had already been brought to a mill where they were to have been turned into pulp," says Stone. "But we were lucky and our soldiers got there in the nick of time."

WHAT'S IN A NAME

Vigil Is Supreme In Tiny Village

CUNDIYO, N.M. (AP)—Cundiyo is a tiny village hugging a slope in the foothills of the Sangre de Cristo Mountains of New Mexico.

It is only a dot in the vast spaces of the Southwest, but it ranks as a classic example of togetherness.

The village has one street, one telephone, six television sets, two grocery stores, a post office, one filling station and a human population of 81.

All 81 are related, all but three named Vigil.

The three exceptions in town are actually called "tourists." ...r name is Trujillo. In Cundiyo, ... not named Vigil is a ... In Cundiyo, there have ...lly nothing but Vigils ... 200 years.

Over the years, many Vigil sons have left but many imported wives and stayed. Thus the hard core, the capital of Vigilism, remains fastened in the tiny cluster of buildings clotted around a dust road 35 miles north of Santa Fe.

Cundiyo has two small churches a Catholic mission for the town's 78 Catholics and a Presbyterian church for the town's three Presbyterians. How did the Presbyterians sneak in?

"I don't know," says Mrs. Noberto Vigil. "That's Emiliano Vigil. Of the 23 families here, his is the only one which became Presbyterians."

Mrs. Noberto Vigil runs a combination post office and grocery and a rug-weaving loom on the side. Her husband runs the school bus to Pojoaque, 13 miles away.

COUNTRY DOCTOR

He Came With 98 Cent Medical Bag

By MARTIN MOON

FAYETTEVILLE, Tenn. (AP)— He came to Fayetteville with little more than a diploma and a 98-cent medical bag.

And in those penny-hard depression days, he began his long service ministering to the medical needs of his fellow Negroes.

For his service, Dr. L. M. Donalson, 51, has won praise and recognition.

But no honor can touch the one recently given him. His colleagues —all of them white—picked him to be 1960 president of the Lincoln County Medical Assn.

Nowhere else in the Southland does a Negro head such a white professional group.

How did Donalson react to his election?

He seemed somewhat embarbarrassed by the attention focused upon him.

"I'm just a country doctor trying to make a living," he says.

The doctor showed similar reticense about having the county's Negro hospital named after him.

When the Lincoln County Court announced that it would be known as the Donalson Hospital, He suggested:

"Call it the Booker T. Washington Hospital."

Naming the hospital for Donalson as well as his selection as association president-elect were accepted locally as the rightful thing to happen to a man of proved ability.

The white doctors who elected Donalson call the move routine. Young Dr. Lex Patrick, the current head of the association, explains that Donalson was a qualified member in good standing and it was about time he took over the president's chores. The election was without opposition.

The doctor's arrival in Fayetteville in 1932 after graduating from Meharry, a highly ranked Negro medical college at Nashville 85 miles away, is something of a local legend.

Donalson picked Fayetteville because it was small enough he could walk from patient to patient. He had no car and no hope of getting one.

Before boarding the bus in Nashville he bought his equipment: a 98-cent medical bag, one 40-cent roll of gauze, a roll of adhesive, one artery clamp and a stetheoscope. With that he set up a practice.

That practice led him — for six months on foot then in a borrowed car — to Negro homes in the town and for miles around. There were frequent stops at the offices of his new friends, the town's white doctors, who not only assisted in difficult operations but opened their supply rooms to him.

THE DESTRUCTIVE, Prolific Nutria

Lack of facilities didn't stop the need for operations.

"Most of them took surgery at home,"Dr. Donalson says. It was usually a good choice. The town's first Negro hospital, opened in 1936, was a rundown double tenement house with two beds.

Donalson put a request before the county court for a real hospital for Negroes. The court gave him an old dormitory from the white hospital, provided the Negroes could raise $500 to move the structure to the town's Negro section.

The newly established hospital was destroyed by the 1952 tornado.

Donalson went to the court again. This time it offered to pay rent on a house to be used as a temporary hospital.

His parents got the executioner's bill: 300 reichs marks—$120.

BEHEADED

Then there was the case of the 21-year-old girl from Berlin who liked to tell jokes. In 1942 she told one joke too many and she was beheaded.

The joke: Adolf Hitler and his Luftwaffe boss, Hermann Goering, were viewing Berlin from its tall radio tower.

"What a beautiful city this is," Hitler exlaimed. "I would really like to do something wonderful for the Berliners."

Replied Goering: "Then, my fuehrer, why don't you jump off this tower?"

In another section of the center, there is a vast file that covers Hitler's infamous SS troops. The SS men were supposed to be perfect examples of the Nazis' much-advertised superman, so everything was recorded, even exhaustive family trees.

No SS man could marry unless he could prove that his wife came from pure Aryan stock. So the files bulge with family histories that go back hundreds of years.

FOLDER

Checking out these histories gave the Nazis a major headache, and delayed marriages for years.

Nearby was another folder — that of SS boss Heinrich Himmler. A bespectacled, ex-school teacher, Himmler was thoroughly imbued with the German passion for records. He kept a record of every pfennig that could possibly be charged to the SS. One of his items reads: "For sharpening of fingernail scissors—50 pfennige."

"That," comments the chief of the document center, Isaac Stone, of Boston, Mass., "just shows how petty-minded he was."

Mot of the document were found in West Germany during and after the end of World War II. The Nazis had ordered the party membership records destroyed, but the files were seized in Bavaria by the U.S. Army.

"The files had already been brought to a mill where they were to have been turned into pulp," says Stone. "But we were lucky and our soldiers got there in the nick of time."

COUNTRY DOCTOR

He Came With 98 Cent Medical Bag

By MARTIN MOON

FAYETTEVILLE, Tenn. (AP)— He came to Fayetteville with little more than a diploma and a 98-cent medical bag.

And in those penny-hard depression days, he began his long service ministering to the medical needs of his fellow Negroes.

For his service, Dr. L. M. Donalson, 51, has won praise and recognition.

But no honor can touch the one recently given him. His colleagues —all of them white—picked him to be 1960 president of the Lincoln County Medical Assn.

Nowhere else in the Southland does a Negro head such a white professional group.

How did Donalson react to his election?

He seemed somewhat embarbarrassed by the attention focused upon him.

"I'm just a country doctor trying to make a living," he says.

The doctor showed similar reticense about having the county's Negro hospital named after him.

When the Lincoln County Court announced that it would be known as the Donalson Hospital, He suggested:

"Call it the Booker T. Washington Hospital."

Naming the hospital for Donalson as well as his selection as association president-elect were accepted locally as the rightful thing to happen to a man of proved ability.

The white doctors who elected Donalson call the move routine. Young Dr. Lex Patrick, the current head of the association, explains that Donalson was a qualified member in good standing and it was about time he took over the president's chores. The election was without opposition.

The doctor's arrival in Fayetteville in 1932 after graduating from Meharry, a highly ranked Negro medical college at Nashville 85 miles away, is something of a local legend.

Donalson picked Fayetteville because it was small enough he could walk from patient to patient. He had no car and no hope of getting one.

Before boarding the bus in Nashville he bought his equipment: a 98-cent medical bag, one 40-cent roll of gauze, a roll of adhesive, one artery clamp and a stetheoscope. With that he set up a practice.

That practice led him — for six months on foot then in a borrowed car — to Negro homes in the town and for miles around. There were frequent stops at the offices of his new friends, the town's white doctors, who not only assisted in difficult operations but opened their supply rooms to him.

Lack of facilities didn't stop the need for operations.

"Most of them took surgery at home," Dr. Donalson says. It was usually a good choice. The town's first Negro hospital, opened in 1936, was a rundown double tenement house with two beds.

Donalson put a request before the county court for a real hospital for Negroes. The court gave him an old dormitory from the white hospital, provided the Negroes could raise $500 to move the structure to the town's Negro section.

The newly established hospital was destroyed by the 1952 tornado.

Donalson went to the court again. This time it offered to pay rent on a house to be used as a temporary hospital.

WHERE WILDLIFE, OIL ABOUND
Marshlands

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Information included in this story of the Louisiana marsh was obtained in interviews with biologists of the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission. Staff Writer Sam Hanna accompanied biologists by plane and boat on a field trip in the marsh. Photos were provided by the commission.)

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

Louisiana is unusual because of its complexity of people and their customs and because it is a state divided in its thinking by hills and bayous and swamps.

Entirely different areas breed entirely different people who compose the populace of Louisiana.

Yet, the Pelican State has still another side, one so different from the north and south sections that it's like a state within itself.

Actually, it's like another world rather than a state, for no area can compare with the Louisiana marsh.

BROAD MARSH

Considered the largest in the world, the marsh stretches 250 miles across the belly of Louisiana from Mississippi to Texas.

It is a land of mud and water and cattails and cane, quiet and mysterious, abundant in wildlife and rich in oil, harnessed but not conquered.

It represents a dozen things to millions of people.

To some the marsh is land of sport; to others it is their livelihood. To a state it is its main source of income.

And because the marsh has meant so much to so many, civilization has taken its toll.

At present the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission considers the marsh has reached its most critical stage, mainly because of industrial development.

A rich bed of oil lying beneath the marsh surface attracted man like the marine industry never dreamed of.

That meant the marsh had to be converted into a navigable stream and scores of canals were dug as man made his pitch for the riches beneath the earth.

Today biologists are faced with a problem far more serious than the increase of nutria and the decline of muskrat. Study has taught them that salt - water intrusion is the basic threat to the over-all wildlife picture of the marsh.

ORIGINALLY

Originally, the marsh was a land of fresh water, providing ideal habitat for waterfowl, shrimp, oysters, fish and fur bearing animals that built the largest fur business in the world.

Following the discovery of oil, however, canals cut through the shallow marsh to wells, let salt water seep in from the Gulf of Mexico.

As a result, natural vegetation is damaged and industries like the shrimp and oyster businesses are hurt, ducks and geese are forced to go elsewhere and man in general feels the bite of the suffering marsh.

Wild Life and Fisheries biologists, while studying the complex problems brought on by salt-water intrusion, point to a program of cooperation with the oil industry as one solution.

They encourage the industry to establish water control areas where canals are dug. In short, levees are built to keep the salt water out.

This, explains Commission biologist Ted Ford, is perhaps the strongest weapon the commission can fire in defense of the marsh.

EXAMPLE

Best example of what the commission has done in the way of blocking salt water intrusion can be seen on the 83,000 - acre Rockefeller Refuge below Lake Charles.

Although Hurricane Audrey ripped through the refuge in Cameron parish less than two years ago, millions of ducks and geese wintered there this year.

Audrey practically wrecked the refuge, but today it is probably better than ever.

Biologist Richard Yancy, the commission's Refuge Division chief, attributes the construction of levees as the savior to the refuge's fresh water supply, permitting vegetation to grow.

He holds up this year's tremendous migration of waterfowl to Rockefeller as ample proof that the marsh responds readily to biological management.

Audrey not only destroyed the Rockefeller vegetation, but virtually wiped out the refuge's deer herd, and even its nutria and some alligators.

A trip around Rockefeller today submits no evidence of a shortage of nutria and Yancy says enforcement agents have difficulty with violators slipping into the refuge to kill alligators.

White tail deer, smaller than those of the Delta but equipped with big hoofs, are a strange sight as they wade the marsh.

The commission has three refuges and one public shooting area, Pass-A-Loutre, that receive the same management as Rockefeller. There are three federal refuges and a private one.

All total, there are 500,000 acres of refuges in the marsh.

PROGRESS

But while the commission makes progress on one hand, progress itself strikes a blow at wildlife on the other hand.

At present the U. S. Corps of Engineers has plans for three navigation streams, one that will link New Orleans with the Gulf, running 77 miles through the heart of the oyster country.

This particular canal is scheduled to be 40 feet deep with a 500-foot wide bottom and a 700-foot wide surface. Its over-all rightaway will take in a one-mile area.

The commission, although recognizing the industrial value to the City of New Orleans and the State of Louisiana, considers the canal as a "spoil - area" nevertheless.

Ford explains that the huge canal is expected to increase salt-water intrusion, in addition to knocking out a valuable stretch of oyster beds and waterfowl habitat.

Two other navigation proposals by the U. S. Engineers — the Barataria Bay Waterway and the Jefferson Seaway Project — will do virtually the same damage to wildlife.

The Barataria canal is planned for below New Orleans to the Gulf while the Jefferson project will start at Westwego and continue to Grand Isle.

NAVIGATION

All three canals are designed to provide navigation for industrial development.

To make the commission's headache worse, canals are being sought for a navigation stream from the Calcasieu River to the Atchafalaya River.

In the meantime, the commission has hopes of building additional levees in the continued battle to prevent salt water from ruining the marsh entirely.

And while the commission makes plans for one aspect of its problems, developments in the marsh are numerous.

For instance, in 1957 shrimp production dropped to its lowest level in recent years. Although complete reports are still being prepared, it is generally felt among biologists that the 1958 production will return to near its normal standard.

The shrimp industry, felt in North Louisiana only by those who recognize it at the dinner table, is an important one.

Meanwhile, the muskrat in the marsh has almost disappeared while the nutria is literally taking over the place.

Biologist John Newsom, the commission's Pittman - Robertson coordinator, believes the muskrat will return. Muskrats, according to Newsom, increase in cycles. By virtue of the same cycles of nature, they disappear or decline.

But, the biologists point out, the nutria has known no cycle in its short history in the Louisiana marsh.

Introduced into the state in the early 30's when a small number escaped into the marsh, the nutria, which is a South American rodent, has reproduced, gnawed and destroyed and now is generally considered a menace.

Trappers to date have had little luck in the nutria business, for pelts sell for only $1 each. Nutria meat brings only three cents a pound although some people have begun including it on their menus (tastes like rabbit).

While the marsh is of grave concern to the commission, biologists quickly point out that Louisiana has other wildlife problems equally serious, equally important.

It would seem that all the problems facing the Louisiana outdoorsman could be easily lost in the 4½ million acres of marshland. But, unfortunately, they're even bigger than the world's largest marsh.

Memorial To Horrors

By REINHOLD ENSZ

BERLIN (AP) — A secluded West Berlin side street harbors a little-known memorial to the horrors that were Nazi Germany.

The memorial is a villa-type building under constant armed guard. A formidable fence rings the place and at night it is bathed in floodlight.

The building's villa-type front is misleading. Beneath it is a vast network of a underground rooms which the Nazis once used as a communications center.

Today it is packed with millions of official documents which give eloquent testimony to what happened in Nazi Germany.

SORTING

Historians and clerks are still sorting and studying the documents, none of which is accessible to the general public.

The place is known as "the U.S. Document Center, Berlin." No one not even an American, can get information out of it without having his request approved by the French, British, West German or American governments.

One reason is that the building contains almost a complete record of the 10 million membership cards of the Nazi party, including the one which Adolf Hitler got. In these days, when many Germans are trying to forget the past, information about party membership could be dynamite.

The most interesting documents are the methodical records kept by the Nazi party's notorious "people's courts."

For example, on Aug. 11, 1942 —the year after Pearl Harbor— one of these people's courts decided to warn Germans against listening to foreign radio broad' casts. As its victim, the court chose a 17-year-old boy, Helmut Gunther Huebner of Hamburg. It found him guilty of listening to the British Broadcasting Corp. and ordered him beheaded. His parents got the executioner's bill: 300 reichs marks—$120.

LOOKS 'EM OVER

A WORD FOR THE IRISH

St. Matthew's High School won its first varsity athletic championship when Jim Mahoney's Irish won the district 2-A basketball title, and, regardless of Friday night's elimination by LaSalle of Olla in a bi-district playoff, this team of Irish cagers will long be remembered by followers of Monroe's Catholic school.

This school, older than most high schools of this section of the state at least, enjoys a long and colorful history that dates back to 1863, has a small but energetic and faithful student body, but had never before boasted a recognized champion in state high school athletics although basketball, for years, has been the major sport at St. Matthew's which has also supported football and baseball clubs.

So this little squad that includes Jimmy Tonore, Charles Biggar, Ab Elias, John Varino, Frankie Accardo, Sam Marsala, Buddy Embanato, Victor Zagone, Gerald Williams, and Roy Henderson deserves a place in any athletic Hall of Fame St. Matthew's may ever set up. And this school which had always campaigned in Class B makes its first claim to a state trophy in its first season in the higher "A" classification.

Elias, nursing an ankle injury, was missing from the district title clincher against Oak Grove but came back for the LaSalle game. Accardo has been ill with pneumonia for the past several days, but anxiously kept up with his club from his hospital bed.

Actually, these young men of St. Matthew's made their start five and six years ago when Truard A. Breard, whose closest claim to basketball action was in the intramural leagues of old Ouachita Junior College (Northeast State), heeded the urging of Jay Broussard, then Irish coach, to volunteer as coach of teams in the Monroe Recreation department's Midget and Peewee Leagues.

Tonore, a nephew of the late Jimmy Tonore, a fine basketball player in his own right and coach at St. Matthew's almost thirty years ago, and Elias started playing basketball for Breard when they were sixth graders. Their team von the Midget League championship and wa. undefeated. Now they're high school seniors. The remainder of the squad is composed of sophomores who began working together as a unit for Breard's Peewee club which was also coached by an air force sergeant named Whitaker.

Right now Breard is working with a peewee club that includes two fifth graders, and this man who finds time from his job as a departmental manager at one of Monroe's biggest business houses, thinks Coach Mahoney is going to enjoy having them on his club in a few more years.

This Catholic school was first organized by the Daughters of the Cross as St. Hyacinth's Academy, and it became St. Matthew's in 1922 when the congregation of St. Matthew's Catholic Church took control. The present St. Matthew's High building was erected a few years later and graduated its first class in 1929—six girls and four boys.

McKOLN VS. COOK

A fight that has been proposed for more than a year has finally been agreed upon, and onetime stablemates from the Bastrop camp of Larche Campbell will settle the argument of which is the better fighter when Clarence Cook and Johnny McKoin tangle at B. annd B. Arena here Tuesday night, March 10.

Cook, once an Oak Grove High School fistic flash, with the longer ring record against more impressive foes, may go into the arena slightly favored, but McKoin will claim an advantage at the Louisiana welterweight champion, a title he is defending for the first time since taking it from Al Boudreaux, the Westwego Frenchman who is clamoring for a rematch without heed.

Clarence was originally the star of Campbell's camp, and McKoin was developed after Cook disolved his contract with Campbell.

As sparmates not so long ago the two fought together in training. There have been stories of McKoin decking Cook in these practice scraps, and the fans have beer wanting to get them together to see if it can happen in public. Promotor August Baumgartner is setting up the fight ex - promoter Gus Kallio had been working toward before his retirement in December.

McKoin, who used to walk three miles to the Bastrop gym to work as Cook's sparring partner, took many a gym punching from Clarence, but the experience he got in these workouts now has Johnny squaring away against the man he used to help prepare for his fights. And McKoin in making his title defense against the more experienced Cook in the same ring where he made his first public fight appearance a few years ago.

CALLING ALL BOYS

Registration of all boys from eight to 17 years of age who desire to play baseball in Monroe's summer recreation program this year will begin tomorrow for leagues operated by Monroe Little League, Inc., through channels of the Monroe Recreation department.

Young athletes are invited to register at the Monroe Community Center on Catalpa street as follows:

Little League, eight through 12 years old.

Dixie League, 13 through 14 years old.

Pelican League, 15 through 17 years old.

The proposed Pelican League has not been officially determined for Monroe, but the board of directors of Little League, which also decides affairs here for Dixie League, is willing to work the circuit for older youth provided there are sufficiant sponsors for the clubs and enough interest among prospective players.

Player registrations will continue throughout March, and first tryouts for Little League and Dixie League are scheduled for April 1.

Sporting News Selects Howell All-American

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati tops an all - star basketball team announced Saturday by the Sporting News.

For the second straight year the "Big O" led the vote getting. The team was selected by a national panel of observers.

The first team is rounded out by Bailey Howell of Mississippi State, Bob Boozer of Kansas State, Jerry West of West Virginia and Don Hennon of Pittsburgh.

Second team members are Johnny Cox of Kentucky, Johnny Green of Michigan State, Alan Seiden of St. John's, Bob Ferry of St. Louis and Doug Moe of North Carolina.

TAKE SEC CROWN

Maroons Defeat Ole Miss, 23-16

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI) — Mississippi State University, denied a chance to compete in the NCAA tournament because of state segregation policy, won the Southeastern Conference basketball championship Saturday night by beating the University of Mississippi, 23-16, in a slow-moving-defensive game.

The win gave the Maroons a final record of 24 wins against a lone loss to powerful Auburn. State finished the season with an SEC mark of 13-1.

Mississippi's slow-down tactics held State's brilliant center, Bailey Howell, to only six points, his all-time low for a full game.

Howell failed in his attempt to get a SEC scoring record for one year. He finished the season with 687 points, 21 shy of the 708 scored by Mississippi's Jim Ashmore in 1957.

However Howell wound up his career by scoring 2,030 points, topping Bob Pettit's career mark of 2,002.

Howell got the first two points of the night, a tip-in in the first 30 seconds of the game. Mississippi center Ivan Richmann tied it with a pair of free throws, then State guard Ted Usher made it 4-2 after two and a half minutes with a long set shot.

Then Mississippi started its slowing tactics. The Rebels set forward Jack Waters, the team's leading scorer on the pivot and the other four players slowly worked the ball around, screening and trying to shake Waters loose.

State tried to play its usual game in the beginning, but matched the Rebels' slow tactics when they saw what was up.

Throughout most of the game Howell served as a decoy. He stood in the same spot for long periods and moved little.

Usher led the winners with 11 points. Jerry Graves matched Howell's six points to complete the scoring for Mississippi State.

Waters led the losers with eight points, Richmann had four, guard Larry Wagster posted three and guard Garnie Hatch had one.

The victorious State players carried Coach Babe McCarthy on their shoulders to the dressing room. McCarthy said he agreed with President Ben Hilbun's decision to keep State from playing in the NCAA tourney and added "We'll stay home and tell everybody we're the best."

WON'T PLAY AGAINST NEGROES

No NCAA Meet For Miss. State

STARKVILLE, Miss. (UPI) — Mississippi State University President Ben Hilbun declined Saturday to give the school's basketball team permission to play in the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. tournament.

Hilbun said the reasons he declined to give the Maroons a chance to play was because of the possibility that Mississippi State would compete against Negro players.

"Under long - standing policies and customs of the state of Mississippi, athletic teams of institutions of higher learning have not engaged in competition with integrated teams or participated in tournaments in which integrated teams were entered," Hilbun said.

"This policy so far as I know has not been discarded or revised.

"Therefore the basketball team of Mississippi State University will not compete in the NCAA tournament this year."

Hilbun's denial was considered almost a foregone conclusion.

He made the decision several days ago, but delayed releasing his statement until the start of Saturday night's game between Mississippi State and arch-rival Mississippi at Oxford.

Hilbun said he wished "from the standpoint of basketball alone" it were possible for State, ranked seventh nationally by United Press International to play in the tournament.

"However, in this situation there are great issues involved which transcend mere athletic competition," he said.

"On these issues and where matters of principle are involved I have and always will cast my lot with and stand beside my people . . . the people who have been good to us and who, as far as I am concerned, are the greatest people in the world."

State's players, who can clinch the Southeastern Conference basketball championship if they beat cellar-dwelling Mississippi, had indicated previously that it would abide by Hilbun's decision without protest.

This was revealed in a statement by Coach Babe McCarthy, who also said that he was in accord with any policy laid down by the University.

Jack Moreland Scores 21 To Pace Victory

By PAUL MARTIN
News-Star—World

Louisiana Tech's Gulf States champions, who declined a bid to the NCAA small college tournament, closed out their greatest basketball season with a 75-59 triumph over the Northeast State Indians before a standing-room-only crowd in the Ouachita Junior High gymnasium here last night as Jackie Moreland, Ray Germany and Jim Tullos led the Bulldog scoring parade.

The Northeast stall that featured a recent meeting at Ruston and won by Tech, 34-27, didn't come off last night although a deliberate brand of ball control in the first half had the Redskins leading most of the time as their racy style of play controlled the backboards for a while and the made their shots count after carefully working the ball into firing range.

The game was tied nine times in the first half in which the lead changed hands four times before Coach Cecil Crowley's Canines broke a 20-20 deadlock on Tullos' field basket with the first half three quarters gone. From this point Tech never fell behind and gradually pulled away to a 36-26 lead at the half which was very near being the total of the final score in the big freeze at Ruston.

Moreland, the long lad from Minden, led Tech scoring on the strength of 11 foul shots behind five field goals for 21 points. Germany and Tullos had 18 points apiece, with Tullos getting all of his from the floor to lead in the field goal department. Germany had six field shots and half a dozen from the free throw line. Charlie Frye was also in double figures for Tech with 11.

Billy May, the tall Tribesman who became the father of a daughter earlier in the day, and Sid Bradley were Northeast's leading scorers with 15 points apiece. John Freeman came in for 11 points. Tech kept a clamp on Mickey Kitchens, Northeast's leading scorer, however, and he was limited to five foul shots, but the Mick played a fine and colorful floor game.

Moreland fired the game's first field shot to shoot Tech into the lead, but Ron Doyle's field toss for Northeast tied the score. Sid Bradley came in with a layup to send the Tribe ahead, and Tullos tied it for Tech. Doyle counted for Northeast, Frye for Tech, Sid Bradley for NE, and Tullos again to Tech in a game of swapout that tied the count at 8-all. Northeast went ahead on May's foul shot, and Moreland tied it with a foul. Freeman and S. Bradley hit single fouls that put the Tribe in front, but successive field baskets by Moreland and Germany made it 13-12 for Tech. Freeman got a gift toss that tied it again, but a foul by Germany and throw from the floor by Tullos had Tech in command again. Sid Bradley's field goal and two fouls by Kitchens put Northeast ahead 17-16. A Germany foul shot deadlocked the game again. Freeman sent NE out front with a field goal. Germany and Doyle swapped foul shots. Moreland made good on two foul shots to tie up the game at 20-all. Then Tullos' basket that sent Tech into a 22-20 lead gave the Bulldogs their head and they never slipped behind again.

May, Freeman, and Sid Bradley were playing their final game for Coach Lenny Fant's Tribe. The season ended for Northeast as well as Tech, and the final records were Tech 25-4 for the full season and 9-1 for the GSC. Northeast has a 12-13 season and 3-7 for the conference.

Ogden, beaten only once this season, followed the lead of Linda Thompson's 23 points to wrap up their crown. Frances Cassels and Sharon McGuffee sank 15 and 9 points, respectively, to take scoring honors for Enterprise.

The winners led only 16-13 at the half, but pulled away to 31-21 after three periods and iced the game in the last stanza.

Georgetown's unhearalded Bulldogs threw a mighty scare into Fort Necessity in the semi-finals before bowing out, 66-64. Coach C. O. Dodge's quint used the fast break to full advantage against the rangy Eagles and edged in front at the half, 39-37. Jim Bennett, one of the four Georgetown regulars under six feet, dumped in 29 points for the losing cause.

A. J. Burlew tossed in 22 points for Fort Necessity, providing the winning margin on two foul shots in the last fifteen seconds. Armand Bucklew, the other half of Georgetown's scoring twins, collected 19 counters, while Milton Linder added 14 for the Fort.

The Bulldogs moved ahead by eight points, 37-29, late in the first half, but the powerful Eagles quickly narrowed the gap. Burlew and Linder hit consecutive layups as the second half opened to put Fort Necessity ahead to stay.

Monterey moved into the finals with a 61-52 win over Summerfield. Jay Holland and Rodney Calhoun, with 17 and 16 points, respectively paced the winners, and Norris Moss topped the losers with 20 points. Jerry Adkins added 18 for Summerfield.

In girls' semi-finals, Enterprise squeezed past Lisbon, 41-40, on Sharon McGuffee's 17 point spree. Miss Westbrook pumped in 29 points to lead the Lisbon attack. Enterprise took a 17-9 advantage after two quarters and led from that point on.

Linda Thompson pitched in 34 points to give Ogden a 52-45 come-from-behind victory over Calvin in the other girls' semi-final tilt. Calvin had led 31-28 at intermission on the fine play of Jo Carpenter. Miss Carpenter finished up with 25 points for the game.

Selected to the boys' all-tournament team were Burlew and Linler, Fort Necessity; Bucklew and Bennett, Georgetown; Adkins, Summerfield; Holland and Rodney Calhoun, Monterey; Scriber, Lisbon; John Yeldell, Mer Rouge; and Mack Evans, Colvin.

PAUL MARTIN LOOKS 'EM OVER

A WORD FOR THE IRISH

St. Matthew's High School won its first varsity athletic championship when Jim Mahoney's Irish won the district 2-A basketball title, and, regardless of Friday night's elimination by LaSalle of Olla in a bi-district playoff, this team of Irish cagers will long be remembered by followers of Monroe's Catholic school.

This school, older than most high schools of this section of the state at least, enjoys a long and colorful history that dates back to 1863, has a small but energetic and faithful student body, but had never before boasted a recognized champion in state high school athletics although basketball, for years, has been the major sport at St. Matthew's which has also supported football and baseball clubs.

So this little squad that includes Jimmy Tonore, Charles Biggar, Ab Elias, John Varino, Frankie Accardo, Sam Marsala, Buddy Embanato, Victor Zagone, Gerald Williams, and Roy Henderson deserves a place in any athletic Hall of Fame St. Matthew's may ever set up. And this school which had always campaigned in Class B makes its first claim to a state trophy in its first season in the higher "A" classification.

Elias, nursing an ankle injury, was missing from the district title clincher against Oak Grove but came back for the LaSalle game. Accardo has been ill with pneumonia for the past several days, but anxiously kept up with his club from his hospital bed.

Actually, these young men of St. Matthew's made their start five and six years ago when Truard A. Breard, whose closest claim to basketball action was in the intramural leagues of old Ouachita Junior College (Northeast State), heeded the urging of Jay Broussard, then Irish coach, to volunteer as coach of teams in the Monroe Recreation department's Midget and Peewee Leagues.

Tonore, a nephew of the late Jimmy Tonore, a fine basketball player in his own right and coach at St. Matthew's almost thirty years ago, and Elias started playing basketball for Breard when they were sixth graders. Their team won the Midget League championship and was undefeated. Now they're high school seniors. The remainder of the squad is composed of sophomores who began working together as a unit for Breard's Peewee club which was also coached by an air force sergeant named Whitaker.

Right now Breard is working with a peewee club that includes two fifth graders, and this man who finds time from his job as a departmental manager at one of Monroe's biggest business houses, thinks Coach Mahoney is going to enjoy having them on his club in a few more years.

This Catholic school was first organized by the Daughters of the Cross as St. Hyacinth's Academy, and it became St. Matthew's in 1922 when the congregation of St. Matthew's Catholic Church took control. The present St. Matthew's High building was erected a few years later and graduated its first class in 1929—six girls and four boys.

McKOLN VS. COOK

A fight that has been proposed for more than a year has finally been agreed upon, and onetime stablemates from the Bastrop camp of Larche Campbell will settle the argument of which is the better fighter when Clarence Cook and Johnny McKoin tangle at B. annd B. Arena here Tuesday night, March 10.

Cook, once an Oak Grove High School fistic flash, with the longer ring record against more impressive foes, may go into the arena slightly favored, but McKoin will claim an advantage at the Louisiana welterweight champion, a title he is defending for the first time since taking it from Al Boudreaux, the Westwego Frenchman who is clamoring for a rematch without heed.

Clarence was originally the star of Campbell's camp, and McKoin was developed after Cook disolved his contract with Campbell.

As sparmates not so long ago the two fought together in training. There have been stories of McKoin decking Cook in these practice scraps, and the fans have beer vanting to get them together to see if it can happen in public. Promotor August Baumgartner is setting up the fight ex - promoter Gus Kallio had been working toward before his retirement in December.

McKoin, who used to walk three miles to the Bastrop gym to work as Cook's sparring partner, took many a gym punching from Clarence, but the experience he got in these workouts now has Johnny squaring away against the man he used to help prepare for his fights. And McKoin in making his title defense against the more experienced Cook in the same ring where he made his first public fight appearance a few years ago.

TAKE SEC CROWN

Maroons Defeat Ole Miss, 23-16

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI) — Mississippi State University, denied a chance to compete in the NCAA tournament because of state segregation policy, won the Southeastern Conference basketball championship Saturday night by beating the University of Mississippi, 23-16, in a slow-moving defensive game.

The win gave the Maroons a final record of 24 wins against a lone loss to powerful Auburn. State finished the season with an SEC mark of 13-1.

Mississippi's slow-down tactics held State's brilliant center, Bailey Howell, to only six points, his all-time low for a full game.

Howell failed in his attempt to get a SEC scoring record for one year. He finished the season with 687 points, 21 shy of the 708 scored by Mississippi's Jim Ashmore in 1957.

However Howell wound up his career by scoring 2,030 points, topping Bob Pettit's career mark of 2,002.

Howell got the first two points of the night, a tip-in in the first 30 seconds of the game. Mississippi center Ivan Richmann tied it with a pair of free throws, then State guard Ted Usher made it 4-2 after two and a half minutes with a long set shot.

Then Mississippi started its slowing tactics. The Rebels set forward Jack Waters, the team's leading scorer on the pivot and the other four players slowly worked the ball around, screening and trying to shake Waters loose.

State tried to play its usual game in the beginning, but matched the Rebels' slow tactics when they saw what was up.

Throughout most of the game Howell served as a decoy. He stood in the same spot for long periods and moved little.

Usher led the winners with 11 points. Jerry Graves matched Howell's six points to complete the scoring for Mississippi State.

Waters led the losers with eight points, Richmann had four, guard Larry Wagster posted three and guard Garnie Hatch had one.

The victorious State players carried Coach Babe McCarthy on their shoulders to the dressing room. McCarthy said he agreed with President Ben Hilbun's decision to keep State from playing in the NCAA tourney and added "We'll stay home and tell everybody we're the best."

WON'T PLAY AGAINST NEGROES

No NCAA Meet For Miss. State

STARKVILLE, Miss. (UPI) — Mississippi State University President Ben Hilbun declined Saturday to give the school's basketball team permission to play in the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. tournament.

Hilbun said the reasons he declined to give the Maroons a chance to play was because of the possibility that Mississippi State would compete against Negro players.

"Under long - standing policies and customs of the state of Mississippi, athletic teams of institutions of higher learning have not engaged in competition with integrated teams or participated in tournaments in which integrated teams were entered," Hilbun said.

"This policy so far as I know has not been discarded or revised.

"Therefore the basketball team of Mississippi State University will not compete in the NCAA tournament this year."

Hilbun's denial was considered almost a foregone conclusion.

He made the decision several days ago, but delayed releasing his statement until the start of Saturday night's game between Mississippi State and arch-rival Mississippi at Oxford.

Hilbun said he wished "from the standpoint of basketball alone" it were possible for State, ranked seventh nationally by United Press International to play in the tournament.

"However, in this situation there are great issues involved which transcend mere athletic competition," he said.

"On these issues and where matters of principle are involved I have and always will cast my lot with and stand beside my people . . . the people who have been good to us and who, as far as I am concerned, are the greatest people in the world."

State's players, who can clinch the Southeastern Conference basketball championship if they beat cellar-dwelling Mississippi, had indicated previously that it would abide by Hilbun's decision without protest.

This was revealed in a statement by Coach Babe McCarthy, who also said that he was in accord with any policy laid down by the University.

Crowville Seeks To Fill 2 Open Football Dates

CROWVILLE, La. (Special) — Crowville football coach Judson Warren said yesterday he has two open dates he would like to fill on the school's 1959 grid schedule, Sept 11 and Oct. 2.

Warren asked coaches interested in contracting for a game on either of the dates to contact him at the local high school.

Fifty-two candidates completed the first week of spring practice Friday, Warren said. Crowville lost eight lettermen from last year's district championship team but six regulars are back and prospects look bright, according to Warren.

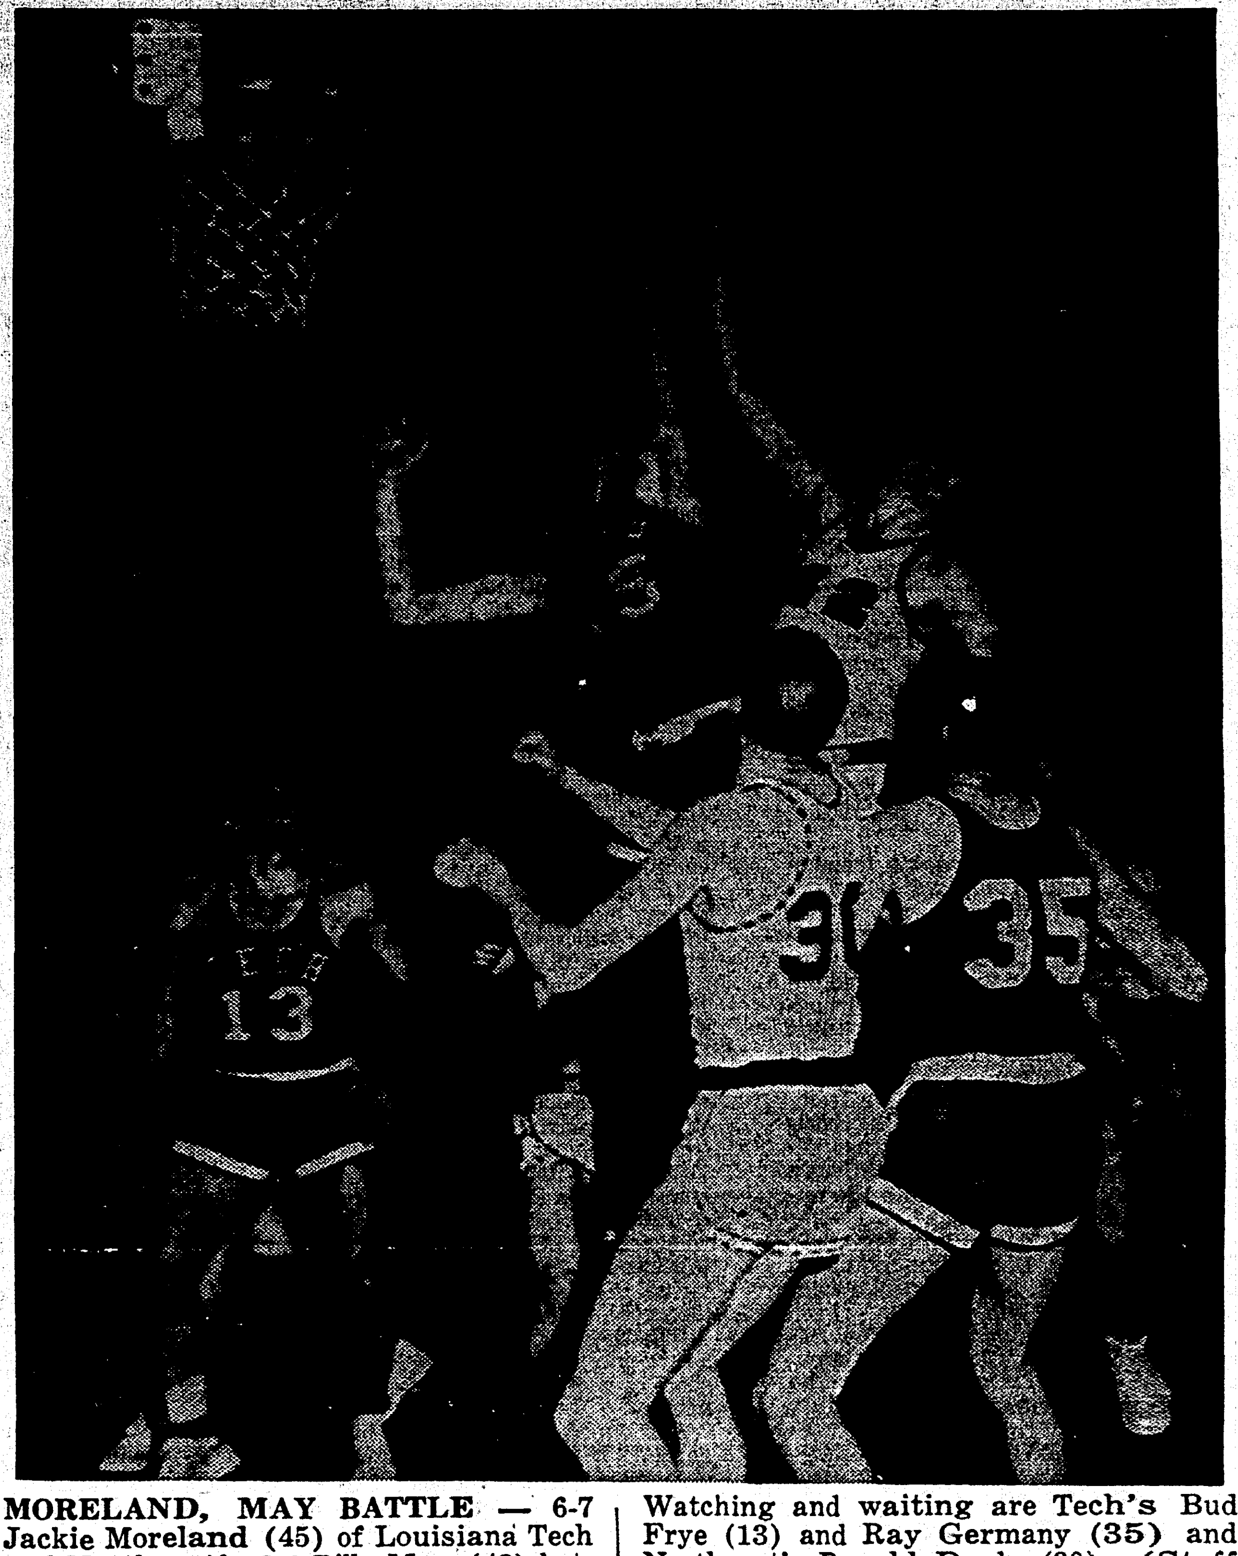
Louisiana Tech Ends Greatest Season With 75-59 Win Over Tribe



MORELAND, MAY BATTLE — 6-7 Jackie Moreland (45) of Louisiana Tech and Northeast's 6-6 Billy May (42) battle for a rebound under the Tech basket in the first half of last night's game. Jack Moreland Scores 21 To Pace Victory

Louisiana Tech's Gulf States champions, who declined a bid to the NCAA small college tournament, closed out their greatest basketball season with a 75-59 triumph over the Northeast State Indians before a standing-room-only crowd in the Ouachita Junior High gymnasium here last night as Jackie Moreland, Ray Germany and Jim Tullos led the Bulldog scoring parade.

The Northeast stall that featured a recent meeting at Ruston and won by Tech, 34-27, didn't come off last night although a deliberate brand of ball control in the first half had the Redskins leading most of the time as their racy style of play controlled the backboards for a while and the made their shots count after carefully working the ball into firing range.

The game was tied nine times in the first half in which the lead changed hands four times before Coach Cecil Crowley's Canines broke a 20-20 deadlock on Tullos' field basket with the first half three quarters gone. From this point Tech never fell behind and gradually pulled away to a 36-26 lead at the half which was very near being the total of the final score in the big freeze at Ruston.

Moreland, the long lad from Minden, led Tech scoring on the strength of 11 foul shots behind five field goals for 21 points. Germany and Tullos had 18 points apiece, with Tullos getting all of his from the floor to lead in the field goal department. Germany had six field shots and half a dozen from the free throw line. Charlie Frye was also in double figures for Tech with 11.

Billy May, the tall Tribesman who became the father of a daughter earlier in the day, and Sid Bradley were Northeast's leading scorers with 15 points apiece. John Freeman came in for 11 points. Tech kept a clamp on Mickey Kitchens, Northeast's leading scorer, however, and he was limited to five foul shots, but the Mick played a fine and colorful floor game.

Moreland fired the game's first field shot to shoot Tech into the lead, but Ron Doyle's field toss for Northeast tied the score. Sid Bradley came in with a layup to send the Tribe ahead, and Tullos tied it for Tech. Doyle counted for Northeast, Frye for Tech, Sid Bradley for NE, and Tullos again to Tech in a game of swapout that tied the count at 8-all. Northeast went ahead on May's foul shot, and Moreland tied it with a foul. Freeman and S. Bradley hit single fouls that put the Tribe in front, but successive field baskets by Moreland and Germany made it 13-12 for Tech. Freeman got a gift toss that tied it again, but a foul by Germany and throw from the floor by Tullos had Tech in command again. Sid Bradley's field goal and two fouls by Kitchens put Northeast ahead 17-16. A Germany foul shot deadlocked the game again. Freeman sent NE out front with a field goal. Germany and Doyle swapped foul shots. Moreland made good on two foul shots to tie up the game at 20-all. Then Tullos' basket that sent Tech into a 22-20 lead gave the Bulldogs their head and they never slipped behind again.

May, Freeman, and Sid Bradley were playing their final game for Coach Lenny Fant's Tribe. The season ended for Northeast as well as Tech, and the final records were Tech 25-4 for the full season and 9-1 for the GSC. Northeast has a 12-13 season and 3-7 for the conference.

By JIM CALHOUN
Staff Sports Writer

Favored teams swept titles in the Region Two Class C cage playoffs here Saturday night as Fort Necessity completely outclassed Monterey, 60-40, and Ogden's girls rolled over Enterprise, 40-33.

A heavy favorite to cop the Regional crown, Coach Alton Johnston's Fort cagers never were behind. Bill Linder tossed in a jump shot in the opening seconds, and the Eagles steadily built up their commanding margin.

All-state A. J. Burlew and center James Taylor paced the Eagles with 17 points apiece. Milton Linder, another all - state forward, hooped 7 field goals and a charity toss for 15 points.

Lanky Dale Brownell, who turned in a fine performance guarding the sharpshooting Burlew, sacked up 16 points in the losing effort.

Fort Necessity raced to a 20-9 advantage after one period, and then, apparently tired after their stiff battle with Georgetown in the semi - finals, cooled off. Burlew scored on a three - point play and added a foul shot just before the half, to make it Fort Necessity, 31-19.

Coach Odare Hammett's Monterey squad started to hit in the third quarter and chalked up nine straight points to close out the period trailing, 43-34.

Fort Necessity piled up points steadily in the last quarter while holding the losers to six counters to conclude the rout.

Ogden, beaten only once this season, followed the lead of Linda Thompson's 23 points to wrap up their crown. Frances Cassels and Sharon McGuffee sank 15 and 9 points, respectively, to take scoring honors for Enterprise.

The winners led only 16-13 at the half, but pulled away to 31-21 after three periods and iced the game in the last stanza.

Georgetown's unhearalded Bulldogs threw a mighty scare into Fort Necessity in the semi-finals before bowing out, 66-64. Coach C. O. Dodge's quint used the fast break to full advantage against the rangy Eagles and edged in front at the half, 39-37. Jim Bennett, one of the four Georgetown regulars under six feet, dumped in 29 points for the losing cause.

A. J. Burlew tossed in 22 points for Fort Necessity, providing the winning margin on two foul shots in the last fifteen seconds. Armand Bucklew, the other half of Georgetown's scoring twins, collected 19 counters, while Milton Linder added 14 for the Fort.

The Bulldogs moved ahead by eight points, 37-29, late in the first half, but the powerful Eagles quickly narrowed the gap. Burlew and Linder hit consecutive layups as the second half opened to put Fort Necessity ahead to stay.

Monterey moved into the finals with a 61-52 win over Summerfield. Jay Holland and Rodney Calhoun, with 17 and 16 points, respectively paced the winners, and Norris Moss topped the losers with 20 points. Jerry Adkins added 18 for Summerfield.

The contest, which featured a set of twins on each team, saw Monterey ahead at halftime, 30-25.

In girls' semi-finals, Enterprise squeezed past Lisbon, 41-40, on Sharon McGuffee's 17 point spree. Miss Westbrook pumped in 29 points to lead the Lisbon attack. Enterprise took a 17-9 advantage after two quarters and led from that point on.

Linda Thompson pitched in 34 points to give Ogden a 52-45 come-from-behind victory over Calvin in the other girls' semi-final tilt. Calvin had led 31-28 at intermission on the fine play of Jo Carpenter. Miss Carpenter finished up with 25 points for the game.

Selected to the boys' all-tournament team were Burlew and Linder, Fort Necessity; Bucklew and Bennett, Georgetown; Adkins, Summerfield; Holland and Rodney Calhoun, Monterey; Scriber, Lisbon; John Yeldell, Mer Rouge; and Mack Evans, Colvin.

Forward berths on the girls' team were landed by Thompson, Ogden; Westbrook, Lisbon; Carpenter, Calvin; McGuffee and Poole, Enterprise; and Bandy, Atlanta. Guards were Key, Calvin; McCormick, Enterprise; Nichols and Jennings, Ogden; Lowery, Lisbon; and Henry, Hico.

HOSTS MCNEESE, TECH

Northeast To Open 15-Meet Track Slate Here Saturday

Thirteen meetings with traditional rival Louisiana Tech highlight Northeast's 15-meet track and field schedule released by coach Lew Hartzog yesterday.

Hartzog's thinclads and Tech get their first look at each other here Saturday night in a triangular affair also involving McNeese, last year's Gulf States Conference titleholder, on the Brown Stadium track, Northeast's first meet of the season.

Northeast has three other meets scheduled for Monroe besides Saturday's affair. Memphis State, Tech and Northwestern will be here March 21, Arkansas State invades March 24 and Tech and Southeastern are here April 22.

Northeast's 13 meetings with Tech should give state track fan an answer to the question of who's the best sprinter, Tech's Pat Garrett or Indian Dave Styron?

Styron defeated Garrett in last year's dual meet here and in the GSC meet. These two are regarded generally as two of the outstanding sprinters in the south.

Besides regular season meets, Northeast and Tech are expected to tangle in the Southwtstern Recreation affair, the Florida Relays, the SLI Relays, the Northwestern Relays, the LSU Invitational, the GSC meet and the Southern AAU meet.

Northeast, which finished third in the GSC last year in its first full-scale track season, has already enjoyed considerable success this school term, tying McNeese for the conference cross country championship and providing the surprise of the Sugar Bowl meet by winning the mile relay. Don Styron finished third in the Sugar Bowl high hurdles and Dave fourth in the century.

Returning lettermen are led by the 18-year-old workhorses, Dave and Don Styron, sprinter and hurdler from Wheat Ridge, Colo.; Jerry Ivy, broad jumper of Clinton, Miss.; Gene Hagan, pole vaulter, high jumper and hurdler of Brush, Colo.; Robert McGough, javelin of Bastrop; Terry Reeves, sprinter of Monroe; John Blake, high jumper of Monroe; Jack Williams of Tallulah and Charles McCullen of Simsboro, distance runners.

Newcomers are: sprinters — Roger Beumer, Golden, Colo.; Curtis Smith, Wisner; quarter-milers — Dick Hays, Hallsville, Tex.; Jim Mouser, McAllester, Okla.; Byron Pearson, St. Joseph; distances —Bob Jaenicke, Golden, Colo.; Tom Martty, St. Joseph; Bill Frye, Golden, Colo.; and weightman Bob Cook, Jonesboro.

The Indians received a serious setback when Freshman Don (Buddy) Eiland of Farmerville, who led the cross-country team with 8 victories and a fine 9:33.8 clocking in the 2-mile, received a ruptured kidney and broken pelvis in an automobile accident January 4. It is doubtful that he will run this spring, Hartzog reported.

The schedule:

March 7—McNeese, Tech, Monroe
March 14—Southwestern Recreation, Fort Worth, Texas
March 17—Tech, Ruston
March 21—Memphis State, Tech, TSC, Monroe
March 24—Arkansas State, Monroe
March 28—Florida Relays, Gainesville, Fla.
April 4—NSC, Tech, Natchitoches
April 11—SLI Relays, Lafayette
April 18—NSC Relays, Natchitoches
April 22—Tech, Southeastern, Monroe
April 25—LSU Invitational, Baton Rouge
May 2—East Texas State, Commerce, Texas
May 9—Tech, NSC, Ruston
May 16—GSC Meet, Natchitoches
May 23—Southern AAU, New Orleans

AMONG HEAVYWEIGHTS

Fleischer Ranks Johnson On Top

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP)—How would you rate Jack Dempsey, Joe Louis, Sugar Ray Robinson, Rocky Marciano, Archie Moore and Willie Pep in your list of all-time great fighters?

These are the truly outstanding fighters we have seen either in the flesh or in movies over the last couple of decades. In our personal list we would make Dempsey, Louis and Marciano one-two-three in the heavyweight parade, Moore the No. 1 light - heavy, Robinson the top middleweight, and Wily Willie the leading featherweight.

Fleischer, editor of Ring Magazine and boxing historian, has been watching them in action from ringside for more than 50 years. He has named his top 10 in each division. They are included in two of his latest books, "Fifty Years at the Ringside," and the 1959 "Ring Record Book and Boxing Encyclopedia."

The 71 - year - old writer picked Jack Johnson as his No. 1 heavyweight. The other division leaders are: Light heavyweight—Kid McCoy; middleweight — Stanley Ketchel; welterweight—Barbados Joe Walcott; lightweight — Joe Gans; featherweight—Terry McGovern; bantamweight — George Dixon, and flyweight — Jimmy Wilde.

Dempsey is ranked fourth, Louis sixth and Marciano tenth. Robinson is ranked fifth among the middles, and Pep seventh among the feathers.

The only active fighters listed are Robinson and Pascual Perez, Argentina's world flyweight champion. Perez, 32, is ranked 10th.

Johnson, a member of boxing's hall of fame, reigned as heavyweight champion from Dec. 26, 1908, to April 5, 1915.

Why Johnson over Dempsey and the others?

"Johnson was the best all - around fighter of all the heavyweights," said Fleischer. "He had a perfect stance, was a master of the art of feinting, and was the craftiest of them all. He was a magnificent counter-puncher and had a terrific left jab. He had plenty of power, too.

Here are Fleischer's all-time rankings:

FEDERATION CONVENTION

Area Sportsmen's Desires Satisfied In Resolutions

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

Northeast Louisiana sportsmen can overlook a few exceptions, if they choose, and feel reasonably satisfied that their whims were answered at the recent wildlife convention.

A late waterfowl season was the big thing sought and accomplished by the Ouachita Wildlife Unit, thanks, of course, to other area clubs as well as those around the state.

Some 78 resolutions successfully came out of the Louisiana Wildlife Federation convention at Baton Rouge last weekend.

Of that total, only 10 or 12 pertained to hunting seasons, an indication that some sportsmen are interested in something other than seasons.

Numerous resolutions pertained to national legislation while others hit on needs in Louisiana.

Although most Northeast Louisiana hunters were vitally interested in getting a late duck season, the Monroe area failed, however, on one other big desire.

That was the split deer season. Northeast sportsmen sought a split season — 15 days in November with 15 more in December.

However, they lost and the federation voted to open the season on recommendations made by biologists of the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission.

And it must be remembered that although a late waterfowl season was requested, a late waterfowl season definitely is not set for next year.

The resolution will be considered by the state commission before one of its representatives attends the meeting of the Mississippi Flyway Council before next season.

Since ducks and geese are federal birds, their seasons are set on a national scale within a framework from the federal government and then work in its season as best as possible.

Nevertheless, Louisiana hunters have voiced their desire; they want the season to end on January 31, starting 72 days prior.

Dove hunters also came in for special consideration. The federation voted to increase the limit from 10 to 12; that's the daily bag limit, of course.

In addition, the first leg of the season was asked for September 1 to run for 20 days, end September 20. The second leg was recommended for October 15, running for as many days as possible.

Besides that, the federation also asked that the state be zoned, a move that would give the South Louisiana hunter a later season, since doves migrate.

While ducks, deer and doves were getting most attention, all other seasons were recommended to remain the same, except for squirrels. An October 1 to January 1 squirrel season was recommended.

A major resolution passed called for the establishment of a deer tagging system. Commission chairman E. R. McDonald Sr. of Newellton also asked for a tagging system in an address.

Under the law, the Legislature would have to pass a bill permitting the commission to begin the system. A similar bill last legislative session was defeated in a howling Sunday night House meeting.

Other important resolutions recommended:

1. That game wardens be put back into uniform.
2. That additional impoundment areas for public duck hunting be established.
3. An increase from $1 to $2 on the hunting license with the additional funds going to game law enforcement.
4. The establishment of a special bow season on deer with bow hunters be charged $2 for a special license.
5. That a special teal season be held.

Highlighting the convention for Monroe was the selection of A. S. Tidwell as state first vice-president. Tidwell also received an award for being the most active district vice - president during the year.

In addition, Monroe was selected as the 1961 convention site.

IN SEC

Tormohlen, Howell Clinch Two Crowns

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP(— Gene Tormohlen of Tennessee and Bailey Howell of Mississippi State have two individual Southeastern Conference basketball titles sewed up.

Tormohlen has virtually cinched the rebounding crown with his average of 17.7 per game. And Howell is champion scorer again, with an average of 28.4 points per game going into the season finale against Ole Miss.

However, two more Sec individual titles are unsettled.

With last-game figures still not in SEC commissioner Bernie Moore's office, Auburn mates Jimmy Fibbe and Henry Hart are neck-and-neck in the field goal accuracy race.

WRESTLING

Barney, Menace Fight For Title

Bill Barney bets his belt against the Black Menace's mask and Serg Petroff brings a "friend" to town tomorrow night in the weekly wrestling show at B&B Arena.

Barney and the Menace will clash in the night's main event, a 90-minute limit, two-falls-to-win bout for the Louisiana heavyweight championship, and Petroff and pal take on Jack and George Curtis in a tag-team semi-final over the hour limit.

Should Wild Bill beat the Menace, something he didn't do in a nontitle match last week, he gets the bad boy's mask and the fans get to see the hooded one's face. If the Menace wins, he gets Barney's state championship belt. Barney, who won the first fall but then lost two in a row last week, is reported to be training hard for Monday's bout.

"I will admit that I'm worried," says Barney. "I'm worried about every championship match. Any man has to be in top condition to hold any wrestling title and I'm working hard."

"I don't want to let my local friends down," Bill continued, "and I want them at ringside to support me Monday night."

Petroff is very happy about beating Jack Curtis two times in a row and says that he and his "secret partner" can whip the whole Curtis family.

Promoter August Baumgartner quotes Curtis as saying Petroff can bring whoever he wants to.

"I'll bring my brother George and we will see what happens to Petroff and his secret friend," Jack said.

HOSTS McNEESE, TECH

Northeast To Open 15-Meet Track Slate Here Saturday

Thirteen meetings with traditional rival Louisiana Tech highlight Northeast's 15-meet track and field schedule released by coach Lew Hartzog yesterday.

Hartzog's thinclads and Tech get their first look at each other here Saturday night in a triangular affair also involving McNeese, last year's Gulf States Conference titleholder, on the Brown Stadium track, Northeast's first meet of the season.

Northeast has three other meets scheduled for Monroe besides Saturday's affair. Memphis State, Tech and Northwestern will be here March 21, Arkansas State invades March 24 and Tech and Southeastern are here April 22.

Northeast's 13 meetings with Tech should give state track fan an answer to the question of who's the best sprinter, Tech's Pat Garrett or Indian Dave Styron?

Styron defeated Garrett in last year's dual meet here and in the GSC meet. These two are regarded generally as two of the outstanding sprinters in the south.

Besides regular season meets, Northeast and Tech are expected to tangle in the Southwtstern Recreation affair, the Florida Relays, the SLI Relays, the Northwestern Relays, the LSU Invitational, the GSC meet and the Southern AAU meet.

Northeast, which finished third in the GSC last year in its first full-scale track season, has already enjoyed considerable success this school term, tying McNeese for the conference cross country championship and providing the surprise of the Sugar Bowl meet by winning the mile relay. Don Styron finished third in the Sugar Bowl high hurdles and Dave fourth in the century.

Returning lettermen are led by the 18-year-old workhorses, Dave and Don Styron, sprinter and hurdler from Wheat Ridge, Colo.; Jerry Ivy, broad jumper of Clinton, Miss.; Gene Hagan, pole vaulter, high jumper and hurdler of Brush, Colo.; Robert McGough, javelin of Bastrop; Terry Reeves, sprinter of Monroe; John Blake, high jumper of Monroe; Jack Williams of Tallulah and Charles McCullen of Simsboro, distance runners.

Newcomers are: sprinters — Roger Beumer, Golden, Colo.; Curtis Smith, Wisner; quarter-milers — Dick Hays, Hallsville, Tex.; Jim Mouser, McAllester, Okla.; Byron Pearson, St. Joseph; distances —Bob Jaenicke, Golden, Colo.; Tom Martty, St. Joseph; Bill Frye, Golden, Colo.; and weightman Bob Cook, Jonesboro.

The Indians received a serious setback when Freshman Don (Buddy) Eiland of Farmerville, who led the cross-country team with 8 victories and a fine 9:33.8 clocking in the 2-mile, received a ruptured kidney and broken pelvis in an automobile accident January 4. It is doubtful that he will run this spring, Hartzog reported.

The schedule:

March 7—McNeese, Tech, Monroe
March 14—Southwestern Recreation, Fort Worth, Texas
March 17—Tech, Ruston
March 21—Memphis State, Tech, TSC, Monroe
March 24—Arkansas State, Monroe
March 28—Florida Relays, Gainesville, Fla.
April 4—NSC, Tech, Natchitoches
April 11—SLI Relays, Lafayette
April 18—NSC Relays, Natchitoches
April 22—Tech, Southeastern, Monroe
April 25—LSU Invitational, Baton Rouge
May 2—East Texas State, Commerce, Texas
May 9—Tech, NSC, Ruston
May 16—GSC Meet, Natchitoches
May 23—Southern AAU, New Orleans

Fleischer Ranks Johnson On Top

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP)—How would you rate Jack Dempsey, Joe Louis, Sugar Ray Robinson, Rocky Marciano, Archie Moore and Willie Pep in your list of all-time great fighters?

These are the truly outstanding fighters we have seen either in the flesh or in movies over the last couple of decades. In our personal list we would make Dempsey, Louis and Marciano one-two-three in the heavyweight parade, Moore the No. 1 light - heavy, Robinson the top middleweight, and Wily Willie the leading featherweight.

Fleischer, editor of Ring Magazine and boxing historian, has been watching them in action from ringside for more than 50 years. He has named his top 10 in each division. They are included in two of his latest books, "Fifty Years at the Ringside," and the 1959 "Ring Record Book and Boxing Encyclopedia."

The 71 - year - old writer picked Jack Johnson as his No. 1 heavyweight. The other division leaders are: Light heavyweight—Kid McCoy; middleweight — Stanley Ketchel; welterweight—Barbados Joe Walcott; lightweight — Joe Gans; featherweight—Terry McGovern; bantamweight — George Dixon, and flyweight — Jimmy Wilde.

Dempsey is ranked fourth, Louis sixth and Marciano tenth. Robinson is ranked fifth among the middles, and Pep seventh among the feathers.

The only active fighters listed are Robinson and Pascual Perez, Argentina's world flyweight champion. Perez, 32, is ranked 10th.

Johnson, a member of boxing's hall of fame, reigned as heavyweight champion from Dec. 26, 1908, to April 5, 1915.

Why Johnson over Dempsey and the others?

"Johnson was the best all - around fighter of all the heavyweights," said Fleischer. "He had a perfect stance, was a master of the art of feinting, and was the craftiest of them all. He was a magnificent counter-puncher and had a terrific left jab. He had plenty of power, too.

Here are Fleischer's all-time rankings:

FEDERATION CONVENTION

Area Sportsmen's Desires Satisfied In Resolutions

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

Northeast Louisiana sportsmen can overlook a few exceptions, if they choose, and feel reasonably satisfied that their whims were answered at the recent wildlife convention.

A late waterfowl season was the big thing sought and accomplished by the Ouachita Wildlife Unit, thanks, of course, to other area clubs as well as those around the state.

Some 78 resolutions successfully came out of the Louisiana Wildlife Federation convention at Baton Rouge last weekend.

Of that total, only 10 or 12 pertained to hunting seasons, an indication that some sportsmen are interested in something other than seasons.

Numerous resolutions pertained to national legislation while others hit on needs in Louisiana.

Although most Northeast Louisiana hunters were vitally interested in getting a late duck season, the Monroe area failed, however, on one other big desire.

That was the split deer season. Northeast sportsmen sought a split season — 15 days in November with 15 more in December.

However, they lost and the federation voted to open the season on recommendations made by biologists of the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission.

And it must be remembered that although a late waterfowl season was requested, a late waterfowl season definitely is not set for next year.

The resolution will be considered by the state commission before one of its representatives attends the meeting of the Mississippi Flyway Council before next season.

Since ducks and geese are federal birds, their seasons are set on a national scale within a framework from the federal government and then work in its season as best as possible.

Nevertheless, Louisiana hunters have voiced their desire; they want the season to end on January 31, starting 72 days prior.

Dove hunters also came in for special consideration. The federation voted to increase the limit from 10 to 12; that's the daily bag limit, of course.

In addition, the first leg of the season was asked for September 1 to run for 20 days, end September 20. The second leg was recommended for October 15, running for as many days as possible.

Besides that, the federation also asked that the state be zoned, a move that would give the South Louisiana hunter a later season, since doves migrate.

While ducks, deer and doves were getting most attention, all other seasons were recommended to remain the same, except for squirrels. An October 1 to January 1 squirrel season was recommended.

A major resolution passed called for the establishment of a deer tagging system. Commission chairman E. R. McDonald Sr. of Newellton also asked for a tagging system in an address.

Under the law, the Legislature would have to pass a bill permitting the commission to begin the system. A similar bill last legislative session was defeated in a howling Sunday night House meeting.

Other important resolutions recommended:

1. That game wardens be put back into uniform.
2. That additional impoundment areas for public duck hunting be established.
3. An increase from $1 to $2 on the hunting license with the additional funds going to game law enforcement.
4. The establishment of a special bow season on deer with bow hunters be charged $2 for a special license.
5. That a special teal season be held.

Highlighting the convention for Monroe was the selection of A. S. Tidwell as state first vice-president. Tidwell also received an award for being the most active district vice - president during the year.

In addition, Monroe was selected as the 1961 convention site.

IN SEC

Tormohlen, Howell Clinch Two Crowns

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP(— Gene Tormohlen of Tennessee and Bailey Howell of Mississippi State have two individual Southeastern Conference basketball titles sewed up.

Tormohlen has virtually cinched the rebounding crown with his average of 17.7 per game. And Howell is champion scorer again, with an average of 28.4 points per game going into the season finale against Ole Miss.

However, two more Sec individual titles are unsettled.

NINE-FOR-ONE DEAL

Cardinals Trade Matson To Rams

CHICAGO (AP)—In one of the biggest player trades in National Football League history, the Chicago Cardinals Saturday sent halfback Ollie Matson to the Los Angles Rams for nine players.

The Rams gave up four first string veterans—defensive tackles Frank Fuller and Art Hauser, offensive tackle Ken Panfil and defensive end Glenn Holtzman. They also yielded three top draft choices—halfback Don Brown of Houston (their No. 2 choice); fullback Larry Hickman, Baylor (No. 3) and end John Tracey, Texas A&M (No. 4).

The Cards also will get another player to be selected prior to the 1959 season and also a high 9160 Ram draft choice.

"Our entire coaching staff feels that these additional top - flight players will, without a doubt, make the Cardinals a strong contender this year," said Managing Director Walter Wolfner.

"We know we gave up a player who, in my opinion, is the greatest back ever to play in the league."

Coach Frank Ivy said the deal climaxed three days of negotiations and that he thinks both clubs will benefit.

"The last thing we wanted to do was trade Matson, but we feel that in order to get worthwhile players, you have to give up something equally good," he said.

Matson, the Cards' No. 1 draft choice in 1952, last season was well behind his peak pro year of 1956 when he carried 192 times for 924 yards. Last season, the fleet fullback carried 129 times for 505, for 11th position among NFL ground gainers.

However, Matson led in NFL kickoff returns in 1958 with 597 yards on 14 hauls for a 35.5 average.

The 28-year-old Matson, from San Francisco, starred as a college gridder at the University of San Francisco, finishing in 1951 under Joe Kuharich, now Notre Dame head coach.

Matson was a member of the 1952 U.S. Olympic track team as a middle distance star.

In six Cardinal seasons, Matson carried the ball 761 times for 3,331 yards, caught 130 passes for 2,150 yards, and scored 300 points. His career average in the NFL is 4.38 for rushing, 16.5 for passes caught, 10.9 on punt returns and 28.5 for kickoff returns.

SCORING

Robertson Near Cinch For Title

NEW YORK (UPI)—Leo Byrd of Marshall College outscored Oscar (Big O) Robertson of Cincinnati by a single basket during the past two weeks and remains Saturday the only player within hailing distance of Robertson in the near-runaway college basketball scoring race.

The T.C.A.A. reported Saturday that the six-foot Byrd scored 174 points in two weeks through games of Feb. 23 against 172 for Robertson.

But the Cincinnati star still holds a clear lead in the race with an average of 33.2 points per game to Byrd's 30.2. A distant third is Jimmy Hagan of Tennessee Tech at 28.4 with Bailey Howell of Mississippi State Fourth at 28.4 (with one less total point than Hagan) and Bob Ayersman of Virginia Tech fifth with 27.6.

There's a spread of 10 points per game from first place to 10th, and that's the widest margin the scoring race has been since 1954 when Frank Selvy of Furman ran away with the crown.

With Robertson showing the way, Cincinnati continues to press Miami (Fla.) for top team scoring honors. Miami improved its average this week to 87.4 points per game but Cincinnati was right behind at 86.1.

California is gaining ground on perennial champion Oklahoma State in the battle for the team defense leadership. California, which last won this title in 1926, was on top this week with an average of 49.6 points allowed per game for a comfortable lead over Oklahoma State's 52.3.

Auburn, which won 30 straight before losing twice, lost its status as the nation's only unbeaten team but retained the lead in field goal accuracy with a .488 shooting average. Kansas State, which has won 17 straight since losing to Brigham Young on Dec. 15, took over from Auburn as owner of the longest current winning streak.

Tulsa retained the lead in free throw shooting with a .768 average, while Gonzaga was tops in rebounding by an eyelash over Michigan State, Southern Methodist has committed the fewest personal fouls, and Missouri the most.

Before taking over as Harvard basketball coach five years ago, Floyd Wilson directed the Crimson freshmen to five winning seasons. The frosh had a 69-12 record under Wilson.

Hawks Whip Bruins, 5-2, In TV Scrap

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Black Hawks increased their hold on second place in the National Hockey League to five points by whipping the Boston Bruins 5-2 Saturday in a TV match.

Bobby Hull paced Chicago to its 25th victory with two goals. Both Boston goals were scored by Flemming Mackell.

Other Chicago scorers were Ed Litzenberger (29th) Tod Sloan (25th) and Eric Testerenko (15th).

The Hawks are fighting for their first second place finish since 1935.

Chicago and third-place Boston have 10 games left before the Stanley Cup playoffs. If the Hawks hang onto one of the four playoff spots, they will break a drouth which has lasted since the 1952-53 season when they finished fourth. They never have won the loop title and have captured only two cups since 1926.

Forty-four penalty minutes—36 in the final period—were called by Referee Red Storey. The NHL's penalty leader, Chicago's Ted Lindsay, was given a match penalty, which put him out for the rest of the game in the final frame.

His adversary in a stick swinging duel, Boston's Bronco Horvath, also got a match penalty, which carries an automatic $100 fine.

SOUCHAK ONE STROKE BACK

McMullin Fades But Holds To Baton Rouge Open Lead

By W. B. RAGSDALE JR.

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Crecut John McMullin faded to a one-over-par 73 Sunday but still held a one-stroke lead at the midpoint of the $15,000 Baton Rouge Open Golf Tournament.

The 23-year-old Fair Oaks, Calif. golfer ran into putter trouble on the last two holes, going one over par on each hole, but his 138 total still was one stroke better than Mike Souchak.

Souchak, Grossingers, N. Y., added a 71 to his opening 68, thrilling the gallery with a stunning 2-under-par three on the 18th hole.

The burly former Duke University football player reached to within two feet of the pin on the 515-yard hole on his second shot, then dropped the east putt for an eagle three.

One stroke back of Souchak, were Gene Littler, Singing Hills, Calif., with his second 70, and Paul Harney, Worcester, Mass., who faded to 72 after an opening 68.

Bunched at 141 were Jay Hebert, Sandford, Fla., with 71; Dave Thomas, London, England, with 72; Canadian Al Balding, with 71, and Shelley Mayfield, Jerico, N. Y., who had 68, one of the day's best rounds.

Billy Maxwell, Odessa, Tex., and Arnold Palmer, Ligonier, Pa., tied for second after the first round at 67, both faded badly.

Maxwell had 75 for a 142 total and Palmer was one stroke worse at 76 for 143.

Although the 6,467-yard Baton Rouge Country Club course actually was in better condition, due to two days without rain, scores were far above the opening round when 25 players cracked par 72.

A 36-hole final round is set Sunday, with the field trimmed to the top 60 professionals and five amateurs.

New Orleans Handicap Won By Tenacious

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Tenacious, gunned into a running fury at the head of the stretch, outclassed his field to win the $62,500 New Orleans Handicap Saturday.

The 5-year-old son of Challedon, the decided choice of the 17,150 fans at the Fair Grounds, had a four-length spread over Pete's Folly at the wire.

Hare Raising took the show spot.

Tenacious, owned by the estate of Joe W. Brown who died only two weeks ago, toured the mile and one-eighth in 1:50.1.

The victory was a repeat showing for Tenacious who edged Oh Johnny in last year's renewal and again clinched the Fair Grounds handicap title.

Tenacious, ridden by Ray Broussard as usual, returned $5, $3.20 and $2.80. The Bishop entry paid $3.80 to place and $2.80 to show.

Broussard made no mistake with the trim Brown speedster and kept him in the middle of the 10-horse pack while Hare Raising and True Verdict from the William G. Helis Jr., stable set a torrid early pace.

Broussard gunned Tenacious as the field swung out of the back stretch and moved into the long final turn.

At the head of the stretch, Broussard had Tenacious in the middle of the track as Hare Raising and True Verdict wilted and Pete's Folly made his move on the outside.

Broussard glanced over his shoulder and went to the whip when Pete's Folly came through with his stretch burst. Tenacious, seemingly insulted by the sting of Broussard's whip, answered with another burst and was pulling away at the wire.

Lattner Named Aide At Denver

DENVER (AP) — Johnny Lattner, an All-America halfback at Notre Dame, was named assistant football coach at the University of Denver Saturday.

Lattner, 26, was a key figure in the Irish backfields of 1951-53 when Notre Dame won 24 games, lost four and tied three. He won both the Maxwell Award and the Heisman Trophy.

Cox Nets 38 As Kentucky Defeats Vols

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Jumping Johnny Cox bombarded the basket for 33 points, the highest total of his brilliant three-year career, as Kentucky's top-ranked basketball team overwhelmed Tennessee Saturday night, 69-56.

Cox's previous high was 34 points, which he scored as a sophomore. His top mark this season had been 27 points, scored against Florida State Dec. 1 .

The victory, before a capacity crowd of 6,200, gave Kentucky a 23-2 mark for the season, and 12-2 in the Southeastern Conference. Kentucky's sole losses both on the road, were to Vanderbilt and Mississippi State.

Tennessee wound up its season with an 8-6 SEC record and 14-8 mark over-all.

The Vols, behind eight points at the half, 30-38, narrowed the gap to 37-40 with 17:51 left. But Cox ignited a Kentucky drive that put the Wildcats ahead by 11 points, 51-40, in the next five minutes.

The T.C.A.A. reported Saturday that the six-foot Byrd scored 174 points in two weeks through games of Feb. 23 against 172 for Robertson.

But the Cincinnati star still holds a clear lead in the race with an average of 33.2 points per game to Byrd's 30.2. A distant third is Jimmy Hagan of Tennessee Tech at 28.4 with Bailey Howell of Mississippi State Fourth at 28.4 (with one less total point than Hagan) and Bob Ayersman of Virginia Tech fifth with 27.6.

There's a spread of 10 points per game from first place to 10th, and that's the widest margin the scoring race has been since 1954 when Frank Selvy of Furman ran away with the crown.

With Robertson showing the way, Cincinnati continues to press Miami (Fla.) for top team scoring honors. Miami improved its average this week to 87.4 points per game but Cincinnati was right behind at 86.1.

California is gaining ground on perennial champion Oklahoma State in the battle for the team defense leadership. California, which last won this title in 1926, was on top this week with an average of 49.6 points allowed per game for a comfortable lead over Oklahoma State's 52.3.

Auburn, which won 30 straight before losing twice, lost its status as the nation's only unbeaten team but retained the lead in field goal accuracy with a .488 shooting average. Kansas State, which has won 17 straight since losing to Brigham Young on Dec. 15, took over from Auburn as owner of the longest current winning streak.

Tulsa retained the lead in free throw shooting with a .768 average, while Gonzaga was tops in rebounding by an eyelash over Michigan State, Southern Methodist has committed the fewest personal fouls, and Missouri the most.

Hawks Whip Bruins, 5-2, In TV Scrap

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Black Hawks increased their hold on second place in the National Hockey League to five points by whipping the Boston Bruins 5-2 Saturday in a TV match.

Bobby Hull paced Chicago to its 25th victory with two goals. Both Boston goals were scored by Flemming Mackell.

Other Chicago scorers were Ed Litzenberger (29th) Tod Sloan (25th) and Eric Testerenko (15th).

The Hawks are fighting for their first second place finish since 1935.

Chicago and third-place Boston have 10 games left before the Stanley Cup playoffs. If the Hawks hang onto one of the four playoff spots, they will break a drouth which has lasted since the 1952-53 season when they finished fourth. They never have won the loop title and have captured only two cups since 1926.

Forty-four penalty minutes—36 in the final period—were called by Referee Red Storey. The NHL's penalty leader, Chicago's Ted Lindsay, was given a match penalty, which put him out for the rest of the game in the final frame.

His adversary in a stick swinging duel, Boston's Bronco Horvath, also got a match penalty, which carries an automatic $100 fine.

SOUCHAK ONE STROKE BACK

McMullin Fades But Holds To Baton Rouge Open Lead

By W. B. RAGSDALE JR.

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Crecut John McMullin faded to a one-over-par 73 Sunday but still held a one-stroke lead at the midpoint of the $15,000 Baton Rouge Open Golf Tournament.

The 23-year-old Fair Oaks, Calif. golfer ran into putter trouble on the last two holes, going one over par on each hole, but his 138 total still was one stroke better than Mike Souchak.

Souchak, Grossingers, N. Y., added a 71 to his opening 68, thrilling the gallery with a stunning 2-under-par three on the 18th hole.

The burly former Duke University football player reached to within two feet of the pin on the 515-yard hole on his second shot, then dropped the east putt for an eagle three.

One stroke back of Souchak, were Gene Littler, Singing Hills, Calif., with his second 70, and Paul Harney, Worcester, Mass., who faded to 72 after an opening 68.

Bunched at 141 were Jay Hebert, Sandford, Fla., with 71; Dave Thomas, London, England, with 72; Canadian Al Balding, with 71, and Shelley Mayfield, Jerico, N. Y., who had 68, one of the day's best rounds.

Billy Maxwell, Odessa, Tex., and Arnold Palmer, Ligonier, Pa., tied for second after the first round at 67, both faded badly.

Maxwell had 75 for a 142 total and Palmer was one stroke worse at 76 for 143.

Although the 6,467-yard Baton Rouge Country Club course actually was in better condition, due to two days without rain, scores were far above the opening round when 25 players cracked par 72.

A 36-hole final round is set Sunday, with the field trimmed to the top 60 professionals and five amateurs.

New Orleans Handicap Won By Tenacious

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Tenacious, gunned into a running fury at the head of the stretch, outclassed his field to win the $62,500 New Orleans Handicap Saturday.

The 5-year-old son of Challedon, the decided choice of the 17,150 fans at the Fair Grounds, had a four-length spread over Pete's Folly at the wire.

Hare Raising took the show spot.

Tenacious, owned by the estate of Joe W. Brown who died only two weeks ago, toured the mile and one-eighth in 1:50.1.

The victory was a repeat showing for Tenacious who edged Oh Johnny in last year's renewal and again clinched the Fair Grounds handicap title.

Tenacious, ridden by Ray Broussard as usual, returned $5, $3.20 and $2.80. The Bishop entry paid $3.80 to place and $2.80 to show.

Broussard made no mistake with the trim Brown speedster and kept him in the middle of the 10-horse pack while Hare Raising and True Verdict from the William G. Helis Jr., stable set a torrid early pace.

Broussard gunned Tenacious as the field swung out of the back stretch and moved into the long final turn.

At the head of the stretch, Broussard had Tenacious in the middle of the track as Hare Raising and True Verdict wilted and Pete's Folly made his move on the outside.

Broussard glanced over his shoulder and went to the whip when Pete's Folly came through with his stretch burst. Tenacious, seemingly insulted by the sting of Broussard's whip, answered with another burst and was pulling away at the wire.

Lattner Named Aide At Denver

DENVER (AP) — Johnny Lattner, an All-America halfback at Notre Dame, was named assistant football coach at the University of Denver Saturday.

Lattner, 26, was a key figure in the Irish backfields of 1951-53 when Notre Dame won 24 games, lost four and tied three. He won both the Maxwell Award and the Heisman Trophy.

Cox Nets 38 As Kentucky Defeats Vols

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Jumping Johnny Cox bombarded the basket for 38 points, the highest total of his brilliant three-year career, as Kentucky's top-ranked basketball team overwhelmed Tennessee Saturday night, 69-56.

Cox's previous high was 34 points, which he scored as a sophomore. His top mark this season had been 27 points, scored against Florida State Dec. 1 .

The victory, before a capacity crowd of 6,200, gave Kentucky a 23-2 mark for the season, and 12-2 in the Southeastern Conference. Kentucky's sole losses both on the road, were to Vanderbilt and Mississippi State.

Tennessee wound up its season with an 8-6 SEC record and 14-8 mark over-all.

The Vols, behind eight points at the half, 30-38, narrowed the gap to 37-40 with 17:51 left. But Cox ignited a Kentucky drive that put the Wildcats ahead by 11 points, 51-40, in the next five minutes.

TRAINING BRIEFS

Cunningham To Talk Over Pact

HOLDOUT TO ARRIVE

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) —Joe Cunningham, the St. Louis Cardinals' "holdout" first baseman, will arrive in camp Sunday to talk over his contract difficulties with General Manager Bing Devine.

Cunningham, the first serious St. Louis front line holdout since Del Rice and Howie Pollet in the early 50's and the first since the club was purchased by the Busch Brewery, told Devine in a telephone conversation he thought the differences about salary could be ironed out more quickly in a face-to-face meeting.

Rain and wet grounds confined the day's workout to running in the outfield and some throwing.

LARY BRUISED

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI)—Pitcher Frank Lary became Detroit's first "casualty" of the spring Saturday as rain washed out the Tigers' training session for the third straight day.

Lary has a bruise on the bottom of his right foot, but Trainer Jack Homel who treated it, said the bruise was more painful than serious.

Manager Bill Norman made two attenpts to put the Tigers through a workout but finally gave up because of the soggy condition of Henley Field.

A'S HIT

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—The Kansas City Athletics tuned up for their first intra-squad game Sunday with a four hour drill and once again the batting cage got the most attention.

Manager Harry Craft liked the long ball blasting of his 24-year-old outfielder Roger Maris.

"Maris has a chance for real greatness," said Craft: "He looks like he's ready to pick up where he left off last year when he hit 28 homers for us. Along with Bob Cerv, he gives us a mighty good one-two punch."

NATS RAINED OUT

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Rain washed out a scheduled intra-squad game for the Washington Senators Saturday.

Manager Cookie Lavagetto warned he would crack down on any player who failed to observe training rules.

CHACON JJOINS REDS

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI)—Elio Chacon, a rookie infielder up from Havana of the International League, joined the Cincinnati Reds camp Saturday along with veteran outfielder Del Ennis.

The 20-year-old Chacon, a native of Venezuela, batted .290 last season and was named to the International League all - star team. He is one of the Reds' prize rookies, whom General Manager Gabe Paul claims is in demand by several major league clubs.

"I can make a good deal for him right now if I wanted to," Paul said.

Ennis came to the Reds during the winter in a trade with the St. Louis Cardinals.

PHILS OPEN CAMP

CLEARWATER, Fla. (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies officially opened their spring training Saturday with a two-hour batting drill under cloudy skies.

Infielder Frank Herrera, who arrived one day late, signed his contract after a brief conference with General Manager John Quinn and only two Phils are now outside the fold.

Chico Fernandez, delayed by an auto accident in his native Cuba, is expected to sign upon his arrival Monday, but utility man Dave Philley is officially classified as a holdout, and is still at his home in Paris, Tex.

VIRDON HURT

FORT MYERS, Fla. (UPI) — Bill Virdon had to have three stitches taken in the lower part of his left ear Saturday after he was struck by a ball that took a weird bounce in the outfield during a Pittsburgh Pirates squad game.

Virdon was waiting for Bill Mazeroski's line single to center when the ball skipped and struck him on the ear, denting his glasses and inflicting the cut. The injury, however, wasn't serious.

The Jimmie Dykes defeated the Frank Oceaks, 7-1, in a six inning, free-hitting affair, although there was only one home run. Rookie Larry Elliott hit the round tripper in the fourth inning.

ROOKIE 20 ARRIVE

BRADENTON, Fla. (UPI)—The Milwaukee Braves announced Saturday that Chuck Cottier, young second base prospect who has been in the Army under the six-month program, would join the club here Sunday.

Cottier, 23, hit only .269 for the Braves' Atlanta farm club last year but is an outstanding defensive player. He currently is on the roster of the Louisville affiliate.

The announcement of Cottier's imminent arrival followed by 24 hours the disclosure that Mel Roach, No. 1 choice to replace the ailing Red Schoendienst at second base, would not be ready by opening day because of a knee injury suffered last August.

ALSTON NAMES LINEUP

VERO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Manager Walter Alston Saturday named his lineup for the Los Angeles Dodgers' first intra-squad game Sunday.

Alston tabbed lefthanders Johnny Podres and Sandy Koufax and righthanders Don Drysdale and Ralph Mauriello to pitch in the six or seven inning contest against an all-star group managed by Clay Bryant.

First baseman Norm Larker and third baseman Earl Robinson are the only Dodger roster men on Bryant's team. The others are triple-A minor leaguers.

CUBS GET SCARE

MESA, Ariz. (UPI)— The Chicago Cubs got a scare Saturday when Moe Drabowsky and Dolan Nichols collided while running in the outfield and Drabowsky came off the field holding his right shoulder.

Fortunately, the injury was only a bruise and the brilliant young pitcher expects to take a turn on the mound in Sunday's first intra-squad game.

Drabowsky missed the last half of the 1958 season because of an elbow injury and the Cubs' hopes for 59 hinge on his ability to stage a comeback.

GIANTS TIE

PHOENIX (UPI) — Eddie Bresoud's homerun and a double by Bill White scoring Jimmy Davenport were the run-making thrusts here today as the San Francisco Giants played to a 1-1, three-inning tie in the spring's opening intra-squad game.

Mgr. Bill Rigney, injured in a Feb. 8 auto smashup, watched the Giants for the first time from a seat in the stands.

BERNICE — A bronze safety plaque and two other safety awards have been presented to Salley Grocer Company of Bernice, Monroe and Shreveport, according to an announcement by Van Salley this week.

The bronze plaque was received in the 1,000,000 miles and under, over-the-road division truck safety contest of the Louisiana Motor Transport Association and the American Trucking Association. The award is given by Trailmobile, Inc. of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Salley trucks piled up a record of 692,741 accident-free miles to earn the plaque.

A Trailmobile Safety award for the most improved record last year in the same division was also won by Salley. Last year the company had 686,938 miles with one accident.

The third honor was the accident prevention award for achieving an exceptional safety record presented by the Metropolitian Council of Safety of New Orleans.

NBC To End Segregated Tournaments

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)— The National Baseball Congress said Saturday its segregated Dixie Tournaments for Negro teams will end in 1961.

Ray DuMont, president of the non-pro organization, said Negro teams beginning in that year, will be permitted to play in all NBC-sanctioned tournaments.

When the NBC was founded in 1935 it drew no color line. A team of white and Negro players, with Satchel Paige as its star hurler, won the first national non-pro title for Bismarck, N. D., that year.

Negro tourneys climaxing in the Dixie Negro title were set up when "Southern state commissioners absolutely refused to permit Negro players to participate in their state tournaments," DuMont said.

DuMont said an eight - team Georgia Negro League, the Branch Rickey, has been franchised in the congress' 1959 National Assn. of Leagues, and others may affiliate.

"There's not a single all-Negro league operating in the North," he added. "However, the South has shown no signs in the non-pro ranks of eliminating segregation among players and teams.

"We have always contended that baseball should not draw the color line but have extended the Dixie Negro program for two more years with the understanding that when state franchises are issued in 1961 Negroes will be permitted to play in all our sanctioned tournaments."

N. Carolina Scores 72-62 AAC Victory

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)— Stocky Harvey Salz sparked third-ranked North Carolina to a 72-62 victory over Duke Saturday, giving the Tar Heels a tie for the regular season Atlantic Coast Conference basketball championship with North Carolina State.

Salz, a 6-1 junior from Brooklyn, N.Y., scored 17 points in the second half of the regionally televised game to help the Tar Heels repel a late Duke surge.

The Tar Heels, stung by successive defeats by Maryland and Virginia in their last two outings, tied North Carolina State for first place in the ACC, each with 12-2 records. The regular season ended Saturday.

Coin flips at Raleigh Sunday will determine the pairings in next week's ACC championship tournament, which determines the loop's NCAA entry.

The loss put Duke in a tie with Maryland for third place, each with a 7-7 record.

Salz, who wound up with 21 points, took over with 8:20 left in the second half after Duke had cut a 12-point Tar Heel lead down to a 49-49 tie.

His four field goals helped the Tar Heels regain the lead at 61-52 with about four minutes left. Ray Stanley scored two free throws and senior Danny Loptz hit on a rebound during the surge.

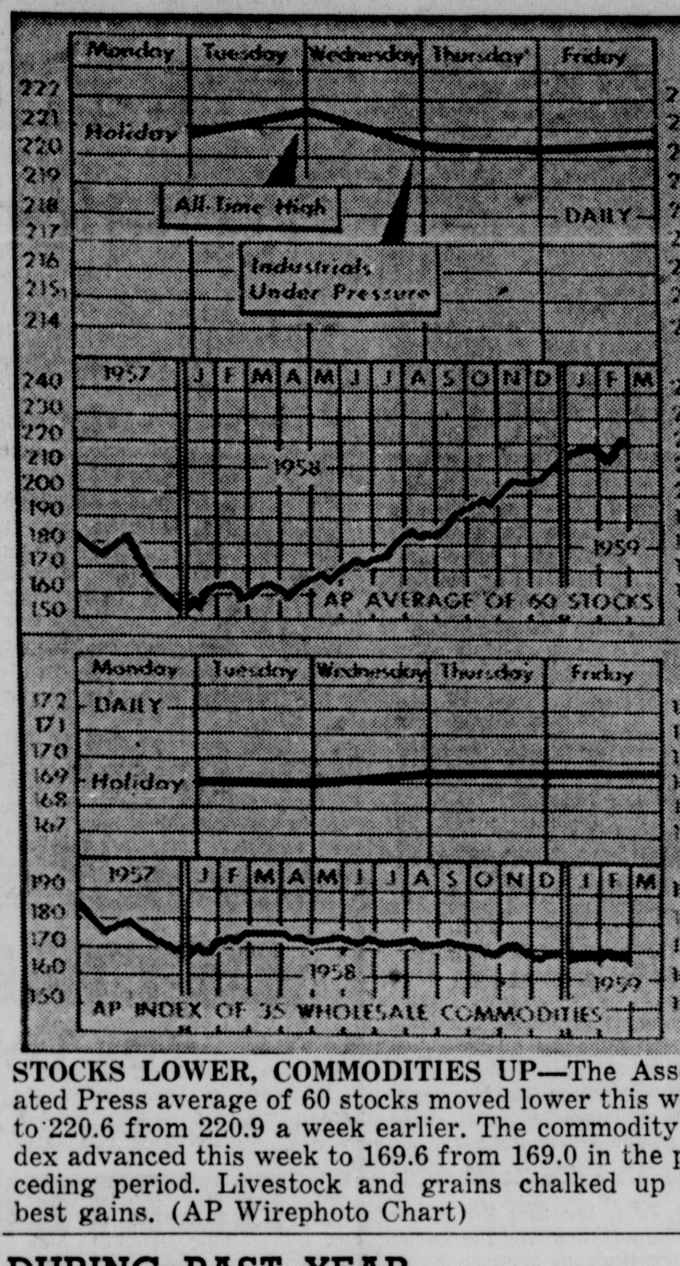
The Tar Heels withstood a Duke full-court press and capitalized on free throws the rest of the way.

North Carolina, sluggish during the first few minutes of the game between the neighborhood arch rivals, pulled to a 15-7 lead midway of the first half. Sophomore Doug Moe led the way as the Tar Heels increased the margin to 27-15, and they held a 33-21 halftime advantage.

The young Blue Devils ripped back after the rest period and scored seven consecutive points, cutting the Tar Heel lead to 35-28. The only score North Carolina could muster during the first three minutes of that half was a free throw by Moe.

Sophomore Fred Kast hit nine straight points for the Blue Devils and he, along with Johnny Frye and Jack Boyd, helped Duke gain the 49-49 tie.

The Tar Heels made 25 of 49 field goal attempts for a 51 per cent average. Duke, which outrebounded the Tar Heels 50-39, hit on only 40 per cent of its floor shots.



STOCKS LOWER, COMMODITIES UP—The Associated Press average of 60 stocks moved lower this week to 220.6 from 220.9 a week earlier. The commodity index advanced this week to 169.6 from 169.0 in the preceding period. Livestock and grains chalked up the best gains. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Gas Sales Temper Crude Oil Losses

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Natural gas income in 1958 was more than just bread and butter to many an oil operator.

In some cases, such income prevented disappointing financial reports on the recession plagued year from taking a more dismal turn.

One major company this week reported a 22 per cent drop in new income. A healthy increase in gas sales tempered losses as crude production dropped to less than one half the maximum efficiency rate.

Although imports have received most of the blame, some operators long have contended that the phenominal growth of natural gas demand has been a factor in the sharp slump in domestic production since the end of the Suez crisis in mid-1957. Two oil economists told the society of petroleum engineers last week the boom in gas consumption has had almost as great an impact on the domestic producer as have oil imports.

W. B. Davis and J. L. Schweizer Jr., of the Pittsburgh, Pa., headquarters of Gulf Oil Corp., said the big increase in gas consumption began at about the same time the U.S. became a net importer of petroleum.

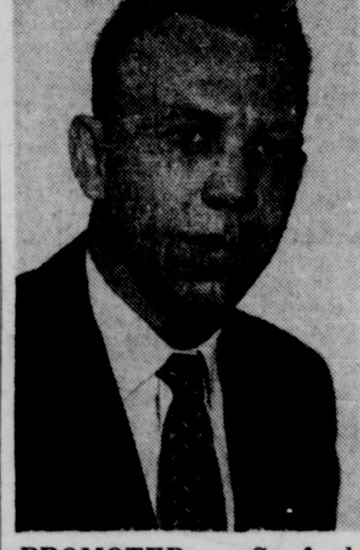
A study by the economists indicated domestic producers between 1947 and 1958, lost 1,400,000 barrels a day to imports and an additional 1,200,000 to natural gas.

Projections of the trends of 1920 through 1958, the economists said, indicate natural gas will continue to take sharp bites out of the crude market.

Their study indicates an average growth rate in crude demand of about 3 per cent per year between now and 1970, compared to about 5½ per cent annually from 1920 through 1958. An annual growth rate between 4 and 5 per cent until 1970 was indicated for natural gas, compared to about 7½ per cent the past 38 years.

Davis and Schweizer said natural gas in the past 10 years has almost doubled its share of the domestic market. In 1920 natural gas supplied only 4.2 per cent of United States energy requirements. Last year gas supplied 26.7 per cent and the Gulf economists believe this figure will climb to 30.5 by 1970. Crude oil jumped from 13.3 to 42.4 per cent in 38 years and another jump to 44.5 is expected by 1970.

Humble Oil & Refining Co., the Texas affiliate of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) reported that last year's earnings were 39 million dollars below 1957. Gross revenue declined over 16 million dollars but increased sales permitted natural gas to account for over 65 million dollars of total revenue.



PROMOTED — Sanford N. Harrod has been named Superintendent of the nitroparaffins production facilities at Commercial Solvents Corporation's Sterlington, Louisiana, plant, according to an announcement by J. E. Wheeler, general production manager. Mr. Harrod succeeds Mr. Ambrose Rubey who has become Superintendent of CSC's Peoria, Illinois plant.

Grain Futures Market Forges Steadily Ahead

CHICAGO (AP) — A succession of bullish influences gave the grain futures market this week its longest sustained higher price trend in months.

Virtually every contract on the Board of Trade moved steadily ahead, some by broad leaps on each of the four trading days. Setbacks were rare and small and limited to only a few deliveries. For the week, however, all scored substantial gains with some going to new highs for the season.

The stoutest bullish influence came in Friday's trading. It was the Department of Agriculture's revision of grains and soybeans placed under government loan in the price support program.

For all grains reported the figures were surprisingly high and in some instances, particularly wheat, exceeded the most liberal trade estimates.

There was an active demand at times during the week by domestic processors of all grains and soybeans but exports were absent until Friday when Japan and Israel bought small amounts of soybeans.

At the end of the week, wheat was 3¼-6⅛ cents a bushel higher than a week ago, March $2.04¼¼-¾; corn 1⅛-1⅞ higher, March old type contract $1.16¼; oats 1⅛-2⅜ higher, March 66-65⅞; rye 1½-3⅞ higher, March $1.40¼-40, and soybeans 2½-3⅜ higher, March $2.21⅛-¼.

Hoffa Given Authority To Call Strike

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Teamsters Union directors has given James Hoffa authority to call a strike against Sears, Roebuck and Co.

The union is trying to organize Sears mail order, warehouse and truck driver employes across the country.

There was no elaboration from the union on how a strike should be conducted.

However, in union organizational campaigns a call for a strike of a non-organized company or plant ordinarily means a picketing of the company's operations.

Under such a "strike" the union seeking to organize the workers establishes picket lines in efforts to persuade employes to enroll in the union and customers to refrain from conducting business with the struck company.

Ordinarily there is no requirement that any company workers who have signed up with the union leave their jobs. On the contrary, in many instances those already enrolled remain on their jobs and continue to advocate union enrollment of fellow workers.

Hoffa, president of the union, announced Friday he is negotiating to add some 10,000 oil refinery workers to his union.

He said the door is open to any other independent group to come under the Teamsters banner.

FROM INDUSTRY LEADERS

Decision On Atomic Oil Blasts Awaited

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Bureau of Mines hopes to know soon whether the oil and chemical industries are ready to gamble $1,250,000 that atomic blasts will make extraction of oil from shale rock economically feasible.

The government would gamble an equal amount.

A proposition to that effect was formally put to 70 firms and individuals in mid-February by bureau chief Marling J. Ankeny as the outgrowth of a government-sponsored meeting of 200 oil and chemical executives and scientists in Dallas, Jan. 6.

The first experiment would take place near Buchanan, Colo., next year, with others to follow in Utah and Wyoming. Geologists estimate the vast shale fields of the three states could produce a trillion barrels of oil if a cheap way to recover it could be found.

Ankeny is awaiting the responses. Some industry leaders expressed cautious interest at Dallas. Others were critical. But all were mindful of the day when natural oil deposits become so depleted they will need a replacement.

Richfield Oil Corp., Los Angeles, has opened talks on a kindred proposition with the Canadian government. Richfield leases two million acres of tar sands in the Athabaska area of northeast Alberta. Tar sands are solidified oil. Richfield believes the terrific heat generated by a nuclear explosion would free the oil.

That is the basic principle of the proposed U.S. experiments. An atomic blast would pulverize thousands of tons of shale which would then be ignited. As the shale burned oil would settle and be piped off.

The Buchanan test would be conducted underground, first with a small thermal recovery shot to obtain information about the actual retorting—or recovery—process. If this paid off a 10-kiloton blast would follow.

The site chosen is near Union Oil Co. property in northwest Colorado. The bureau said the shale, after the detonation, should average 20 gallons of oil a ton. No present method of processing shale has proved profitable. The government conducted long experiments at Rifle, Colo., but finally quit.

The oils extracted in the present process are so thick it is too expensive to refine them into gasoline and other products. Engineers of the atomic energy commission and the Ernest O. Lawrence Radiation Laboratory, Berkeley, Calif., believe nuclear heat may bridge this gap.

They also doubt that resultant radioactivity would be a dangerous factor because it would be trapped in melted rock.

Many major oil and chemical companies own extensive holdings in the areas marked for exploitation. If they participate, as Ankeny hopes, the experiment would become a part of operation plowshare—use of nuclear devices for peaceful purposes.

Ankeny will analyze the replies and give the final result to the companies responding, If there is general agreement, the project would be launched some time after the United States' self-imposed ban on all nuclear tests expires next Oct. 31.

IN BUSINESS, FINANCE

Many Key Lines Show Big Gains

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK (AP) — Strike jitters at home, and war jitters in Berlin, gave the economy a forward push this week.

Strong consumer spending contributed to the upturn.

Many key lines showed sensational gains over late February of 1958 when blizzards, storms and a deepening recession held business activity in check.

Steel output, highest in two years, was up a thumping 69 per cent from a year ago.

Auto production, highest in six weeks, showed a 40 per cent increase over 1958, coal production was up 18 per cent, paperboard production up 11½ per cent, coal up 18 per cent, crude oil up 6 per cent and electric power up 7½ per cent.

Freight carloadings scored a gain of 17¾ per cent.

You could see evidence of strong consumer buying power in the latest government figures on department store sales, up 24 per cent over the like week last year.

Retail economists were quick to point out that the comparison was with an unusually poor week in 1958. It had one less selling day for many stores (Washington's birthday, which fell on a Sunday). Also, cold, blustery weather kept many shoppers home.

Be that as it may, the percentage figures—which included gains up to 46 per cent in the Philadelphia Federal Reserve District — made good reading.

Also calculated to fan optimism were the latest figures on new car sales. Retail dealers delivered 146,700 brand new cars in the second 10 days of February for a gain of 34 per cent over the same 10 days last year.

The auto industry turned out its millionth passenger car of 1959 this week. In 1958, the year's millionth auto didn't rool off the assembly line until half way through March.

Tough talk by Soviet Premier Khrushchev spurred demand for rocket and missile shares this week. Businessmen, consumers and just about everybody else could take comfort, though, from President Eisenhower's assurance that the Western allies won't yield one single inch in affirming their right of access to West Berlin.

With the increasingly tense international situation the strongest outside influence on Wall Street, stock averages pushed again to new highs.

Stock sales totaled 16,355,230 shares for the week against 18,504,770 shares in the previous week and 8,622,580 for the corresponding week in 1958.

Bond sales in the latest week amounted to $27,083,000 compared to $32,280,000 the week before and $19,755,600 in the same week last year.

The long arm of the tax collector reached a bit farther into the pockets of U. S. businessmen this week. The United States Supreme Court handed down two decisions that increase the taxing powers of the states. One concerns business does within a state by out-of-state corporations, and the other concerns imported raw materials like lumber or iron ore. Under certain circumstances, said the court, both are subject to state taxes.

A top psychologist took a look at the American consumer, and acknowledged that he still doesn't know what makes him tick.

"Man as a consumer," said Prof. James J. Gibson of Cornell, "still eludes the theories of present day psychology. And the dullest customer can still laugh up his sleeve at the smartest psychologist who pretends to control his buying behavier."

Briefly over the business scene:

Tax troubles plague the life insurance industry. Prudential Insurance Co. of America says pending legislation would boost its 1958 tax bill, currently estimated at 35 million dollars, to 78 millions. . . . The U. S. Navy's ships's stores office, headquarters for a worldwide chain of 175 government-subsidized retail stores for Navy personnel, has installed a Univac electronic brain to keep tabs on its multi - million-dollar merchandising operation. . . . The American Bankers Assn. says commercial banks will spend 143 million dollars on advertising this year.

Cotton Futures Show Small Net Market Changes

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton future prices turned reactionary this week and closed mixed with small net changes. Active contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange finished 7 cents a bale higher to 40 cents a bale lower than a week ago.

Prompt stoppage of notices, steadied the current March position. Other old crop months were firm on continued prospects of a tight supply of "free cotton" at the end of the season.

Improved demand for textiles, particularly the bellwether 80-square print cloth, also bolstered the futures market.

Offerings were furnished through profit-taking. Some selling stemmed from the unfavorable export picture.

Commenting on the outlook for U.S. cotton in the current season, the New York Cotton Exchange service bureau forecast a decline in worldwide use.

Worldwide consumption of American cotton this season was placed at 12,600,000 bales, as compared with 14,000,000 last season. Although U.S. mills have increased their consumption, it was pointed out, foreign use of American cotton has declined because of reduced supplies.

Export of U.S. cotton for the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the exchange at only 71,000 bales. This compares with 96,000 the previous week and 131,000 in the like 1958 week.

Exports for the season through Tuesday were estimated at 1,087,000 bales vs 3,252,000 a year ago.

The exchange commented that exports, which totaled about 5,700,000 bales last season, will do well to reach 3,000,000 in the current crop year.

Stocks Score Strong Gains For February

By ED MORSE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a substantial gain for the month of February despite some profit-taking which skimmed a bit of the cream off the top this week.

The market, for the second straight week, stood at new historic highs in the four-day trading week just past. Observance of Washington's Birthday on Monday cut the week's trading.

Profit taking on the most recent sustained rise was the ruling theme this week but an assortment of "glamour" stocks made some fantastic gains.

Touched off by the shaky Berlin situation, a number of electronics and rocket - fuel issues raced ahead while the blue chips which govern the over-all market average backed away. Some chemicals and assorted issues, boosted by good prospects or recommendations by investment advisers, also went to town.

The blue chips which govern the popular market averages did not do so well, aside from American Telephone. The latter's advance, incidentally, was most helpful in boosting the Dow Jones industrial average to a new record peak of 603.50 Friday. This stock is included in the utility component of the Associated Press average. The AP utilities posted a new high for 1958-59.

On Tuesday, the market followed through well enough on the previous week's upsurge to post a record high of $221.60 in the AP 60-stock average. On the same day the Dow industrials progressed further into record ground, posting a high of 602.91.

By the end of the week, however, the AP 60-stock average was down to $220.60, showing a net loss of 30 cents on the week. For the month of February the average was up $3.00.

U.S. Government bonds improved slightly this week in light trading but the corporate market milled ineffectually.

Trading on the New York Stock Exchange amounted to $27,083,000 par value, down from $32,280,000 the previous five-day week but up from $19,755,600 for the corresponding week a year ago.

TRAINING BRIEFS

Cunningham To Talk Over Pact

HOLDOUT TO ARRIVE

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) —Joe Cunningham, the St. Louis Cardinals' "holdout" first baseman, will arrive in camp Sunday to talk over his contract difficulties with General Manager Bing Devine.

Cunningham, the first serious St. Louis front line holdout since Del Rice and Howie Pollet in the early 50's and the first since the club was purchased by the Busch Brewery, told Devine in a telephone conversation he thought the differences about salary could be ironed out more quickly in a face-to-face meeting.

Rain and wet grounds confined the day's workout to running in the outfield and some throwing.

LARY BRUISED

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI)—Pitcher Frank Lary became Detroit's first "casualty" of the spring Saturday as rain washed out the Tigers' training session for the third straight day.

Lary has a bruise on the bottom of his right foot, but Trainer Jack Homel who treated it, said the bruise was more painful than serious.

Manager Bill Norman made two attenpts to put the Tigers through a workout but finally gave up because of the soggy condition of Henley Field.

A'S HIT

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—The Kansas City Athletics tuned up for their first intra-squad game Sunday with a four hour drill and once again the batting cage got the most attention.

Manager Harry Craft liked the long ball blasting of his 24-year-old outfielder Roger Maris.

"Maris has a chance for real greatness," said Craft: "He looks like he's ready to pick up where he left off last year when he hit 28 homers for us. Along with Bob Cerv, he gives us a mighty good one-two punch."

NATS RAINED OUT

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Rain washed out a scheduled intra-squad game for the Washington Senators Saturday.

Manager Cookie Lavagetto warned he would crack down on any player who failed to observe training rules.

CHACON JJOINS REDS

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI)—Elio Chacon, a rookie infielder up from Havana of the International League, joined the Cincinnati Reds camp Saturday along with veteran outfielder Del Ennis.

The 20-year-old Chacon, a native of Venezuela, batted .290 last season and was named to the International League all - star team. He is one of the Reds' prize rookies, whom General Manager Gabe Paul claims is in demand by several major league clubs.

"I can make a good deal for him right now if I wanted to," Paul said.

Ennis came to the Reds during the winter in a trade with the St. Louis Cardinals.

PHILS OPEN CAMP

CLEARWATER, Fla. (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies officially opened their spring training Saturday with a two-hour batting drill under cloudy skies.

Infielder Frank Herrera, who arrived one day late, signed his contract after a brief conference with General Manager John Quinn and only two Phils are now outside the fold.

Chico Fernandez, delayed by an auto accident in his native Cuba, is expected to sign upon his arrival Monday, but utility man Dave Philley is officially classified as a holdout, and is still at his home in Paris, Tex.

VIRDON HURT

FORT MYERS, Fla. (UPI) — Bill Virdon had to have three stitches taken in the lower part of his left ear Saturday after he was struck by a ball that took a weird bounce in the outfield during a Pittsburgh Pirates squad game.

Virdon was waiting for Bill Mazeroski's line single to center when the ball skipped and struck him on the ear, denting his glasses and inflicting the cut. The injury, however, wasn't serious.

The Jimmie Dykes defeated the Frank Oceaks, 7-1, in a six inning, free-hitting affair, although there was only one home run. Rookie Larry Elliott hit the round tripper in the fourth inning.

ROOKIE 20 ARRIVE

BRADENTON, Fla. (UPI)—The Milwaukee Braves announced Saturday that Chuck Cottier, young second base prospect who has been in the Army under the six-month program, would join the club here Sunday.

Cottier, 23, hit only .269 for the Braves' Atlanta farm club last year but is an outstanding defensive player. He currently is on the roster of the Louisville affiliate.

The announcement of Cottier's imminent arrival followed by 24 hours the disclosure that Mel Roach, No. 1 choice to replace the ailing Red Schoendienst at second base, would not be ready by opening day because of a knee injury suffered last August.

ALSTON NAMES LINEUP

VERO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Manager Walter Alston Saturday named his lineup for the Los Angeles Dodgers' first intra-squad game Sunday.

Alston tabbed lefthanders Johnny Podres and Sandy Koufax and righthanders Don Drysdale and Ralph Mauriello to pitch in the six or seven inning contest against an all-star group managed by Clay Bryant.

First baseman Norm Larker and third baseman Earl Robinson are the only Dodger roster men on Bryant's team. The others are triple-A minor leaguers.

CUBS GET SCARE

MESA, Ariz. (UPI)— The Chicago Cubs got a scare Saturday when Moe Drabowsky and Dolan Nichols collided while running in the outfield and Drabowsky came off the field holding his right shoulder.

Fortunately, the injury was only a bruise and the brilliant young pitcher expects to take a turn on the mound in Sunday's first intra-squad game.

Drabowsky missed the last half of the 1958 season because of an elbow injury and the Cubs' hopes for 59 hinge on his ability to stage a comeback.

GIANTS TIE

PHOENIX (UPI) — Eddie Bresoud's homerun and a double by Bill White scoring Jimmy Davenport were the run-making thrusts here today as the San Francisco Giants played to a 1-1, three-inning tie in the spring's opening intra-squad game.

Mgr. Bill Rigney, injured in a Feb. 8 auto smashup, watched the Giants for the first time from a seat in the stands.

BERNICE — A bronze safety plaque and two other safety awards have been presented to Salley Grocer Company of Bernice, Monroe and Shreveport, according to an announcement by Van Salley this week.

The bronze plaque was received in the 1,000,000 miles and under, over-the-road division truck safety contest of the Louisiana Motor Transport Association and the American Trucking Association. The award is given by Trailmobile, Inc. of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Salley trucks piled up a record of 692,741 accident-free miles to earn the plaque.

A Trailmobile Safety award for the most improved record last year in the same division was also won by Salley. Last year the company had 686,938 miles with one accident.

The third honor was the accident prevention award for achieving an exceptional safety record presented by the Metropolitan Council of Safety of New Orleans.

NBC To End Segregated Tournaments

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)— The National Baseball Congress said Saturday its segregated Dixie Tournaments for Negro teams will end in 1961.

Ray DuMont, president of the non-pro organization, said Negro teams beginning in that year, will be permitted to play in all NBC-sanctioned tournaments.

When the NBC was founded in 1935 it drew no color line. A team of white and Negro players, with Satchel Paige as its star hurler, won the first national non-pro title for Bismarck, N. D., that year.

Negro tourneys climaxing in the Dixie Negro title were set up when "Southern state commissioners absolutely refused to permit Negro players to participate in their state tournaments," DuMont said.

DuMont said an eight - team Georgia Negro League, the Branch Rickey, has been franchised in the congress' 1959 National Assn. of Leagues, and others may affiliate.

"There's not a single all-Negro league operating in the North," he added. "However, the South has shown no signs in the non-pro ranks of eliminating segregation among players and teams.

"We have always contended that baseball should not draw the color line but have extended the Dixie Negro program for two more years with the understanding that when state franchises are issued in 1961 Negroes will be permitted to play in all our sanctioned tournaments."

N. Carolina Scores 72-62 AAC Victory

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—Stocky Harvey Salz sparked third-ranked North Carolina to a 72-62 victory over Duke Saturday, giving the Tar Heels a tie for the regular season Atlantic Coast Conference basketball championship with North Carolina State.

Salz, a 6-1 junior from Brooklyn, N.Y., scored 17 points in the second half of the regionally televised game to help the Tar Heels repel a late Duke surge.

The Tar Heels, stung by successive defeats by Maryland and Virginia in their last two outings, tied North Carolina State for first place in the ACC, each with 12-2 records. The regular season ended Saturday.

Coin flips at Raleigh Sunday will determine the pairings in next week's ACC championship tournament, which determines the loop's NCAA entry.

The loss put Duke in a tie with Maryland for third place, each with a 7-7 record.

Salz, who wound up with 21 points, took over with 8:20 left in the second half after Duke had cut a 12-point Tar Heel lead down to a 49-49 tie.

His four field goals helped the Tar Heels regain the lead at 61-52 with about four minutes left. Ray Stanley scored two free throws and senior Danny Loptz hit on a rebound during the surge.

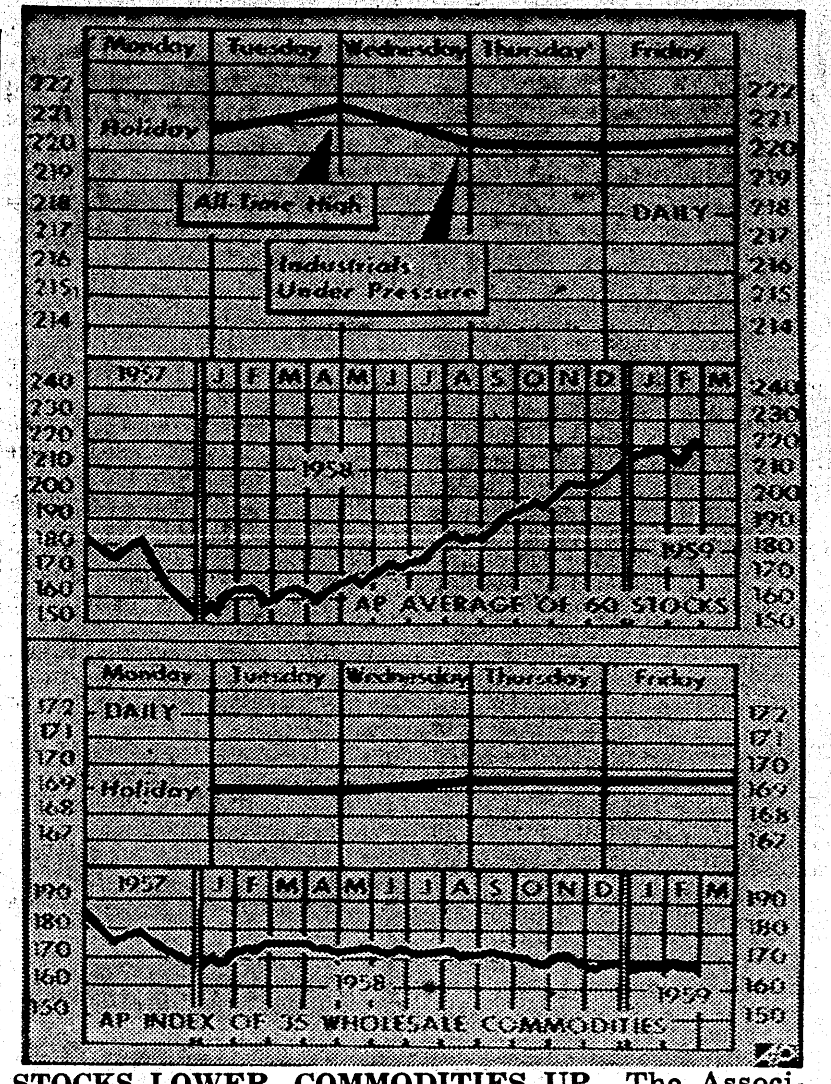
The Tar Heels withstood a Duke full-court press and capitalized on free throws the rest of the way.

North Carolina, sluggish during the first few minutes of the game between the neighborhood arch rivals, pulled to a 15-7 lead midway of the first half. Sophomore Doug Moe led the way as the Tar Heels increased the margin to 27-15, and they held a 33-21 halftime advantage.

The young Blue Devils ripped back after the rest period and scored seven consecutive points, cutting the Tar Heel lead to 35-28. The only score North Carolina could muster during the first three minutes of that half was a free throw by Moe.

Sophomore Fred Kast hit nine straight points for the Blue Devils and he, along with Johnny Frye and Jack Boyd, helped Duke gain the 49-49 tie.

The Tar Heels made 25 of 49 field goal attempts for a 51 per cent average. Duke, which outrebounded the Tar Heels 50-39, hit on only 40 per cent of its floor shots.



STOCKS LOWER, COMMODITIES UP—The Associated Press average of 60 stocks moved lower this week to 220.6 from 220.9 a week earlier. The commodity index advanced this week to 169.6 from 169.0 in the preceding period. Livestock and grains chalked up the best gains. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Gas Sales Temper Crude Oil Losses

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Natural gas income in 1958 was more than just bread and butter to many an oil operator.

In some cases, such income prevented disappointing financial reports on the recession plagued year from taking a more dismal turn.

One major company this week reported a 22 per cent drop in new income. A healthy increase in gas sales tempered losses as crude production dropped to less than one half the maximum efficiency rate.

Although imports have received most of the blame, some operators long have contended that the phenominal growth of natural gas demand has been a factor in the sharp slump in domestic production since the end of the Suez crisis in mid-1957. Two oil economists told the society of petroleum engineers last week the boom in gas consumption has had almost as great an impact on the domestic producer as have oil imports.

W. B. Davis and J. L. Schweizer Jr., of the Pittsburgh, Pa., headquarters of Gulf Oil Corp., said the big increase in gas consumption began at about the same time the U.S. became a net importer of petroleum.

A study by the economists indicated domestic producers between 1947 and 1958, lost 1,400,000 barrels a day to imports and an additional 1,200,000 to natural gas.

Projections of the trends of 1920 through 1958, the economists said, indicate natural gas will continue to take sharp bites out of the crude market.

Their study indicates an average growth rate in crude demand of about 3 per cent per year between now and 1970, compared to about 5½ per cent annually from 1920 through 1958. An annual growth rate between 4 and 5 per cent until 1970 was indicated for natural gas, compared to about 7½ per cent the past 38 years.

Davis and Schweizer said natural gas in the past 10 years has almost doubled its share of the domestic market. In 1920 natural gas supplied only 4.2 per cent of United States energy requirements. Last year gas supplied 26.7 per cent and the Gulf economists believe this figure will climb to 30.5 by 1970. Crude oil jumped from 13.3 to 42.4 per cent in 38 years and another jump to 44.5 is expected by 1970.

Humble Oil & Refining Co., the Texas affiliate of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) reported that last year's earnings were 39 million dollars below 1957. Gross revenue declined over 16 million dollars but increased sales permitted natural gas to account for over 65 million dollars of total revenue.

PROMOTED — Sanford N. Harrod has been named Superintendent of the nitroparaffins production facilities at Commercial Solvents Corporation's Sterlington, Louisiana, plant, according to an announcement by J. E. Wheeler, general production manager. Mr. Harrod succeeds Mr. Ambrose Rubey who has become Superintendent of CSC's Peoria, Illinois plant.

Grain Futures Market Forges Steadily Ahead

CHICAGO (AP) — A succession of bullish influences gave the grain futures market this week its longest sustained higher price trend in months.

Virtually every contract on the Board of Trade moved steadily ahead, some by broad leaps on each of the four trading days. Setbacks were rare and small and limited to only a few deliveries. For the week, however, all scored substantial gains with some going to new highs for the season.

The stoutest bullish influence came in Friday's trading. It was the Department of Agriculture's revision of grains and soybeans placed under government loan in the price support program.

For all grains reported the figures were surprisingly high and in some instances, particularly wheat, exceeded the most liberal trade estimates.

There was an active demand at times during the week by domestic processors of all grains and soybeans but exports were absent until Friday when Japan and Israel bought small amounts of soybeans.

At the end of the week, wheat was 3¼-6⅛ cents a bushel higher than a week ago, March $2.04¼-¾; corn 1⅛-1⅞ higher, March old type contract $1.16¼; oats 1⅛-2⅜ higher, March 66-65⅞; rye 1½-3⅞ higher, March $1.40¼-40, and soybeans 2½-3⅝ higher, March $2.21⅛-¼.

Hoffa Given Authority To Call Strike

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Teamsters Union directors has given James Hoffa authority to call a strike against Sears, Roebuck and Co.

The union is trying to organize Sears mail order, warehouse and truck driver employes across the country.

There was no elaboration from the union on how a strike should be conducted.

However, in union organizational campaigns a call for a strike of a non-organized company or plant ordinarily means a picketing of the company's operations.

Under such a "strike" the union seeking to organize the workers establishes picket lines in efforts to persuade employes to enroll in the union and customers to refrain from conducting business with the struck company.

Ordinarily there is no requirement that any company workers who have signed up with the union leave their jobs. On the contrary, in many instances those already enrolled remain on their jobs and continue to advocate union enrollment of fellow workers.

Hoffa, president of the union, announced Friday he is negotiating to add some 10,000 oil refinery workers to his union.

He said the door is open to any other independent group to come under the Teamsters banner.

Decision On Atomic Oil Blasts Awaited

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Bureau of Mines hopes to know soon whether the oil and chemical industries are ready to gamble $1,250,000 that atomic blasts will make extraction of oil from shale rock economically feasible.

The government would gamble an equal amount.

A proposition to that effect was formally put to 70 firms and individuals in mid-February by bureau chief Marling J. Ankeny as the outgrowth of a government-sponsored meeting of 200 oil and chemical executives and scientists in Dallas, Jan. 6.

The first experiment would take place near Buchanan, Colo., next year, with others to follow in Utah and Wyoming. Geologists estimate the vast shale fields of the three states could produce a trillion barrels of oil if a cheap way to recover it could be found.

Ankeny is awaiting the responses. Some industry leaders expressed cautious interest at Dallas. Others were critical. But all were mindful of the day when natural oil deposits become so depleted they will need a replacement.

Richfield Oil Corp., Los Angeles, has opened talks on a kindred proposition with the Canadian government. Richfield leases two million acres of tar sands in the Athabaska area of northeast Alberta. Tar sands are solidified oil. Richfield believes the terrific heat generated by a nuclear explosion would free the oil.

That is the basic principle of the proposed U.S. experiments. An atomic blast would pulverize thousands of tons of shale which would then be ignited. As the shale burned oil would settle and be piped off.

The Buchanan test would be conducted underground, first with a small thermal recovery shot to obtain information about the actual retorting—or recovery—process. If this paid off a 10-kiloton blast would follow.

The site chosen is near Union Oil Co. property in northwest Colorado. The bureau said the shale, after the detonation, should average 20 gallons of oil a ton. No present method of processing shale has proved profitable. The government conducted long experiments at Rifle, Colo., but finally quit.

The oils extracted in the present process are so thick it is too expensive to refine them into gasoline and other products. Engineers of the atomic energy commission and the Ernest O. Lawrence Radiation Laboratory, Berkeley, Calif., believe nuclear heat may bridge this gap.

They also doubt that resultant radioactivity would be a dangerous factor because it would be trapped in melted rock.

Many major oil and chemical companies own extensive holdings in the areas marked for exploitation. If they participate, as Ankeny hopes, the experiment would become a part of operation plowshare—use of nuclear devices for peaceful purposes.

Ankeny will analyze the replies and give the final result to the companies responding. If there is general agreement, the project would be launched some time after the United States' self-imposed ban on all nuclear tests expires next Oct. 31.

IN BUSINESS, FINANCE

Many Key Lines Show Big Gains

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK (AP) — Strike jitters at home, and war jitters in Berlin, gave the economy a forward push this week.

Strong consumer spending contributed to the upturn.

Many key lines showed sensational gains over late February of 1958 when blizzards, storms and a deepening recession held business activity in check.

Steel output, highest in two years, was up a thumping 69 per cent from a year ago.

Auto production, highest in six weeks, showed a 40 per cent increase over 1958, coal production was up 18 per cent, paperboard production up 11½ per cent, coal up 18 per cent, crude oil up 6 per cent and electric power up 7½ per cent.

Freight carloadings scored a gain of 17¾ per cent.

You could see evidence of strong consumer buying power in the latest government figures on department store sales, up 24 per cent over the like week last year.

Retail economists were quick to point out that the comparison was with an unusually poor week in 1958. It had one less selling day for many stores (Washington's birthday, which fell on a Sunday). Also, cold, blustery weather kept many shoppers home.

Be that as it may, the percentage figures—which included gains up to 46 per cent in the Philadelphia Federal Reserve District — made good reading.

Also calculated to fan optimism were the latest figures on new car sales. Retail dealers delivered 146,700 brand new cars in the second 10 days of February for a gain of 34 per cent over the same 10 days last year.

The auto industry turned out its millionth passenger car of 1959 this week. In 1958, the year's millionth auto didn't rool off the assembly line until half way through March.

Tough talk by Soviet Premier Khrushchev spurred demand for rocket and missile shares this week. Businessmen, consumers and just about everybody else could take comfort, though, from President Eisenhower's assurance that the Western allies won't yield one single inch in affirming their right of access to West Berlin.

With the increasingly tense international situation the strongest outside influence on Wall Street, stock averages pushed again to new highs.

Stock sales totaled 16,355,230 shares for the week against 18,504,770 shares in the previous week and 8,622,580 for the corresponding week in 1958.

Bond sales in the latest week amounted to $27,083,000 compared to $32,280,000 the week before and $19,755,600 in the same week last year.

The long arm of the tax collector reached a bit farther into the pockets of U. S. businessmen this week. The United States Supreme Court handed down two decisions that increase the taxing powers of the states. One concerns business does within a state by out-of-state corporations, and the other concerns imported raw materials like lumber or iron ore. Under certain circumstances, said the court, both are subject to state taxes.

A top psychologist took a look at the American consumer, and acknowledged that he still doesn't know what makes him tick.

"Man as a consumer," said Prof. James J. Gibson of Cornell, "still eludes the theories of present day psychology. And the dullest customer can still laugh up his sleeve at the smartest psychologist who pretends to control his buying behavier."

Briefly over the business scene:

Tax troubles plague the life insurance industry. Prudential Insurance Co. of America says pending legislation would boost its 1959 tax bill, currently estimated at 35 million dollars, to 78 millions. . . . The U. S. Navy's ships's stores office, headquarters for a worldwide chain of 175 government-subsidized retail stores for Navy personnel, has installed a Univac electronic brain to keep tabs on its multi - million-dollar merchandising operation. . . . The American Bankers Assn. says commercial banks will spend 143 million dollars on advertising this year.

Cotton Futures Show Small Net Market Changes

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton future prices turned reactionary this week and closed mixed with small net changes. Active contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange finished 7 cents a bale higher to 40 cents a bale lower than a week ago.

Prompt stoppage of notices, steadied the current March position. Other old crop months were firm on continued prospects of a tight supply of "free cotton" at the end of the season.

Improved demand for textiles, particularly the bellwether 80-square print cloth, also bolstered the futures market.

Offerings were furnished through profit-taking. Some selling stemmed from the unfavorable export picture.

Commenting on the outlook for U.S. cotton in the current season, the New York Cotton Exchange service bureau forecast a decline in worldwide use.

Worldwide consumption of American cotton this season was placed at 12,600,000 bales, as compared with 14,000,000 last season. Although U.S. mills have increased their consumption, it was pointed out, foreign use of American cotton has declined because of reduced supplies.

Export of U.S. cotton for the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the exchange at only 71,000 bales. This compares with 96,000 the previous week and 131,000 in the like 1958 week.

Exports for the season through Tuesday were estimated at 1,087,000 bales vs 3,252,000 a year ago.

The exchange commented that exports, which totaled about 5,700,000 bales last season, will do well to reach 3,000,000 in the current crop year.

Stocks Score Strong Gains For February

By ED MORSE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a substantial gain for the month of February despite some profit-taking which skimmed a bit of the cream off the top this week.

The market, for the second straight week, stood at new historic highs in the four-day trading week just past. Observance of Washington's Birthday on Monday cut the week's trading.

Profit taking on the most recent sustained rise was the ruling theme this week but an assortment of "glamour" stocks made some fantastic gains.

Touched off by the shaky Berlin situation, a number of electronics and rocket - fuel issues raced ahead while the blue chips which govern the over-all market average backed away. Some chemicals and assorted issues, boosted by good prospects or recommendations by investment advisers, also went to town.

The blue chips which govern the popular market averages did not do so well, aside from American Telephone. The latter's advance, incidentally, was most helpful in boosting the Dow Jones industrial average to a new record peak of 603.50 Friday. This stock is included in the utility component of the Associated Press average. The AP utilities posted a new high for 1958-59.

On Tuesday, the market followed through well enough on the previous week's upsurge to post a record high of $221.60 in the AP 60-stock average. On the same day the Dow industrials progressed further into record ground, posting a high of 602.91.

By the end of the week, however, the AP 60-stock average was down to $220.60, showing a net loss of 30 cents on the week. For the month of February the average was up $3.00.

U.S. Government bonds improved slightly this week in light trading but the corporate market milled ineffectually.

Trading on the New York Stock Exchange amounted to $27,083,000 par value, down from $32,280,000 the previous five-day week but up from $19,755,600 for the corresponding week a year ago.

Northeast Louisiana Livestock Show Opens Tomorrow

CHIHUAHUA perched atop fat lamb glares at next sheep in line while awaiting to go on sale.

DELHI (Special) — As late as 1925 Northeast Louisiana was a land of open ranges and scrub livestock of the lowest order. The successful elimination of the Texas fever tick during the early 1920s opened the doors for vast opportunities, W. P. Martin, president, stated.

But the "would be" producers of cattle, sheep and hogs soon realized that they had no market for such farm products. Out of this dilemma came the establishment. To further this progress of

Through this media scrub farm animals began to disappear and better blood imported for replacement. To futher this progress of evolution, the Northeast Louisiana Livestock Show was established in 1930. Through this educational institutional club, members and adult exhibitors have attracted the attention of the livestock fraternity throughout the nation.

As a result if these fundamental steps, at the moment, literally thousands of our locally produced cattle are grazing on western wheat and alfalfa. Other thousands are being "finished out" as choice and prime beef in the feed lots of the corn belt.

The greatest urge throughout the land is for more and better quality.

President Martin extends a personal invitation to all interested cattlemen, farmers and others, to visit our exhibition which opens tomorrow and see the great strides made in the cattle industry.

The show officially got underway last night with the selection of Miss Stock Show at the fourth annual Miss Stock Show beauty pageant held in conjunction with the livestock show and sponsored by the Delhi Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Miss Stock Show will reign over the parade on Monday at 2 p.m. and over the festivities until the end of the week.

Tuesday judging will begin at 8 a.m. of junior dairy cattle, adult dairy cattle, junior poultry, swine, market sheep, breeding sheep, fat steers and beef breeding.

Wednesday activities will get underway at 9 a.m. with judging of Aberdeen Angus, Herefords, Shorthorns, Red Polls, and Santa Gertrudis and Brahmans, in that order.

JUNIOR JUDGING

The junior judging contest with teams made up of 4-H and FFA members will take place at 9 a.m. Thursday. The Rural Electrification Association will award a prize of $15 to the most deserving FFA member in each of the following parishes, where the cooperative operates: Morehouse, East Carroll, West Carroll, Tensas, Madison, Richland and Franklin.

It was recommended by the board of directors that this money be offered for any of the activities the club members participate in and that the county agents, their assistants, and the home demonstration agents select the 4-H club winners in their respective parishes.

The Vocational agricultural teachers will select the FFA winners.

Awards will be made at the Northeast Louisiana Livestock Show Friday at 12:30 p.m. prior to the Junior Livestock Sale of sheep, swine and fat steers.

Beginning at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday and each night through Thursday night at that same hour performance classes of the second annual quarterhorse show will be staged. On Thursday at 1:30 p.m. the halter judging division of the horse show will take place.

Officers for the 1959 show are Martin, president; Roy Snider, vice president; Louie Ballard, second vice president J. H. Martin, secretary - treasurer; Charles Brown, manager adult division; and W. H. Farmer, manager of the junior division.

WHO DISCOVERED RIVER?

Officials For Fete Differ On Honoree

NEW YORK (UPI) — Federal, state and local officials have united to plan a huge Hudson River celebration this summer—but there is sharp division over just what all the shouting is to be about.

Some historians claim the summer-long festival will mark the 350th anniversary of the discovery of the river by Henry Hudson.

Others declare it will be a celebration only of the exploration of the river by Hudson, because the waterway already had been discovered by Italian Giovanna de Verrazano 85 years earlier, before Hudson was even born.

Still others maintain that Leif Ericson should get the credit for finding the scenic river that winds for its entire 306-mile course through New York state.

And, if a person really wants to get historically persnickety, he might be able to prove that the Chinese or even the Phoenicians got to the Hudson first, maybe even before the American Indians paddled their canoes across the river for the first time.

John La Corte, director of the Italian Historical Society of America, which serves as a sort of watchdog member of the proverranzo forces.

"All you have to do is go to the Encyclopedia Britannica," La Corte said.

A consultation of the encyclopedia disclosed the following statement:

"Verrazano proceeded a short distance up the Hudson by boat in 1524; but the first European to demonstrate its extent and importance was Henry Hudson, from whom the river derives its name."

La Corte said Verrazano intended to sail the length of the Hudson, but was driven back by storms as he reached what now are known as the New Jersey Palisades, across the river from Manhattan Island.

"He named it the Santa Margherita River," La Corte said. "He returned to Europe with information and descriptions and Hudson followed his course."

John H. G. Pell, chairman of the New York Historical Society, leans toward the side of those who give Hudson the largest share of the credit.

"I believe Verrazano undoubtedly came to the mouth of the Hudson first, but that the discovery of importance was the voyage of Henry Hudson, because he explored the river," Pell said.

"His trip was followed immediately by settlement. Just looking at a place is really of no lasting significance."

A spokesman for the city's planning body, called the Hudson Celebration Committee, said a gala land and sea parade is scheduled to open the festivities June 14. It will begin, he said, with a float honoring Verrazano, with the Henry Hudson float next.

But Leon Michel, special assistant to the federal commission, doubts that. He said it was more likely a Norse float honoring Ericson would be No. 1 in the Hudson discovery hit parade.

NO OTHER AMMONIUM NITRATE LIKE IT!
NEW
Hi-D and only Hi-D
gives you all of these 8 big benefits

When you choose an economical source of supplemental nitrogen, be sure to look into the important combination of advantages supplied only by Hi-D. Made by an exclusive process, new Hi-D represents the latest development in nitrogen fertilizer. You get these 8 big benefits from Hi-D — and only from Hi-D.

1. Super Dryness. Hi-D is made by a patented process developed by Commercial Solvents Corporation. This entirely new manufacturing method removes all the moisture from Hi-D before the granules are formed.

2. High Density. Because of this new process, each Hi-D granule is of extremely high density. These hard, non-porous granules lock out moisture, even under humid field conditions. Hi-D is made dry — and stays dry.

3. Special-Shape Granules. Note the magnified granule. The unique shape and size are controlled so that distribution is even and accurate in all spreading operations. And Hi-D granules stay put on the ground.

4. Free Flow. Hi-D flows freely even on hot, sticky days. Because of its super dryness, high density, and special shape, Hi-D doesn't gum-up, doesn't stick, clog, cake or bridge.

5. Two Key Kinds of Nitrogen. You get nitrate nitrogen and ammonia nitrogen. One bag of Hi-D supplies as much nitrogen as 1½ bags of ammonium sulphate or 2 bags of sodium nitrate, yet costs less per unit of nitrogen.

6. Two-Speed Fertilizer Action. Hi-D supplies a total of 33.5% nitrogen in two equal "servings." 16.75% is nitrate nitrogen to get crops off to a fast vigorous start. And 16.75% is ammonia nitrogen to provide crops with a supplemental boost during the growing season.

7. Up to 25% More Nitrogen in the Hopper. Because Hi-D has less bulk than any other type of ammonium nitrate, you can get up to 25% more nitrogen in a normal hopper load—cover more ground per load. Hi-D saves storage space, too.

8. Guaranteed to Store a Full Year. Made dry. Delivered dry. And stays dry. So much so that Hi-D is guaranteed to store well, under normal conditions, for one full year.

Try Hi-D this year. Get all the advantages of the most up-to-date ammonium nitrate you can buy. See if you don't find it better than anything else you ever used. Remember, of course, that sound management calls first for soil testing, a liming program if needed, the mixed fertilizer your dealer recommends—and then the high-yield, pay-off boost of Hi-D. Call your dealer and order yours today!

4. Free Flow. Hi-D flows freely even on hot, sticky days. Because of its super dryness, high density, and special shape, Hi-D doesn't gum-up, doesn't stick, clog, cake or bridge.

5. Two Key Kinds of Nitrogen. You get nitrate nitrogen and ammonia nitrogen. One bag of Hi-D supplies as much nitrogen as 1½ bags of ammonium sulphate or 2 bags of sodium nitrate, yet costs less per unit of nitrogen.

6. Two-Speed Fertilizer Action. Hi-D supplies a total of 33.5% nitrogen in two equal "servings." 16.75% is nitrate nitrogen to get crops off to a fast vigorous start. And 16.75% is ammonia nitrogen to provide crops with a supplemental boost during the growing season.

7. Up to 25% More Nitrogen in the Hopper. Because Hi-D has less bulk than any other type of ammonium nitrate, you can get up to 25% more nitrogen in a normal hopper load—cover more ground per load. Hi-D saves stora[ge] space, too.

8. Guaranteed to Store a Full Year. Made dry. Delivered dry. And stays dry. So much so that Hi-D is guaranteed to store well, under normal conditions, for one full year.

Try Hi-D this year. Get all the advantages of the most up-to-date ammonium nitrate you can buy. See if you don't find it better than anything else you ever used. Remember, of course, that sound management calls first for soil testing, a liming program if needed, the mixed fertilizer your dealer recommends—and then the high-yield, pay-off boost of Hi-D. Call your dealer and order yours today!

IN COLD WAR

Arabian Conflict Prevents Peace

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Removal of U.S.-Arab differences from the framework of the cold war could lead to a settlement of outstanding disputes, including the Arab-Israeli conflict, some influential Arabs are telling American officials here.

The Americans apparently are not convinced that the issues can be separated.

The Arab arguments currently being advanced unofficially here, is that if the United States and other Western nations stopped judging every move by an Arab country only in terms of how it affects the East-West struggle a climate could be created for an amicable, if gradual, solution for a host of problems.

Some Arabs believe the Algerian conflict can be included as well as Israel and the Palestine refugee problem. But first, they point out, the United States must accept Arab neutrality in the cold war as one of the facts of life in the Middle East today.

Most Arabs, according to these theories, refuse to believe there is ony one international crisis—that between Communism and the free world. U. S. intervention in Lebanon or American refusal to help build the Egyptian Aswan Dam "are not showdowns with Nikita Khrushchev" for the Arabs.

Nor do the Arabs want to participate in any Western-sponsored pacts against Communism, and they stil resent Western efforts to line up Arab nations alongside those of the free world in the East-West struggle.

Relations between the United States and most Arab countries have improved considerably during the past six months. Steps to improve them further can thus be taken more easily, according to these theories.

One suggestion, for exampe, calls for a summit meeting between top Arab leaders, such as the U.A.R.'s Gamal Abdel Nasser, and President Eisenhower. Such a conference would help create the friendlier climate needed for continued normalization of relations. Eisenhower last week congratulated the new republic on its first anniversary.

Proponents of these theories emphasize that they have not yet been accepted by the Arab governments, not even by the U.A.R. where they are being most actively discussed Nor have they been brought to the attention of U. S. officials. But, they said, discussions of this kin ofdten help shape future Arab policy.

American officials asked for private comment said a Nasser visit here was not under consideration. Considerable political opposition in the United States could be expected against any such scheme

But the officials expressed some interest in the idea of removing differences between the Arabs and the West from direct inclusion in the cold war. They stressed this could only be done on a limited basis, however.

U. S. policy in the Middle East and around the globe is designed to stop Communist expansion. Therefore the United States must act to halt Soviet penetration of the oil-rich area wherever such penetration is attempted.

Average Savings Second Largest Ever Past Year

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government reported Friday that the average American saved 6 cents from every dollar of take home pay last year.

This compared with 4.5 cents in 1957, the only other year for which statistics were available.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board reported that Americans put a total of $18,300,000,000 in savings of all kinds in 1958, making it the second biggest year on record.

This lifted to a record $280,818,000,000 the total amount of deposits in banks, savings associations, credit unions, postal savings, life insurance reserves and U.S. savings bonds.

Although the amount put aside last year was $4,300,000,000 more than in 1957, 1958 savings fell short of the $22,200,000,000 chalked up in 1944 when consumer goods were scarce.

Apartment Rise In Construction

By HENRY J. BECHTOLD

NEW YORK (UPI)—Apartment houses have been stealing the spotlight from new homes the past few years — partly through a disillusionment where suburbia —and this popularity is expected to last at least through the early 1960's.

What happens after that is only a guess, but if the anticipated hug increase in family formations comes true, apartment builders should find the next decade very pleasant.

Last year apartment house building soared more than 40 per cent to about 190,000 units, and accounted for 17 per cent of the total housing market — its biggest share since 1951.

The reasons behind this upsurge are many: Increased population, slum clearance programs, cooperatives, and desire of suburbanites to move back to the city, among other things.

AVOID LOW RENT PROJECTS

Slum clearance programs and lower income families have swallowed up the new low rent apartments, of which there are not nearly enough to go around. Builders tend to shy away from the lower rent apartments because of the lower profit angle.

Cooperative apartments, those which people buy individually, have become popular mainly because of FHA-backed mortgages. A small cash down payment is needed and payments over the long run usually are lower than renting.

A new and important stimulus to apartment building is the switch back to the city by many suburbanites, according to apartment builder Melvyn Kaufman.

The no maintenance feature of apartments is the biggest factor behind this switch, Kaufman said. The lower operating costs compared to home ownership also are an attraction.

RETURN TO CITY

In addition, many middle-aged couples who have raised their children in the suburbs have decied that the big city with all its conveniences is a more desirable place to spend their remaining years together, the builder stated.

Kaufman, an executive of the William Kaufman organization, claims that apartment builders today are giving more value per dollar than in any period since the late 1920's.

All the rooms of new apartments, particularly the luxury type, are extra large and are loaded with closets, he noted. A typical four-room Kaufman apartment now has six closets, and a family apartment of five to seven rooms sometimes has as many as eight closets.

This extra closet space is an inducement to the women, Kaufman said, because they are the ones you have to make the sales pitch to, not the men. Modern efficient kitchens also are a big selling point.

GIVE CONCESSIONS

And it's not only the cities that are experiencing this apartment boom. Garden apartments—usually for two or three families—are sprouting up in the nearby suburbs for those who do not want the responsibility of a house but still want suburbia's atmosphere.

There have been reports that the apartment house boom has resulted in overbuilding in some areas, thereby forcing some builders to give concessions to tenants.

Concessions are being given, but not because of over-supply. Concessions of one of two months rent are being given by some builders of new apartment houses to enable them to fully occupy their houses quicker and therefore realize profits much sooner than they normally would.

Writer Was Bull Fighter For Day

By SAUL PETT

JUAREZ, Mexico (AP)—I was a bullfighter for a day.

Well, not exactly a day. More like an hour.

And it wasn't exactly a bull I fought. It was a one-wheeled bicycle with bull horns on the handle bars. But it was a brave bicycle.

We fought in a real bull ring, the downtown Plaza de Toros, on Calle de Abraham Gonzales in Juarez, border city of sin and bullfighting. The horned bike is the same used by Pat McCormick and other famous matadors for practice and by novices for learning the art.

Since this was out of season, the ring was deserted except for a few hired hands and my teacher for the day, Alejandro del Hierro, a thin, dark, handsome matador who has been fighting bulls for 29 of his 47 years.

We began with cape work. Alejandro said one must remember it is the motion of the cape, not the color, which attracts the bull. The trouble with most beginners, he said, is that they move their body too much and tend to jerk the cape. Cape and arms should move in one graceful, flowing motion.

Alejandro showed me the three phases of the veronica, the basic pass. He profiled to the bull, which in this case was a boy named Jose holding the horns. Alejandro held the cape out and Jose charged and the cape swept back and Jose went through and the cape turned so easily in Alejandro's hands and he was ready for the next charge.

I tried it several times. Jose looked a little sick. It must have been that virus going around. Alejandro said quietly that I shouldn't hold the cape and shake it like I was hanging up laundry. He said it also would be a good idea to suck in my stomach or I might lose an inch or two of my waistline as the horns went by.

We graduated to the horned bike, which actually is a wheel and handle bars attached to long wooden handles. Alejandro showed me how to use the banderillas, two light wooden sticks wrapped in gaily colored paper with small sharp iron harpoons at the end. These are used by matadors for angering and tiring the bull and getting him ready for the kill.

Jose charged with the bike. Alejandro quartered him, moving to the side. Then, with great graceful power he brought the banderillas down and stuck them hard into the wood part of the bike.

I tried. Jose charged. I forgot to quarter and he almost ran me down. I tried again, this time getting to one side but when I brought the banderillas down, they stabbed only the air. Finally, I got the darned sticks into the wood.

"That's better," Alejandro said, politely. "But you must raise the banderillas and bring them down. You used them horizontally. That way, you might have caught only the bull's rump and he would have carried you out of the ring."

I tried again, this time near the wooden barrier. Jose charged somewhat impatiently, I thought. My footwork collapsed. Getting out of the way, I found myself climbing the barrier.

"That is not good," Alejandro said. "You don't go up on the barrer. It is not brave. Besides, it could get you killed and the bull could get killed crashing into the wall. A good bull, remember, is worth $1,500."

I asked about the great moment, the moment of truth, the kill. Alejandro said we'd better save that for another day since I seemed to be breathing hard. I asked if he thought I might make a matador some day.

Alejandro said something in Spanish and this in English: "A picador, maybe, not a matador. The picadors ride a horse and help the matadors. The picadors are usually older and fatter."

The lesson was over. Nobody yelled, "Ole!" Three male adolescents, were lounging in the stands, laughing indecently, in an outrageous display of rampant anti-Americanism.

Writer Was Bull Fighter For Day

By SAUL PETT

JUAREZ, Mexico (AP)—I was a bullfighter for a day.

Well, not exactly a day. More like an hour.

And it wasn't exactly a bull I fought. It was a one-wheeled bicycle with bull horns on the handle bars. But it was a brave bicycle.

We fought in a real bull ring, the downtown Plaza de Toros, on Calle de Abraham Gonzales in Juarez, border city of sin and bullfighting. The horned bike is the same used by Pat McCormick and other famous matadors for practice and by novices for learning the art.

Since this was out of season, the ring was deserted except for a few hired hands and my teacher for the day, Alejandro del Hierro, a thin, dark, handsome matador who has been fighting bulls for 29 of his 47 years.

We began with cape work. Alejandro said one must remember it is the motion of the cape, not the color, which attracts the bull. The trouble with most beginners, he said, is that they move their body too much and tend to jerk the cape. Cape and arms should move in one graceful, flowing motion.

Alejandro showed me the three phases of the veronica, the basic pass. He profiled to the bull, which in this case was a boy named Jose holding the horns. Alejandro held the cape out and Jose charged and the cape swept back and Jose went through and the cape turned so easily in Alejandro's hands and he was ready for the next charge.

I tried it several times. Jose looked a little sick. It must have been that virus going around. Alejandro said quietly that I shouldn't hold the cape and shake it like I was hanging up laundry. He said it also would be a good idea to suck in my stomach or I might lose an inch or two of my waistline as the horns went by.

We graduated to the horned bike, which actually is a wheel and handle bars attached to long wooden handles. Alejandro showed me how to use the banderillas, two light wooden sticks wrapped in gaily colored paper with small sharp iron harpoons at the end. These are used by matadors for angering and tiring the bull and getting him ready for the kill.

Jose charged with the bike. Alejandro quartered him, moving to the side. Then, with great graceful power he brought the banderillas down and stuck them hard into the wood part of the bike.

I tried. Jose charged. I forgot to quarter and he almost ran me down. I tried again, this time getting to one side but when I brought the banderillas down, they stabbed only the air. Finally, I got the darned sticks into the wood.

"That's better," Alejandro said, politely. "But you must raise the banderillas and bring them down. You used them horizontally. That way, you might have caught only the bull's rump and he would have carried you out of the ring."

I tried again, this time near the wooden barrier. Jose charged somewhat impatiently, I thought. My footwork collapsed. Getting out of the way, I found myself climbing the barrier.

"That is not good," Alejandro said. "You don't go up on the barrer. It is not brave. Besides. it could get you killed and the bull could get killed crashing into the wall. A good bull, remember, is worth $1,500."

I asked about the great moment, the moment of truth, the kill. Alejandro said we'd better save that for another day since I seemed to be breathing hard. I asked if he thought I might make a matador some day.

Alejandro said something in Spanish and this in English: "A picador, maybe, not a matador. The picadors ride a horse and help the matadors. The picadors are usually older and fatter."

The lesson was over. Nobody yelled, "Ole!" Three male adolescents, were lounging in the stands, laughing indecently, in an outrageous display of rampant anti-Americanism.

10 States Represented In Last Year's Stock Show

DELHI (Special) — There were 10 states represented in last year's 8th annual Northeast Louisiana Livestock Show which exhibited some of the "highest quality of stock ever," according to W. P. Martin, president.

"We expect to do equally well this year," the president said.

Two out-of-state cattle farms swept the championships in the Aberdeen Angus division last year. The grand champion female in the Angus division was won by Equen Plantation of Minter City, Miss., with its entry of Enterlopemere III. Senior Champion female in the Angus division went to Cove Creek Irene, entered by Sugar Loaf Farms.

The grand champion Angus steer was shown by Timberline Farms, Congerville, Ill. In the Hereford division the 4-B Farms of Tallulah took the grand champion female catergory with its entry of 4-B's Miss Zato C-70.

"Majestic" of Sugar Loaf Farms won the title of grand champion in the adult Aberdeen Angus bull judging.

Taking honors as grand champion in the Hereford bull division was Our Proud Prince from Olvery's Hereford Ranch in Harrison, Ark.

Schofield Ranch of Austin, Tex., won the field in the Shorthorn bull competition when Clara's Comrade won the title. Mississippi State College showed the grand champion female.

Louisiana State University exhibited the senior champion female.

H. C. Peck Jr. Sicily Island FFA member, captured grand champion honors in both heifer and bull classes of the junior beef breeding division. Grand champion in the Angus heifer class was shown by Judy Holley of Bastrop.

Purple ribbon winner in the Hereford bull division was Lonnie Walters of Rayville. Jim Brown, 16-year-old Tallulah High School 4-H club member, won the grand champion ribbon in the fat steer division with a Hereford he exhibited.

In last year's quarter horse show champion mare honors were taken by Chubby Rita owned by G. L. Lewis of Cheneyville; and reserve champion mare was Snipperette Star owned by Clarence Smith of Hanna.

Champion stallion went to Poco Bob shown by H. E. Miller of Colorado Springs, Colo., and reserve champion stallion honors were taken by "Kages King."

BLACKSMITH RETIRES

GONZAGA, Italy (UPI) — Teodoro Paini, one of Italy's oldest blacksmiths, has decided to retire after shoeing more than 106,000 horses in the last 70 years. Paini, 80, began shaping and fitting horseshoes at the age of 10. He received several medals for his work.

Needy Students Without Loans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Needy students learning to be teachers at State College, North Adams, Mass., will have to get along without federal loans this semester.

They may be entitled to help under the Defense Education Act passed by Congress last year.

But all the help the school has beer able to get from Washington so far is $51 to meet all its loan applications.

If some budding science genius at Quincy Junior College, Quincy, Mass., counted on a federal loan to put him through college, he can forget about it, at least for the present. That school has gotten a total of $86.

How did the $47,500,000 loan authorization in the law get translated into these tiny grants

Congress, in approving the Defense Education Act last year, authorized $47,500,000 loans for this year. But the separate appropriations bill to cover the program provided only six million dollars.

The law itself provides two complicated ways of distributing the loan money. One is to the states on the basis of student population; then proportionally to the schools themselves on the basis of how much they say they need for loans. The government asked the schools how much they needed.

In came requests for 79 million dollars. With only six - million in the kitty.

Typical Buyer Is Average Man

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The typical metropolitan buyer of a single-family house is described in a savings and loan industry report as 37 years old and earning about $7,300 a year.

He paid $17,100 for a six-room dwelling—$6,000 in cash and $11,100 via a mortgage loan.

Such is the statistical profile (circa 1957) of home buyers using conventional savings and loan financing in 22 metropolitan areas across the nation as reported by the U. S. Savings and Loan League. The league is the biggest of the trade associations for the savings and loan industry, which makes nearly 40 per cent of all home loans.

A 32-page study by the league takes a look at home buyers from a variety of angles and comes up with these other findings:

The age of the typical single-family house buyer using savings and loan financing has been declining, a sign of rising prosperity and of lower down payments.

Still another reason, the study notes, may be that suburban developments, which now account for the bulk of new home-building activity, are more attractive to younger couples.

Sixty-two per cent of new home buyers with savings and loan mortgage were under 40 years of age and 52 per cent of buyers of existing houses fell into this category. Although the average age of all buyers was 37 years, for those purchasing a home for the first time it was closer to 30.

Half of all conventional mortgage borrowers in 1957 had family incomes under $7,300 and 56 per cent of them fell into the $5,000-$9,000 annual income bracket.

Families buying new homes tend to have bigger incomes than families buying existing houses. Only 10 per cent of new home buyers reported incomes below $5,000 annually compared to 18.5 per cent for buyers of existing homes.

Expressed somewhat differently, 61 per cent of families buying new houses had incomes over $7,000. But families in that income bracket accounted for only 49 per cent of the buyers of used houses.

The league's survey of 7,000 buyers also found houses selling from $2,000 to $1,000,000 with those in the $12,000-$20,000 bracket accounting for 55 per cent of the total. Those under $25,000 accounted for 86 per cent of the total.

Half of all houses financed contions sold for $17,107 or less—and, of course, half of more than that sum.

New homes were reported as more costly than existing properties. Half of all new houses sold for $18,582 (and half for more) ventionally by savings associacompared to a median price on existing houses of $15,602.

Nearly 45 per cent of buying families with incomes under $4,000 bought homes priced below $12,000 and 43 per cent of those in the $4,000-$6,000 class bought homes valued at less than $14,000. In the $10,000-plus income class, one out of two home buyers purchased a house costing $24,000 or more.

Congress Hears Of Funds Needs For U.S. Roads

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress was told Friday that it must scrape up an extra 13 billion dollars if it expects the new interstate highway system to be completed on schedule in 1972.

Federal Highway Administrator Bertram D. Tallamy gave the bad news to a Senate Public Roads subcommittee considering ways to keep the big road building program moving along.

Tallamy said no federal funds can be allocated this year unless Congress provides new revenue to make up a deficit already showing up in the special trust fund set up to finance the program.

President Eisenhower had asked the lawmakers to boost federal gasoline taxes a cent and a half a gallon to put the fund on the pay as you go basis required by the 1956 Highway Act. But his proposal is given almost no chance of passage.

The subcommittee recessed its hearings without tackling any alternate money - raising methods. However, some members spoke favorably of either suspending or abolishing the pay as-you-go requirement. The administration opposes this.

"It's the clothes I buy every time I go there," explained Ruta Lee. "I can't resist buying at those wonderful stores. Other girls in the series have the same problem — Lynn Cartwright and Judy Lewis go through the same thing. If only the parts weren't so good."

Dulles' Office Tremendous Size

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The office which John Foster Dulles has occupied in the state department for six years is a huge paneled room that can easily accommodate 50 or 60 people at standup ceremonies and seat two dozen in comfort.

Dulles' old office in New York's Wall street was far more suitable for him. It was small, even cramped by comparison; just room enough for one man to work easily.

Dulles, an associate once said, is not "an organization man." He hes been much closer to a 19th century rugged individualist than to a 20th century corporation executive or committee chairman. This has occasionally been hard on his subordinates and it may well have narrowed the intellectual springs from which United States foreign policy must be derived.

One effect of Dulles' management of foreign policy has been to create a fresh concern within the state department and among outside experts over operating the place as a one-man show.

The problem is most sharply seen in terms of Dulles' eventual successor. No one else can bring to the job the same combination of almost inexhaustible energy, huge resources of experience and a driving ambition to make his place in history through the medium of foreign policy and diplomacy.

There is no one currently in sight whose career has given him quite so much know-how in international affairs and whose interest would make a hobby of the job. Anybody else probably would have to take a weekend off occasionally.

The pressure in the post-Dulles State Department will inevitably be to work more through committees, to engage in greater consultation and to widen responsibility.

Dulles' most spectacular achievement before succeeding Dean Acheson in the executive office at the state department was negotiation of a Japanese peace treaty. Dulles had highly qualified professional assistance, but he designed and ran the operation and worked closely with one man, Ambassador John M. Allison, then a far eastern expert and now ambassador to Czechoslovakia.

Acheson had authorized the undertaking and in fact had made use of Dulles' talents as a bipartisan figure in the Democratic administration on several other occasions.

This was one of the striking differences between the two men. Both had been subjected to appraisal that they were ambitious, tough-minded, sometimes arrogant in quite different ways, impatient with inferiority and subordinates. But Acheson, as secretary of State had the capacity to delegate tasks to others and to command a high quality of performance from them which Dulles never developed.

In their relationships with their chiefs, however, there are marked similarities.

Acheson's recommendations to Truman were usually if not always the decisive element in the President's foreign policy actions.

So far as is known, Dulles' recommendations to President Eisenhower have always been decisive elements in the President's determination of policy.

But where Acheson drew strength from expert advisers in his own department, Dulles has generally played a lone hand.

Acheson, for example, frequently consulted with such diverse personalities as Russian expert George F. Kennan, later ambassador to Moscow; Paul Nitze, onetime New York investment banker who served under Acheson as director of the policy planning staff; Douglas MacArthur II, now ambassador to Spain; and Charles E. Bohlen, Russian expert and later ambassador to Moscow, whom Dulles eventually sent to the Philippines.

Dulles has relied heavily on very few people for basic policy information and advice. He sought the opinion of Herman Phleger, international law authority from the West Coast, who served the first years in the state department with him. He argued out many ideas with Robert Bowie, who headed his policy planning staff for a while. But he relied most consistently on Assistant Secretary of State Livingston T. Merchant, director of the state department's European bureau, and he has depended on Assistant Secretary Walter Robertson for advice on Far Eastern affairs.

One problem for Dulles' successor-whenever he takes over-undoubtedly will be to try to bring other and diverse minds into the circle of his advisers and encourage them to come up with bold and original thinking. It will also be to delegate responsibility, something Dulles has succeeded only partially in doing.

Yet the new man may well hold himself apart from the endless round of committee meetings and conferences the better to bring into a single pattern of coherent action U.S. and Allied interests and the political and propaganda considerations which have to be dealt with at the moment of decision.

Solons Okay New Bills On Segregation

LITTLE ROCK (AP) —Three moved through the Arkansas House yesterday but two others found the going rough and were withdrawn momentarily.

The bills approved would permit state and local governments to sell or lease public recreation facilities faced with integration; would outlaw disturbances, such as "sitdowns," in any place of business and would permit public school funds to follow a student who transfers from an integrated institution.

Pulled back after objections by some members were bills requiring certain organizations to register with state officials and a proposal that persons applying for public employment be required to list organizations to which they have belonged during the last five years.

The student pay bill already has passed in the Senate and now is ready for action by the governor. The House made one change, excluding church - related schools from the list which students might attend and still remain eligible for state aid. At least two such schools have been established in Little Rock since the city's four high schools were closed last September by Gov. Orval E. Faubus.

Tractor Shifts On-The-Go

Two great advantages for tractor operators are to be found in Ford's new Select-O-Speed transmission. First is operator convenience. Using only the small selector lever (shown in insert), the tractor operator can shift to or through any of ten forward and two reverse gears without stopping and without using a clutch pedal. Second advantage is the greater efficiency and economy resulting from easy selection of exactly the right gear for every job. The local Ford tractor and implement dealer invites your inspection of the Ford Select-O-Speed transmission in gold demonstration tractor now on display.

Dulles' Office Tremendous Size

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The office which John Foster Dulles has occupied in the state department for six years is a huge paneled room that can easily accommodate 50 or 60 people at standup ceremonies and seat two dozen in comfort.

Dulles' old office in New York's Wall street was far more suitable for him. It was small, even cramped by comparison; just room enough for one man to work easily.

Dulles, an associate once said, is not "an organization man." He hes been much closer to a 19th century rugged individualist than to a 20th century corporation executive or committee chairman. This has occasionally been hard on his subordinates and it may well have narrowed the intellectual springs from which United States foreign policy must be derived.

One effect of Dulles' management of foreign policy has been to create a fresh concern within the state department and among outside experts over operating the place as a one-man show.

The problem is most sharply seen in terms of Dulles' eventual successor. No one else can bring to the job the same combination of almost inexhaustible energy, huge resources of experience and a driving ambition to make his place in history through the medium of foreign policy and diplomacy.

There is no one currently in sight whose career has given him quite so much know-how in international affairs and whose interest would make a hobby of the job. Anybody else probably would have to take a weekend off occasionally.

The pressure in the post-Dulles State Department will inevitably be to work more through committees, to engage in greater consultation and to widen responsibility.

Dulles' most spectacular achievement before succeeding Dean Acheson in the executive office at the state department was negotiation of a Japanese peace treaty. Dulles had highly qualified professional assistance, but he designed and ran the operation and worked closely with one man, Ambassador John M. Allison, then a far eastern expert and now ambassador to Czechoslovakia.

Acheson had authorized the undertaking and in fact had made use of Dulles' talents as a bipartisan figure in the Democratic administration on several other occasions.

This was one of the striking differences between the two men. Both had been subjected to appraisal that they were ambitious, tough-minded, sometimes arrogant in quite different ways, impatient with inferiority and subordinates. But Acheson, as secretary of State had the capacity to delegate tasks to others and to command a high quality of performance from them which Dulles never developed.

In their relationships with their chiefs, however, there are marked similarities.

Acheson's recommendations to Truman were usually if not always the decisive element in the President's foreign policy actions.

So far as is known, Dulles' recommendations to President Eisenhower have always been decisive elements in the President's determination of policy.

But where Acheson drew strength from expert, advisers in his own department, Dulles has generally played a lone hand.

Acheson, for example, frequently consulted with such diverse personalities as Russian expert George F. Kennan, later ambassador to Moscow; Paul Nitze, onetime New York investment banker who served under Acheson as director of the policy planning staff; Douglas MacArthur II, now ambassador to Spain; and Charles E. Bohlen, Russian expert and later ambassador to Moscow, whom Dulles eventually sent to the Philippines.

Dulles has relied heavily on very few people for basic policy information and advice. He sought the opinion of Herman Phleger, international law authority from the West Coast, who served the first years in the state department with him. He argued out many ideas with Robert Bowie, who headed his policy planning staff for a while. But he relied most consistently on Assistant Secretary of State Livingston T. Merchant, director of the state department's European bureau, and he has depended on Assistant Secretary Walter Robertson for advice on Far Eastern affairs.

One problem for Dulles' successor-whenever he takes over-undoubtedly will be to try to bring other and diverse minds into the circle of his advisers and encourage them to come up with bold and original thinking. It will also be to delegate responsibility, something Dulles has succeeded only partially in doing.

Yet the new man may well hold himself apart from the endless round of committee meetings and conferences the better to bring into a single pattern of coherent action U.S. and Allied interests and the political and propaganda considerations which have to be dealt with at the moment of decision.

M'Lemores Observe Fiftieth Year In Business

The McLemores will celebrate their 50th anniversary in the grocery business with the opening of their new McLemore's Jitney Jungle Supermarket, complete with farm and sports department, on March 2.

Located at the corner of Crosley and Cypress Streets in West Monroe, th: store is said to be northeast Louisiana's finest super market. The unit includes a grocery department, produce department, meat market, delicatessen, sporting goods department and farm store.

Quinten McLemore, age 38, youngest son of J. W. McLemore Jr., is co - owner of the new store. Quinten and Mrs. McLemore, the former Margaret McNeil of Frisco City, Ala., have lived in West Monroe for the past 3½ years. They are members of the First Baptist Church and are the parents five children, Randy, 14; Sidney 12; Ann and Jan, 8 year old twins, and Sue, 5.

The site on which the store is located was purchased in 1954, and a complete McLemore Shopping Center will be developed here. The store just completed covers 20,000 square feet of floor space with parking area for 250 cars. The next building on which construction will be started will be the premium redemption center for Grand Prize Stamps.

J. W. McLemore Sr. and J. W. Jr., 39, manage the Winnsboro operation of McLemore's Jitney Jungle, farm and sporting goods store and the wholesale grocery.

SAVINGS

By centralized buying and owning their own wholesale grocery, the McLemores are able to be competitive, and the savings in carload and truckload buying is passed on to the consumer.

Thirty - five persons are on the McLemore pay roll in Winnsboro and they expect to employ 50 person in West Monroe. In fact, every employee in the grocery department was a resident of the Twin Cities.

In fact the property, being owned by Quinten McLemore and his brother make this a home owned and home operated venture.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McLemore Sr. are residents of Winnsboro and are members of the Winnsboro First Christian Church. J. W. Sr. also has extensive farming interests in Madison Parish and it is in the wooded areas of these large farms that the McLemores and their friends enjoy the best in hunting during the open seasons.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McLemore Jr. are also members of Winnsboro First Methodist Church. Mrs. McLemore is the former Nell Dailey of Extension. They are the parents of two boys, James, 14, and David, 9.

LEADER

J. W. Jr. is a leader in the Little Boys Baseball program and is a member of the National Board of Directors of Little Boys Baseball, Inc.

J. W. McLemore Sr. first went into t'e grocery business when he entered a partnership with his brother-in-law, W. G. Bridges, in a general merchandise business in Winnsboro Sept. 9, 1909.

They were in the general merchandise business in Texas, Rayville, and back to Winnsboro.

J. W. Sr. married the former Minerva Duchesne of Baskin.

In 1920 he went into a small business for himself in Winnsboro.

FRANCHISE

He obtained the Jitney Jungle franchise in 1926, and it is now the oldest Jitney Jungle franchise in Louisiana.

In 1927, Jitney Jungle was located in the building next to the Princess Theatre and other locations in Winnsboro since then—where the present McLemore Farm store is, where the Sears, Roebuck store is, and where Bryant's Department Store is now located, and then into the building they now occupy on Adams Street.

The wholesale building and the office from which the McLemore operatons are directed is located at corner of Fair Ave. and Hwy 15. The offices and bookkeeping departments are located in the wholesale grocery building with over 22,000 sq. ft. of brick and concrete construction. The building was constructed in 1948-49-50 with the thought in mind of expanding their group of retail outlets.

During all these years the business has grown by leaps and bounds.

PARTNERS

It was in 1940, with Quinten and J. W. Jr. in college at Louisiana Tech, that the job of running the business became too much for J. W. Sr. to handle alone. He called his two sons and gave them the choice of coming home to learn and help run the grocery business or if they wished they could go to school as long as they liked, but if they did stay in school he was going to sell the business.

Quinten and J. W. Jr. came home and have been partners ever since in the McLemore operations. The investment in West Monroe is a major one for the McLemore group and as such establishes them as one of the strongest family-owned grocery operations in Louisiana.

With the expansion of their operation, the economy of West Monroe is asured of a substantial boost, and it is apparent the future of the Twin Cities must have appealed to the McLemore's.

TEACHER INVITED

TOKYO (UPI)—Mrs. Elizabeth Gray Vining, the Quaker teacher who tutored Crown Prince Akihito in English for four years, will visit Tokyo for the April wedding of the Prince and Miss Michiko Shoda, the newspaper Sankei reported Friday. Because of strict palace protocol, the Philadelphia teacher will not be on the guest list for the wedding ceremony, but she will meet the Prince and his bride at parties following the ceremony.

McLemore Assures New Grocery Buying Era

When the new McLemore Jitney Jungle Supermarket begins operations in West Monroe March 2, a new era of grocery buying will open for residents of the Twin City area.

The 20,000 square feet of floor space, including the 16,000 square feet of terrazzo floor in the sales area, will feature the latest in goods, equipment and construction.

Six Hussman dual - belt check out stands will make for speedy customer progress through the lines, and the entire store will have all - metal Hussman equipment.

A picture window butcher service will enable the customer to see butchers at work cutting and packaging fresh, choice meats. This innovation is the only such arrangement in North Louisiana, the McLemores note.

Communication systems in the store make for easy cooperation from all departments, and the store's broadcasting room will enable broadcasts to go direct from the store to a radio station.

Although not claiming to be one of the largest, the store is said to be one of the finest in the area. Over 114 feet of frozen foods and ice cream, will be available, plus a complete produce section.

McLemores also is setting up a public relations department. They pointed out that this will be the only grocery store in the entire South with such a department. All customer requests and complaints will be promptly and courteously handled by the public relations staff. "Our job is to serve and give our customers the kind of attention they want," the public relations group notes.

A special service for newcomers to the city is also planned. A $15 basket of groceries will be taken to the newly - arrived residents, with "absolutely no strings attached." "They won't even have to come get them," the store officials said, "we'll take them this gift with our compliments."

OFFICIALS

Quinten McLemore is co-owner of the Jitney Jungle, and his brother, J. W. McLemore, Jr., is co-owner of the farm and sports department.

J. P. Turnage is Jitney Jungle manager, with Newt Winters manager of the farm department. George Carter and Gillis Ezell serve as assistants in charge of sports and Feed and Seed.

A total of 250 cars can park easily on the parking lot, and mercury vapor lights will add to the convenience for after-dark shoppers. Store hours will be 8 a.m. until 8 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

The McLemores are undertaking a 20,000 house survey to see just what residents want, need and expect from their grocery store. No trouble was spared to launch this extensive survey and the owners feel sure that much valuable data is being gathered.

THE HOME SHIFT

March Busy As February

By MILDRED SWIFT

February was a busy month. We keep repeating that. March is equally as busy. You'll want to finish your pruning and you'll need to start spraying. Don't forget — we promised ourselves we'd get an early start spraying for scale. You can start now with Malathion and repeat every two weeks as long as there is any scale.

This Malathion is almost a general purpose spray. It will get the red spider, white fly and thrips.

AZALEAS

The azaleas start blooming this month and you can see where to prune and use the purnings for your house. Cut those real long limbs. Take a few limbs out of each plant, right where they come out of the ground or where they join a main branch. New shoots will come out.

Fertilize these azaleas any time, now. They can be fed again in six weeks if they need it. You can tell by the general appearance of your plant.

Yellowing in azaleas is usually an indication of iron shortage. This can be sprayed on for temporary relief, then applied to the soil. The best thing to do is to have your soil analyzed, see just what the shortage is and get the recommendations.

MORE WORK

See that the beds and individually planted shrubs are mulched with pine straw, leaves, well rotted sawdust or cotton moat. Peat moss is excellent but expensive if you have much mulching to do.

Plant dahlia tubers and stake when planting to avoid injuring them later.

Prune bush roses and spray for leaf spot. (Call for our rose bulletin.) Remove the old mulch. Spray stems, leaves and ground. Renew mulch.

Keep dead blooms cut from bulbs. If these make seed pods, they sap vitality from the bulb. As these bulbs cease blooming, feed with bone meal.

Divide and re-set perennials which bloom after June.

Fertilize native iris with 8-8-8.

Fertilize all shrubs and trees if you have not already done this.

Fertilize lawns with a complete fertilizer such as 8-8-8. Tell the clerk the size of your lawn. He can tell you how much fertilizer you'll need.

Feed pansies only two weeks with liquid fertilizer made by dissolving 1 cup 8-8-8 in a gallon of water. If you'll keep the blooms gathered they'll bloom more freely and over a longer period of time.

Divide maidenhair fern if its crowded. While its dormant and thin is the best time. Work a little bone meal in the soil before replanting.

SEED TO PLANT

The following seed can be planted in February: sweet alyssum, Chinese forget - me - not, African golden daisy, hollyhock, arctotis, calendula, candytuft, coreopsis, cornflower, gaillardia, gypsaphila, queen ann's lace, larkspur, lobelia, petunia, phlox, salvia, scabiosa, snapdragon, verbena, salvia, red, early cosmos, calliopsis, feverfew, nasturtium.

The following bedding plants may be set in open: Ajuga, alyssum, calendula, candytuft, carnation, coreopsis, cornflower, daisies, dianthus, snapdragon, gerbera, larkspur, lobelia, lupine, violets, petjnia, phlox, Queen Anne's lace, salvia.

GLADIOLUS

Plant gladiolus bulbs every two weeks in February and early March. Early planting is recommended because then you get early blooms. Flowers produced in hot weather do not have the quality and desirable characteristics of those blooming while the weather is still relatively cool.

The two All - American gladiolus awards for 1959 are Joyous and Sparkler. They join the five previous award winners, Emperior, Carribean, Maytime, Apleblossom, and Royal Stewart as being the queens of American gardeners.

The joyous is formal in type, a rich rose color, has large beautifully ruffled florets, with lip petals having a somewhat deeper shade of luscious rose. The plant is healthy and vigorous.

Sparkler is a combination of yellow and red. The florets are ruffled and triangular in shape, with each petal tip fluted. Up to eight florets open at once on plants that are very green, sturdy and straight. It is said to be very beautiful in the landscape picture.

The previous winners were Empero (rose purple with white throat); Royal Stewart (medium ruffled red); Appleblossom (pink and white); Caribbean (ruffled blue) and Maytime (deep pink with white throat.)

Glads are one of our easiest bulbs to grow.

POTPOURRI

Men like to tease us about the size of our handbags and the contents therein. Next time this happens to you, have your husband turn his many pockets inside out. Ten to one his collection (wallet, knife, fingernail clippers, comb, cigarettes, lighter, fountain pen, pencil, handkerchief, memo pad etc.) is equal to yours.

Something else, mister! Petticoats were orignally worn by men. The word means "little coat" and was exactly that, designed to be worn under a suit of armor to prevent chafing.

Later on the coat tail grew longer, the sleeves disappeared, and finally all that was left was the underskirt we know today.

Umbrellas have been raised for over four thousand years, but only in the past three hundred years has their function been to protect from the rain. Prior to that they were either sun shades, or symbols of dignity and authority.

NEW

A new non - tangling appliance cord, made with neoprene, is the latest aid to neatness and efficiency in the American kitchen. It is designed to reduce the usual tangle of extension lines around electric outlets. The new, no knot cord is similar in appearance to the coil cords used on many telephones.

Trees, Shrubs For Planting

By AUDREY DAWSON

GARDENING

It is really planting time in North Louisiana and if you, Mrs. Gardener, are looking for shade trees for your landscape you would do well to consider the following: Ginkgo, Magnolia, Pin Oak, White Oak, Tulip Poplar, Loblolly Pine, Sycamore, Red Maple, Sugar Maple and Mimosa.

If you have a dry sunny location in your garden and need a shrub the following are excellent: Flowering Quince, Althea, Thorny Elaeagnus, Privet, Japenese Borberry and Sumac.

MORE GARDENING

I suppose there's more arguments on whether roses are worth their care in the garden than any other flower. But regardless how much care and how difficult they are to grow there are those of us who think roses are a must and it's time we get those plants in the ground. If you are buying new rose plants, examine the plants if roots appear dry soak them in water for several hours and if you can't plant them immediately place them in the bed and heel them in with moist soil. When planting, be sure the roots fan down sides. Usually you can see the depth where the bush was planted in the nursery. Set it at the same depth. When roots have been covered and the soil firmed to eliminate air pockets, flood the hole with water to get it settled. Then finish filling the hole with good soil.

ROSES CONTINUED

Roses need complete fertilizer but be sure to not overfeed. About one heaping tablespoon for each plant is about the right amount to use. Scratch it into the soil and water it in. Apply this amount several times during growing season, starting when the new shoots reach a height of about four inches.

If you are a lover of daffodils, Mrs. C. D. Henderson's garden is a must for you to see. If weather is favorable this week, Sunday should be a perfect day. Mrs. Henderson lives about two miles from the new bridge out the Shreveport Highway. Turn to the right on the Avant Road and it is marked so you can't miss it. The setting is perfect for there is a small incline and rows and rows of yellow daffodils among a grove of pine trees. Do take time to see this garden. It is surely worth your time and effort.

GARDEN TOUR

the Ten and Twenty-five Year Club of the Home Demonstration program is sponsoring a tour to the Hodges Gardens at Many, Louisiana March 31st. Mrs. Margaret Shipp is chairman of the committee and if you plan to make the trip, call her at FA 3-7991 or Mrs. Elva Haynes - FA 2-2773 or Mrs. Gertie Landrum FA 2-0353. You do not have to be a member to make the tour, but please turn in your reservation so that plans for transportation can be made. The bus will leave the Agricultural Building, West Monroe at 6:00 a.m. and will return that evening about 5:30.

A THOUGHT — Nothing is easier than fault finding.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Ivy Guild Members Stage Spring Show

Guest Writer Gladys M. Kulcke

The Ivy Guild Garden Club of Monroe had a pretty spring flower show in the Garden Center this week.

Mrs. Homer Massingill made a crescent design in a conch shell. The swirling lines of the shell suggested the design. Pussy willow twigs carried the upper crescent line followed by ivy which also extended on the lower side making the curved line. Pink Perfection Camellia blossoms and buds used in gradation covered the focal area of the design. A pretty arrangement for the ladies bedroom.

ALABASTER VASE

Mrs. Ola Mae Passman used an alabaster vase for her triangle design. Pussy willow twigs were manipulated into soft curving lines that formed the outline of the design. Large daffodills followed this curved line and were clustered in the focal area. Variegated euonymus branches strengthened the curved lines and were placed back of the daffodils giving depth to the design. A beautiful arrangement for a living room table.

Mrs. Earl Vigg had a most interesting composition of dried and fresh material, driftwood and artificial grapes. The driftwood of a triangle shape was fastened to the brown wood base. A stalk of dried canna was placed back of the vertical line of the driftwood extending the line upward. The wide open Soulangeana Magnolias were placed just above the curve of the vertical line graduating in size to a bud at the top. The dark purple grapes followed the lower line of the triangle extending out on the base. A conversation piece for the buffet.

Date to remember — March 14-15, Hammond, La. The Louisiana State Flower Show will be at Southeastern Louisiana College, in the Coliseum, North Oak St., Hammond, La.

A beautiful flower show was exhibited by the Bastrop Garden Club of Bastrop, Louisiana last week in the Garden Center. Mrs. D. M. Quinn, Sr. placed first with the popular lazy S design form. She used pussy willow for her spike material to carry the line. Varigated Euonymus and yellow daffodils followed the graceful S design. This lovely arrangement was made in a dark green pottery pillow vase. You would like to have this cheerful arrangement in your home.

THE HOME SHIFT

March Busy As February

By MILDRED SWIFT

February was a busy month. We keep repeating that. March is equally as busy. You'll want to finish your pruning and you'll need to start spraying. Don't forget — we promised ourselves we'd get an early start spraying for scale. You can start now with Malathion and repeat every two weeks as long as there is any scale.

This Malathion is almost a general purpose spray. It will get the red spider, white fly and thrips.

AZALEAS

The azaleas start blooming this month and you can see where to prune and use the purnings for your house. Cut those real long limbs. Take a few limbs out of each plant, right where they come out of the ground or where they join a main branch. New shoots will come out.

Fertilize these azaleas any time, now. They can be fed again in six weeks if they need it. You can tell by the general appearance of your plant.

Yellowing in azaleas is usually an indication of iron shortage. This can be sprayed on for temporary relief, then applied to the soil. The best thing to do is to have your soil analyzed, see just what the shortage is and get the recommendations.

MORE WORK

See that the beds and individually planted shrubs are mulched with pine straw, leaves, well rotted sawdust or cotton moat. Peat moss is excellent but expensive if you have much mulching to do.

Plant dahlia tubers and stake when planting to avoid injuring them later.

Prune bush roses and spray for leaf spot. (Call for our rose bulletin.) Remove the old mulch. Spray stems, leaves and ground. Renew mulch.

Keep dead blooms cut from bulbs. If these make seed pods, they sap vitality from the bulb. As these bulbs cease blooming, feed with bone meal.

Divide and re-set perennials which bloom after June.

Fertilize native iris with 8-8-8.

Fertilize all shrubs and trees if you have not already done this.

Fertilize lawns with a complete fertilizer such as 8-8-8. Tell the clerk the size of your lawn. He can tell you how much fertilizer you'll need.

Feed pansies only two weeks with liquid fertilizer made by dissolving 1 cup 8-8-8 in a gallon of water. If you'll keep the blooms gathered they'll bloom more freely and over a longer period of time.

Divide maidenhair fern if its crowded. While its dormant and thin is the best time. Work a little bone meal in the soil before replanting.

SEED TO PLANT

The following seed can be planted in February: sweet alyssum, Chinese forget - me - not, African golden daisy, hollyhock, arctotis, calendula, candytuft, coreopsis, cornflower, gaillardia, gypsaphila, queen ann's lace, larkspur, lobelia, petunia, phlox, salvia, scabiosa, snapdragon, verbena, salvia, red, early cosmos, calliopsis, feverfew, nasturtium.

The following bedding plants may be set in open: Ajuga, alyssum, calendula, candytuft, carnation, coreopsis, cornflower, daisies, dianthus, snapdragon, gerbera, larkspur, lobelia, lupine, violets, petjnia, phlox, Queen Anne's lace, salvia.

GLADIOLUS

Plant gladiolus bulbs every two weeks in February and early March. Early planting is recommended because then you get early blooms. Flowers produced in hot weather do not have the quality and desirable characteristics of those blooming while the weather is still relatively cool.

The two All - American gladiolus awards for 1959 are Joyous and Sparkler. They join the five previous award winners, Emperior, Carribean, Maytime, Appleblossom, and Royal Stewart as being the queens of American gardeners.

The Joyous is formal in type, a rich rose color, has large beautifully ruffled florets, with lip petals having a somewhat deeper shade of luscious rose. The plant is healthy and vigorous.

Sparkler is a combination of yellow and red. The florets are ruffled and triangular in shape, with each petal tip fluted. Up to eight florets open at once on plants that are very green, sturdy and straight. It is said to be very beautiful in the landscape picture.

The previous winners were Empero (rose purple with white throat); Royal Stewart (medium ruffled red); Appleblossom (pink and white); Caribbean (ruffled blue) and Maytime (deep pink with white throat.)

Glads are one of our easiest bulbs to grow.

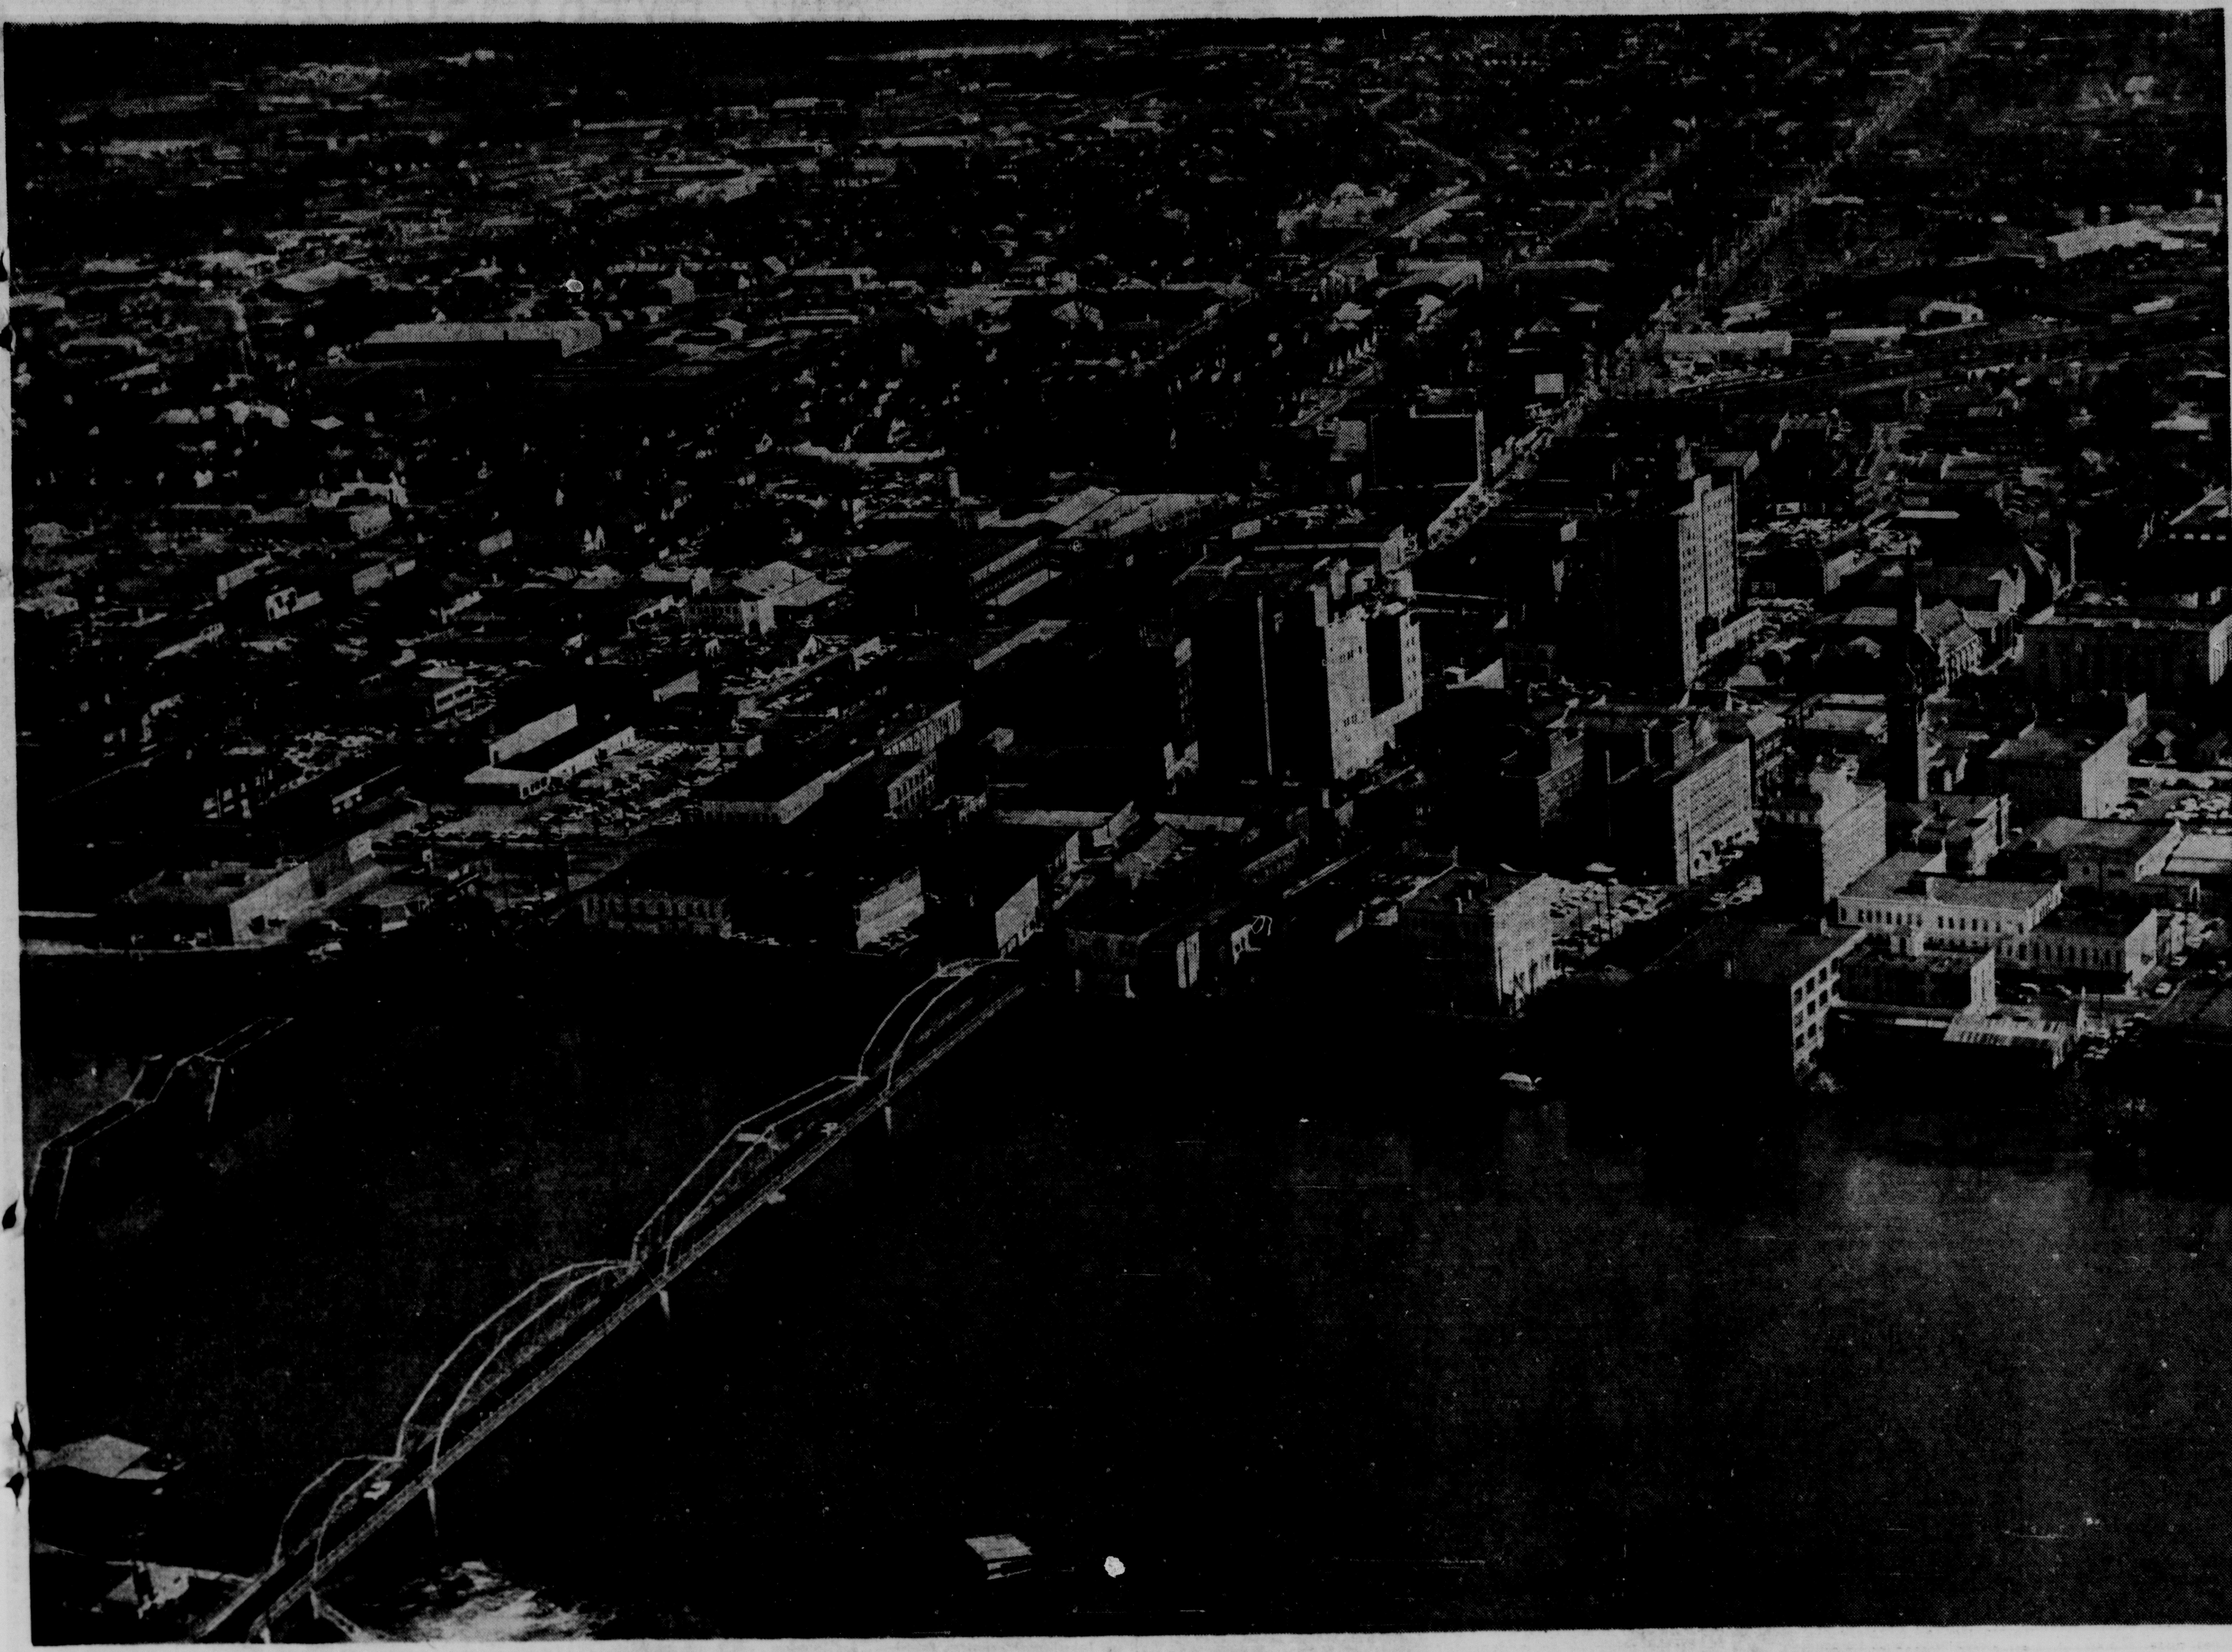
Downtown Bargain Day For Monroe Monday



An aerial view of Monroe and the downtown section—where downtown bargain day will be held on Monday. Staff Photo).

DeSiard Street—the main shopping thoroughfare in downtown Monroe—

Many Special Bargains To Be Featured In The Event

"If it's in town, it's downtown."

That's the slogan of downtown Monroe as merchants prepare to launch "Downtown Bargain Day" here Monday.

Coordinated by co - chairmen Fred Beckett and Chet Rousseau, the downtown special business day was designed to offer shoppers good bargains.

Beckett pointed out that shoppers will be able to get super bargains on "anything their heart desires, including the very latest in spring fashions."

"Every business man in the downtown area will offer customers in the entire Monroe area tremendously low prices on the very best of merchandise," Beckett said.

Stores will open at 9 a.m. and close at their regular time for the special event, according to Beckett, who explained that all stores will be geared to serve their customers.

He explained that the special promotion will last for only one day, pointing out, "Shoppers can find everything downtown."

Beckett added, "We expect this to be a big success since shoppers will be offered bargains they can't afford to pass up."

The plan here is based on those in operation in a number of other cities across the nation, including San Antonio, Dallas and Fort Worth, Texas; Alexandria, La., Oklahoma City and St. Joseph, Mo.

List Of Stores Taking Part In Special Event

Here are the merchants participating in Downtown Bargain Day:

Montgomery Ward, J. C. Penney, Lane-Wilson Feed, Siverstein's, The Palace, Morgan & Lindsay, Gordon's Jewelers, Haddad Hardware & Appliance, Zale's Jewelers, Durrett Furniture Co., S. H. Kress.

Krauss & Cahn, D. Masur, The Toggery, Alvis Men's Shop Delta Department Store; The Fair Store, The Squire Shop, Brennan's, Style Shop, Belk-Gallant, Field's, Holloway & Thompson, Woman's Shop.

Famous Fabric, Edward's Shoes, The Fashion, York Shop, Grayson's, W. T. Grant, Alen's Fashion Shop, Kern's Kiddie Land, Dew Music, Howard Bros., Bond's Bakery, Monroe Furniture Co., Star Hardware, Elias & Son, and Ferd Levi.

Stock Predictions Are Special Art

By SAM KUCZUN
United Press International

SPRINGFIELD, Mass (UPI) — There are 1,001 ways to predict the stock market and individual stocks.

The so-called predictors are called investment counselors and their services are deductible from your income tax if you use them to play the market.

Some real personalities do this sort of job, which is in great demand by the experts, as well as the novices in the stock market.

There's the Old Vermont Ruminator, Humphrey B. Neill, who holds to the art of contrary thinking. Up in his secluded Vermont retreat he studies what Wall Street is thinking, reverses the thing and often comes out right on the nose.

Here in Springfield, there's John Magee who got into the investment counseling business to save his own hide from ruin in the stock market.

ADMITS

When Magee started out as a counselor, he admits he was up to his neck in charts. And that's his method of operating.

It isn't so much how successful Magee is — and he's considered right successful in New England and Wall Street parts — but it's his way of working on those charts.

He wants to be — and is — 100 miles from Wall Street.

He doesn't read financial publications unless they are at least two weeks old He "won't be confused by statistics."

And the real novelty of this chain-smoker's operation is his workshop.

He has sealed himself off from the world. His widow is boarded up and all the cracks are filled with putty. The room is soundproof, lighted by one fluorescent lighting fixture overhead bouncing off the bleak, white walls.

"This," he says, "insures my detachment from everyday activities, and makes me concentrate on my charts. It also keeps the cold and dirt out."

Magee insists that the action of the stock itself in the past determines how it is going to act in the future. The chart, in other words, tells the story. He has to interpret that chart to get a prediction of the future.

SAME METHOD

This is the same method of the Dow theorists. They hold that the chart of the market itself tells how the market will perform in the future. And so many people follow the Dow theory that it really works most of the time.

Magee now employs 20 persons in his chart operation. He makes the difficult forecasts himself.

He is a writer as well as a market prognosticator. With Robert D. Edwards, another technical expert, he was co-author of "Technical Analysis of Stock Trends," a $14 book that has sold 14,000 copies.

Recently, he wrote "The General Semantics of Wall Street," a work dealing with psychological traps and pitfalls of the market and the lives of those who deal in it. The book is being talked about daily in market circles.

Magee says most people go into the market with the desire to beat the stocks and satisfy their ego by doing what everybody said couldn't be done.

He doesn't read financial publications unless they are at least two weeks old. He "won't be confused by statistics."

And the real novelty of this chain-smoker's operation is his workshop.

He has sealed himself off from the world. His widow is boarded up and all the cracks are filled with putty. The room is soundproof, lighted by one fluorescent lighting fixture overhead bouncing off the bleak, white walls.

"This," he says, "insures my detachment from everyday activities, and makes me concentrate on my charts. It also keeps the cold and dirt out."

Magee insists that the action of the stock itself in the past determines how it is going to act in the future. The chart, in other words, tells the story. He has to interpret that chart to get a prediction of the future.

SAME METHOD

This is the same method of the Dow theorists. They hold that the chart of the market itself tells how the market will perform in the future. And so many people follow the Dow theory that it really works most of the time.

Magee now employs 20 persons in his chart operation. He makes the difficult forecasts himself.

He is a writer as well as a market prognosticator. With Robert D. Edwards, another technical expert, he was co-author of "Technical Analysis of Stock Trends," a $14 book that has sold 14,000 copies.

Recently, he wrote "The General Semantics of Wall Street," a work dealing with psychological traps and pitfalls of the market and the lives of those who deal in it. The book is being talked about daily in market circles.

Magee says most people go into the market with the desire to beat the stocks and satisfy their ego by doing what everybody said couldn't be done.

REV. J. A. FARRELL

Staged Debate Scheduled At St. Matthew's

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. C. Marsh, pastor of St. Matthew's Church, has announced a staged debate on six religious questions today through March 6, with services conducted each evening at 7:30 by two Paulist missionaries from Memphis.

The "debaters" conducted a similar series at Our Lady of Fatima church last December.

Topics listed for two - sided presentation are: "How Reliable Is Your Bible?" "Should You Belong to a Particular Church?" "Are Catholics Oppressed by Authority?" "How Can a Priest Forgive Sins?" and "How Can you Succeed in Marriage?"

The Mass will be demonstrated and explained Wednesday night.

"Presentation of religious truth in the form of a controversy heightens interest in the subjects," observed Msgr. Marsh. "Both sides are heard. It's pro and con. Thus misinformation is sifted out; incomplete information is remedied. Both Catholics and others have found these staged debates highly educational."

The Paulist Fathers, a group of priests organized in New York City in 1859, have popularized these debates in America. The original Paulists were all a tone time Protestants themselves, and they therefore had a ready understanding of both sides of religious questions.

People of all creeds are welcome to attend this series of debates, Msgr. Marsh said.

R. G. LETOURNEAU

West Monroe Church Slates Guest Speaker

The Methodist Men's Club of the First Methodist Church in West Monroe will feature R. G. LeTourneau, industrialist and church layman, as guest speaker at the organization's meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m.

According to Charles P. Chisholm, program chairman for the club, the meeting and lecture will be held in the church auditorium.

Robert G. LeTourneau, president of R. G. LeTourneau, Inc., is known throughout the world for pioneering the manufacture of modern heavy equipment and for the millions of dollars he has contributed to furthering the preaching of the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Mr. LeTourneau's pioneering tradition dates back to the earlh 1920's when, as a young man in his thirties, he began building land - leveling machinery by the then — revolutionary process of welding.

Immediate acceptance was received by his early manufacturing efforts and, in 1929, the operation reached porportions where incorporation was necessary. This was the beginning of the firm R. G. LeTourneau, Inc., of which Mr. LeTourneau still is president and chief engineer.

Heavy equipment which makes possible new methods, new efficiency and new fields of operation has continued to be the hallmark of the company for the past 28 years. At the present time, and for a number of years, Mr. LeTourneau has been producing giant heavy - duty equipment which is both electrically powered and electrically controlled — and which constitutes another "first-of-its-kind" for the man who produced over half of all basic earthmoving equipment used by the Armed Services during the last war.

The careers of Mr. LeTourneau, however, has been built with a slide rule in one hand and a Bible in the other — as evidenced by the fact he is widely referred to today as "God's businessman." Religious aspects of the title has been earned by the many millions of dollars which he, through the LeTourneau Foundation, has contributed to furthering the Christian doctrine in this country and abroad.

Through the Foundation (which he and his wife endowed in 1935) he contributed more than 90 per cent of his worldly goods, including 90 per cent of his company's outstanding stock. "Not how much of my money do I give to God — but how much of God's money do I keep for myself," summarizes his personal financial credo.

REV. J. A. FARRELL

Staged Debate Scheduled At St. Matthew's

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. C. Marsh, pastor of St. Matthew's Church, has announced a staged debate on six religious questions today through March 6, with services conducted each evening at 7:30 by two Paulist missionaries from Memphis.

The "debaters" conducted a similar series at Our Lady of Fatima church last December.

Topics listed for two - sided presentation are: "How Reliable Is Your Bible?" "Should You Belong to a Particular Church?" "Are Catholics Oppressed by Authority?" "How Can a Priest Forgive Sins?" and "How Can you Succeed in Marriage?"

The Mass will be demonstrated and explained Wednesday night.

"Presentation of religious truth in the form of a controversy heightens interest in the subjects," observed Msgr. Marsh. "Both sides are heard. It's pro and con. Thus misinformation is sifted out; incomplete information is remedied. Both Catholics and others have found these staged debates highly educational."

The Paulist Fathers, a group of priests organized in New York City in 1858, have popularized these debates in America. The original Paulists were all a tone time Protestants themselves, and they therefore had a ready understanding of both sides of religious questions.

People of all creeds are welcome to attend this series of debates, Msgr. Marsh said.

R. G. LETOURNEAU

West Monroe Church Slates Guest Speaker

The Methodist Men's Club of the First Methodist Church in West Monroe will feature R. G. LeTourneau, industrialist and church layman, as guest speaker at the organization's meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m.

According to Charles P. Chisholm, program chairman for the club, the meeting and lecture will be held in the church auditorium.

Robert G. LeTourneau, president of R. G. LeTourneau, Inc., is known throughout the world for pioneering the manufacture of modern heavy equipment and for the millions of dollars he has contributed to furthering the preaching o the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Mr. LeTourneau's pioneering tradition dates back to the earlh 1920's when, as a young man in his thirties, he began building land - leveling machinery by the then — revolutionary process of welding.

Immediate acceptance was received by his early manufacturing efforts and, in 1929, the operation reached porportions where incorporation was necessary. This was the beginning of the firm R. G. LeTourneau, Inc., of which Mr. LeTourneau still is president and chief engineer.

Heavy equipment which makes possible new methods, new efficiency and new fields of operation has continued to be the hallmark of the company for the past 28 years. At the present time, and for a number of years, Mr. LeTourneau has been producing giant heavy - duty equipment which is both electrically powered and electrically controlled — and which constitutes another "first-of-its-kind" for the man who produced over half of all basic earth-moving equipment used by the Armed Services during the last war.

The career of Mr. LeTourneau, however, has been built with a slide rule in one hand and a Bible in the other — as evidenced by the fact he is widely referred to today as "God's businessman." Religious aspects of the title has been earned by the many millions of dollars which he, through the LeTourneau Foundation, has contributed to furthering the Christian doctrine in this country and abroad.

Through the Foundation (which he and his wife endowed in 1935) he contributed more than 90 per cent of his worldly goods, including 90 per cent of his company's outstanding stock. "Not how much of my money do I give to God — but how much of God's money do I keep for myself," summarizes his personal financial credo.

Amity Baptist Church Slates Weekend Revival

Far East Concert Tour Presents Problems

By W. G. ROGERS

NEW YORK (AP) — When you take an orchestra of half a hundred people on a tour of the Far East, you have two sets of headaches:

One is mainly musical, the other mainly logistical.

Thomas Scherman, who has just flown off with the Little Orchestra Society to play 36 concerts in eight countries in eight weeks, told about them before he left.

Youngish for a conductor, Scherman has already bested a host of problems, from being an Army captain in combat to finding his way through the multiple preparatory stages which alone fit a man for the immensely complex conductorial task.

PLENTY OF PROBLEMS

So the Little Orchestra conductor wasn't worried a bit, but he was intrigued:

"On the one hand it's violin strings, and on the other, chopsticks" — real chopsticks, not that old piano piece.

"Or on the one hand it's rehearsal time, and on the other, the question of how many white dress jackets I will go through in the hot and humid weather in which we shall often have to play.

"A conductor who made the same tour before me wore out three. So I'm taking two, and counting on getting a third made in Hong Kong if I have to."

An advance man covering the route they will take kept sending back bulletins about the need to learn to use chopsticks. They asked him whether they couldn't, instead, bring along 50 forks, but he said no. The whole orchestra practiced in a Japanese restaurant here.

SHOT SESSIONS

The other main preliminary problem was shots against this or that anti - democratic or anti - musical bug. Each player had to take 11, making a total of more than 500, which had to be administered so that none of the musicians, who were playing Scherman's regular fall and winter schedule, was laid low. The doctor began his work early in December, and to make sure, went along on the trip with them.

An ANTA tour, the itinerary was expected to take them to India, Ceylon, Thailand, Cambodia, Vietnam, Taiwan, Korea, Japan and the city of Hong Kong.

"The abrupt changes in temperature which some of this traveling will require," Scherman pointed out, "are bad for violin strings. As between a good and a not so good violin, the good one suffers greater damage. Weather also can affect the drums.

SLEEPING A PROBLEM

He thought the lack of western accommodations would be taken by most players as a lark. In one place, for instance, the only available hotel will be able to sleep only 15 of them in European-style beds, and the rest will stretch out on the floor on bed rolls.

The problem of luggage and instrument transportation was more difficult. The orchestra is using 36 battered trunks from the New York Philharmonic's last foreign tour; it is taking along parts for 24 pieces of music, plus music stands and high metal stools for the double basses.

"We are also accommodating our playing to some peculiar native instruments. In Madras, for instance, we give the world premiere of Henry Cowell's Symphony No. 13. This California - born composer began it in 1956 and dedicated it to the Madras Academy of Music. It calls for some hand drums and water - tuned bowls and I hope very much," — he smiled — "We have rehearsal time to assimilate them before we appear in public.

PROGRAMS SELECTED

"I am taking five basic programs. On every one there will be two works by contemporary Americans — among them, besides Cowell, Aaron Copland, Ernest Bloch, Virgil Thomson, Wallingford Riegger, Morton Gould, Norman Dello Joio, Elie Siegmeister, and Frederick Jacobi. I also may play an arrangement of my own of a work of Corelli's.

"I have been warned particularly about pianos; so one of the five programs is planned without piano. Someone said there wasn't a good one anywhere on my itinerary except in Japan."

It is estimated that the Little Orchestra Society, which Scherman founded in 1947, will play in halls, movie houses and other auditoriums that seat a total of 72,000. There will be broadcasts to carry their programs to uncounted thousands more. Perhaps half the cities they visit have not heard an American orchestra before; and though European music is known, the American compositions will be brand new to most of the listeners.

RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

The past week represented a crescendo in the season of music and drama in the northeast Louisiana area with a symphony orchestra, a Metropolitan Opera soprano and a musical comedy performing in various halls.

The Monday evening performance of the Detroit symphony orchestra marked the first appearance of a full-sized organization of this type since the New Orleans orchestra performed here several seasons ago.

This is not to underestimate more recent concerts here by the Boston Pops orchestra nor the Twin City symphony, both of which number between 50 and 65 musicians, but there is a depth to a 100-piece symphony which represents a musical accomplishment of this age.

BIG MUSIC

Composers of 1800 began to have big ideas but for the most part, these remained in the blueprint stage until instruments, concert halls and supporting economics enabled some degree of realization.

The average European orchestra of 1830, for example, averaged around 40 players, according to Richard Wagner in his writing on the "State of Music in Germany." So big were this composer's dreams until he wrote with an orchestra of 90-100 players in mind, recruited musicians to play it and finally "secured" enough money to build an opera house in Bavaria where he could stage his music dramas.

New Orleans led the United States musically up to the Civil War, although Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Charleston supported orchestras and opera. The full symphonies came into being in this country during the 1870's and have held their own — with various ups and downs — ever since. Newcomers to the field have sprung up in Texas in Houston, Dallas and San Antonio on the firm footing of oil.

ON THE ROAD

To some extent, Conductor Paul Paray of the Detroit orchestra showed signs of road weariness, but he had an energetic group of musicians to help him along.

In contrast, however, many who made the trip to Ruston to hear soloist Victoria de Los Angeles noted the famed soprano seemed to lack strength.

There was quality there, of course, but something fell short. As the tour agents say, "We are dealing with human merchandise and anything can happen."

By all musical standards, the Spanish soprano was tops. Diction, range, outstanding mastery of the languages — German, French, italian — of her songs, and her shading and phrasings: all were of a high order.

But aside from one or two of the Spanish songs, the Brahms "Frustrated Serenade" and the flamenco song Miss Los Angeles sang for an encore, the element of personality was held back.

This certainly makes a difference to the audience and the performer. If the "grand tour" system is at fault, it is time to get to work on alternatives. A nine-week tour to include 25 concerts, for instance, might strike some artists as a two-mile run or some other physical feat. Therefore he would pick points along the way to put forth or conserve energy.

Some artists are of such nature as to thrive on tours. Lily Pons used to suffer from stage fright bordering on illness. Her best performances were perhaps "scared out of her."

Eleanor Steber whips up her best pre-concert emotions with a mood not far removed from a case of the schoolgirl giggles. Be that as it may, she brought a Monroe audience to its feet after her concert here last spring even though she had a near case of flu.

MANAGERS NOTE

For this reason, managers should take careful note of where the top artists do their best. In this writer's opinion, singers as Victoria de Los Angeles, would sing at their best if they could pause in one city for several opera engagements and go lightly on the far-flung tours. Others thrive "on the run." This is certainly not meant to rate the one any lower than the other. But the tour managers should take heed as to which "type" they are dealing with.

COMING UP

The La. Tech Concert Association offers as its next attraction the Ballet Russe di Monte Carlo on Wednesday evening of this week. And let us not forget the Selman Field Playhouse will be jumping madly throughout the coming fortnight with "The Pajama Game," which opened last night.

Talk Turns To Big Catastrophe

THE YOUNG ASSASSINS. By Juan Goytisolo. Translated from Spanish by John Rust. Knopf. $3.95.

In this first novel by an author still almost a boy himself, or 21 when he wrote, a band of boys, with some girls to abet them, works itself into a tragic misadventure in Madrid.

The time is the present. David Augustin, Raul, Uribe and some friends have developed what social scientists call anti - social patterns of thought and behavior, and what courts, moralists and press call juvenile delinquency. These are not Americans living in a world of comparative ease, however, where nonconformity is no more than a kind of game. It is not so simple in Madrid, a society suffering from fundamental strains; what stops at the stage of prank with us goes on with them to rebellion.

They talk themselves into catastrophe, it is their philosophizing and analyzing which fire the fatal shot. In particular the revolutionist Ana channels their unhappiness; but perhaps the unhappiest ones most docile before her are the fated David, his old friend Augustine, and that curious pair Uribe and Raul.

These are not immoral or criminal youths; they are moral but in a way we do not accept; good as they are, it's the good their world must destroy. They are the wretched misfits who by a heart-breaking paradox bring their dreadful fate down on their own heads all the more quickly for following where their consciences lead.

A King In Lion Cloth As Friend

HENDERSON THE RAIN KING. By Saul Bellow. Viking. $4.50.

An American millionaire in darkest Africa, with lions roaring all around, dusky nude women to wait on him, a king in loin cloth as friend and mentor — that's the situation in this new novel by the author of the prize winning "The Adventures of Augie March."

Henderson is 55. He has children, one past and one present wife, a few natural and a few store teeth. He also has chest expansion and biceps. A lot of zest steams inside his aging carcass. He has an appetite for life, or something, that keeps him always jumpy. If it isn't out of date, or out of line, he's the original man with ants in his pants.

"I want, I want," is the phrase that keeps dogging him, awake or asleep, in the city or jungle, and what he wants doesn't matter compared to the mere intense, ceaseless wanting. It's an obsessive habit, or rather phrase. It resembles an intelligence test; the paper bears the printed words, "I want," and the person tested fills in whatever comes to mind — to raise pigs, to be like Grenfell of Labrador, to play the violin, go to Africa, blow up a pond.

Anyway, off goes Henderson to Africa with friends whom he soon drops to venture on alone with a guide into the unknown. To help relieve a water shortage plaguing the Arnewi, he sets off a blast to kill frogs in a cistern and blows up the cistern itself, like pouring out the baby with the bath. To help the Wariri, he decides he "wants" to lift the huge image of goddess Mummah. Then before he knows it, the rain falls, he pals around with a lion, is promised a crown, settles for a lion cub, heads for home.

Perhaps Bellow really knows Africa, but all this novel proves, and all that matters, is that he has sojourned in much more phantasmagorical lands than the Dark Continent. After introducing Henderson, an exuberant, unbridled and often very comical force, he follows his superbly purposeless course. A man with a will but no sensible way, acting on the belief it's better to do something, even anything, than nothing, he behaves like a Don Quixote among Hottentots. Not up to "Augie March," perhaps too long, this has grand imaginative flights and is a fine tour de force. The real rain king, conjure boy and master of the black arts is Bellow himself.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

All Types New Books Added

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

New books of all types have been added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library during the past week. Let's first take a look at the fiction titles. "Henderson the Rain King" is the title of Saul Bellow's book. It is a book which will probably raise a great deal of controversy, for many of its tenets are hard to accept. It is the portrait of an American who lives many lives in one and who finally finds himself in darkest Africa. "The Scientists" by Eleazar Lipsky is a novel written about the men who more than any others are determining our destinies, about their women, their families and friends and the world in which they move. The book rises above ordinary story telling. It raises questions which those who turn its pages will not soon forget. It offers a reading experience which takes on the dimensions of life itself. "A break in the Weather" by Florence Jane Soman is a family story set in our own time and one with profound implications. It is a book which will appeal especially to women.

"Cricket Smith" is the title of a new novel written by Monte Linkletter. It is a story of adolescence and its problems and it's leading character is one you will not soon forget. "The Watch that Ends the Night" by Hugh McLennan is a contemporary tale of a strange triangle which harks back to the period of crisis in Montreal and of World War II. "The Hedge of Thorns" by Helen Ashton has its setting in Ireland during the trying years of the potato famine and is the story of an English girl and how she took life.

Arthemise Goertz is that author of a new book which she calls "A Dream of Fuji." It has its setting in Japan during the war years and is concerned with the foreign correspondents living there. Miss Goertz writes from personal experience which gives substance to the story.

Biographies always have an appeal to the reading public. "The Poacher from Stratford" is the title of a new biography of Shakespeare, written by Frank W. Wadsworth. "I Am Anastasia" by Anastasia, the Grand Duchess of Russia purports to be the true story of Anastasia, whose adventures received a great deal of publicity with the play of recent years. You may read and decide for yourself, whether this book is true or not. "Elizabeth the Great" is the title of another biography of England's Great Renaissance Queen. This one was written by Elizabeth Jenkins and is well worth reading. "Johnson and Boswell" by Hesketh Pearson is a very interesting evaluation of these two men who have added so much to our knowledge of early eighteenth century England. "Wave as You Pass" by Harry Lee Neal is an account of an interesting marriage and a musical career. "Say Darling" by Richard Bissell and Abe Burrows is the play version of the popular book.

In the field of practical books there are three titles: "Fun with Flowers" by Julia Clements adds to our knowledge of flower arrangement; "Effective Library Exhibits" by Kate Coplan, will be widely used by the library staff of all our branches; "The Rockhunter's field Manual" by D. K. Fritzen is a practical guide for anyone interested in this exciting hobby.

As the spring approaches each year a number of new religious books are released, many of them designed to meet the needs of Lenten readers. "The First Easter" is a beautiful collection of the sermons of Peter Marshall, edited by his wife. "We Believe in Prayer" by Lawrence M. Brings is compilation of statements by Americans and world leaders stating their belief in the value of prayer. "Warriors of God" by Walter Nigg is a study of the great religious orders and their founders. It will be of particular interest to members of the Catholic Church. "Publicity Goes to Church" is a handbook for everyone concerned with church communication and public relations. "Point of View" by Isreal Levinthal is an analysis of American Judaism.

In the field of Social Science there are several interesting books. "My Ten Years As a Counterspy" by Boris Morros will be popular with those who enjoyed "I Led Three Lives." "The Communist World and Ours" by Walter Lippman should be read by every thinking citizen who wants to know how to deal with the threat of world communism. C. Wright Mills has written a very thoughtful, but frightening book, which he calls "The Cause of World War Three." This is also for the reader concerned with present day survival. "Okinawa, the History of an Island People" by George H. Kerr, tells the story of a people about whom we knew very little. "An Anthropologist at Work" by Ruth Benedict and Margaret Mead tells us a great deal about the way in which anthropologists carry on their studies. It is a very splendid book for all of those engaged in this sort of work. Last of all there is "The Crossing of Antarctica" by Sir Vivian Fuchs and Sir Edmund Hillary. This is a story of courage and endurance and one that is unique in the annals of adventure.

Far East Concert Tour Presents Problems

By W. G. ROGERS

NEW YORK (AP) — When you take an orchestra of half a hundred people on a tour of the Far East, you have two sets of headaches:

One is mainly musical, the other mainly logistical.

Thomas Scherman, who has just flown off with the Little Orchestra Society to play 36 concerts in eight countries in eight weeks, told about them before he left.

Youngish for a conductor, Scherman has already bested a host of problems, from being an Army captain in combat to finding his way through the multiple preparatory stages which alone fit a man for the immensely complex conductorial task.

PLENTY OF PROBLEMS

So the Little Orchestra conductor wasn't worried a bit, but he was intrigued:

"On the one hand it's violin strings, and on the other, chopsticks" — real chopsticks, not that old piano piece.

"Or on the one hand it's rehearsal time, and on the other, the question of how many white dress jackets I will go through in the hot and humid weather in which we shall often have to play.

"A conductor who made the same tour before me wore out three. So I'm taking two, and counting on getting a third made in Hong Kong if I have to."

An advance man covering the route they will take kept sending back bulletins about the need to learn to use chopsticks. They asked him whether they couldn't, instead, bring along 50 forks, but he said no. The whole orchestra practiced in a Japanese restaurant here.

SHOT SESSIONS

The other main preliminary problem was shots against this or that anti - democratic or anti - musical bug. Each player had to take 11, making a total of more than 500, which had to be administered so that none of the musicians, who were playing Scherman's regular fall and winter schedule, was laid low. The doctor began his work early in December, and to make sure, went along on the trip with them.

An ANTA tour, the itinerary was expected to take them to India, Ceylon, Thailand, Cambodia, Vietnam, Taiwan, Korea, Japan and the city of Hong Kong.

"The abrupt changes in temperature which some of this traveling will require," Scherman pointed out, "are bad for violin strings. As between a good and a not so good violin, the good one suffers greater damage. Weather also can affect the drums.

SLEEPING A PROBLEM

He thought the lack of western accommodations would be taken by most players as a lark. In one place, for instance, the only available hotel will be able to sleep only 15 of them in European-style beds, and the rest will stretch out on the floor on bed rolls.

The problem of luggage and instrument transportation was more difficult. The orchestra is using 36 battered trunks from the New York Philharmonic's last foreign tour; it is taking along parts for 24 pieces of music, plus music stands and high metal stools for the double basses.

"We are also accommodating our playing to some peculiar native instruments. In Madras, for instance, we give the world premiere of Henry Cowell's Symphony No. 13. This California - born composer began it in 1956 and dedicated it to the Madras Academy of Music. It calls for some hand drums and water - tuned bowls and I hope very much," — he smiled — "We have rehearsal time to assimilate them before we appear in public.

PROGRAMS SELECTED

"I am taking five basic programs. On every one there will be two works by contemporary Americans — among them, besides Cowell, Aaron Copland, Ernest Bloch, Virgil Thomson, Wallingford Riegger, Morton Gould, Norman Dello Joio, Elie Siegmeister, and Frederick Jacobi. I also may play an arrangement of my own of a work of Corelli's.

"I have been warned particularly about pianos; so one of the five programs is planned without piano. Someone said there wasn't a good one anywhere on my itinerary except in Japan."

It is estimated that the Little Orchestra Society, which Scherman founded in 1947, will play in halls, movie houses and other auditoriums that seat a total of 72,000. There will be broadcasts to carry their programs to uncounted thousands more. Perhaps half the cities they visit have not heard an American orchestra before; and though European music is known, the American compositions will be brand new to most of the listeners.

RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

The past week represented a crescendo in the season of music and drama in the northeast Louisiana area with a symphony orchestra, a Metropolitan Opera soprano and a musical comedy performing in various halls.

The Monday evening performance of the Detroit symphony orchestra marked the first appearance of a full-sized organization of this type since the New Orleans orchestra performed here several seasons ago.

This is not to underestimate more recent concerts here by the Boston Pops orchestra nor the Twin City symphony, both of which number between 50 and 65 musicians, but there is a depth to a 100-piece symphony which represents a musical accomplishment of this age.

BIG MUSIC

Composers of 1800 began to have big ideas but for the most part, these remained in the blueprint stage until instruments, concert halls and supporting economics enabled some degree of realization.

The average European orchestra of 1830, for example, averaged around 40 players, according to Richard Wagner in his writing on the "State of Music in Germany." So big were this composer's dreams until he wrote with an orchestra of 90-100 players in mind, recruited musicians to play it and finally "secured" enough money to build an opera house in Bavaria, where he could stage his music dramas.

New Orleans led the United States musically up to the Civil War, although Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Charleston supported orchestras and opera. The full symphonies came into being in this country during the 1870's and have held their own — with various ups and downs — ever since. Newcomers to the field have sprung up in Texas in Houston, Dallas and San Antonio on the firm footing of oil.

ON THE ROAD

To some extent, Conductor Paul Paray of the Detroit orchestra showed signs of road weariness, but he had an energetic group of musicians to help him along.

In contrast, however, many who made the trip to Ruston to hear soloist Victoria de Los Angeles noted the famed soprano seemed to lack strength.

There was quality there, of course, but something fell short. As the tour agents say, "We are dealing with human merchandise and anything can happen."

By all musical standards, the Spanish soprano was tops. Diction, range, outstanding mastery of the languages — German, French, Italian — of her songs, and her shading and phrasings: all were of a high order.

But aside from one or two of the Spanish songs, the Brahms "Frustrated Serenade" and the flamenco song Miss Los Angeles sang for an encore, the element of personality was held back.

This certainly makes a difference to the audience and the performer. If the "grand tour" system is at fault, it is time to get to work on alternatives. A nine-week tour to include 25 concerts, for instance, might strike some artists as a two-mile run or some other physical feat. Therefore he would pick points along the way to put forth or conserve energy.

Some artists are of such nature as to thrive on tours. Lily Pons used to suffer from stage fright bordering on illness. Her best performances were perhaps "scared out of her."

Eleanor Steber whips up her best pre-concert emotions with a mood not far removed from a case of the schoolgirl giggles. Be that as it may, she brought a Monroe audience to its feet after her concert here last spring even though she had a near case of flu.

MANAGERS NOTE

For this reason, managers should take careful note of where the top artists do their best. In this writer's opinion, singers as Victoria de Los Angeles, would sing at their best if they could pause in one city for several opera engagements and go lightly on the far-flung tours. Others thrive "on the run." This is certainly not meant to rate the one any lower than the other. But the tour managers should take heed as to which "type" they are dealing with.

COMING UP

The La. Tech Concert Association offers as its next attraction the Ballet Russe di Monte Carlo on Wednesday evening of this week. And let us not forget the Selman Field Playhouse will be jumping madly throughout the coming fortnight with "The Pajama Game," which opened last night.

Talk Turns To Big Catastrophe

THE YOUNG ASSASSINS. By Juan Goytisolo. Translated from Spanish by John Rust. Knopf. $3.95.

In this first novel by an author still almost a boy himself, or 21 when he wrote, a band of boys, with some girls to abet them, works itself into a tragic misadventure in Madrid.

The time is the present. David Augustin, Raul, Uribe and some friends have developed what social scientists call anti - social patterns of thought and behavior, and what courts, moralists and press call juvenile delinquency. These are not Americans living in a world of comparative ease, however, where nonconformity is no more than a kind of game. It is not so simple in Madrid, a society suffering from fundamental strains; what stops at the stage of prank with us goes on with them to rebellion.

They talk themselves into catastrophe, it is their philosophizing and analyzing which fire the fatal shot. In particular the revolutionist Ana channels their unhappiness; but perhaps the unhappiest ones most docile before her are the fated David, his old friend Augustine, and that curious pair Uribe and Raul.

These are not immoral or criminal youths; they are moral but in a way we do not accept; good as they are, it's the good their world must destroy. They are the wretched misfits who by a heart-breaking paradox bring their dreadful fate down on their own heads all the more quickly for following where their consciences lead.

A King In Lion Cloth As Friend

HENDERSON THE RAIN KING. By Saul Bellow. Viking. $4.50.

An American millionaire in darkest Africa, with lions roaring all around, dusky nude women to wait on him, a king in loin cloth as friend and mentor — that's the situation in this new novel by the author of the prize winning "The Adventures of Augie March."

Henderson is 55. He has children, one past and one present wife, a few natural and a few store teeth. He also has chest expansion and biceps. A lot of zest steams inside his aging carcass. He has an appetite for life, or something, that keeps him always jumpy. If it isn't out of date, or out of line, he's the original man with ants in his pants.

"I want, I want," is the phrase that keeps dogging him, awake or asleep, in the city or jungle, and what he wants doesn't matter compared to the mere intense, ceaseless wanting. It's an obsessive habit, or rather phrase. It resembles an intelligence test; the paper bears the printed words, "I want," and the person tested fills in whatever comes to mind — to raise pigs, to be like Grenfell of Labrador, to play the violin, go to Africa, blow up a pond.

Anyway, off goes Henderson to Africa with friends whom he soon drops to venture on alone with a guide into the unknown. To help relieve a water shortage plaguing the Arnewi, he sets off a blast to kill frogs in a cistern and blows up the cistern itself, like pouring out the baby with the bath. To help the Wariri, he decides he "wants" to lift the huge image of goddess Mummah. Then before he knows it, the rain falls, he pals around with a lion, is promised a crown, settles for a lion cub, heads for home.

Perhaps Bellow really knows Africa, but all this novel proves, and all that matters, is that he has sojourned in much more phantasmagorical lands than the Dark Continent. After introducing Henderson, an exuberant, unbridled and often very comical force, he follows his superbly purposeless course. A man with a will but no sensible way, acting on the belief it's better to do something, even anything, than nothing, he behaves like a Don Quixote among Hottentots. Not up to "Augie March," perhaps too long, this has grand imaginative flights and is a fine tour de force. The real rain king, conjure boy and master of the black arts is Bellow himself.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

All Types New Books Added

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

New books of all types have been added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library during the past week. Let's first take a look at the fiction titles. "Henderson the Rain King" is the title of Saul Bellow's book. It is a book which will probably raise a great deal of controversy, for many of its tenets are hard to accept. It is the portrait of an American who lives many lives in one and who finally finds himself in darkest Africa. "The Scientists" by Eleazar Lipsky is a novel written about the men who more than any others are determining our destinies, about their women, their families and friends and the world in which they move. The book rises above ordinary story telling. It raises questions which those who turn its pages will not soon forget. It offers a reading experience which takes on the dimensions of life itself. "A break in the Weather" by Florence Jane Soman is a family story set in our own time and one with profound implications. It is a book which will appeal especially to women.

"Cricket Smith" is the title of a new novel written by Monte Linkletter. It is a story of adolescence and its problems and it's leading character is one you will not soon forget. "The Watch that Ends the Night" by Hugh McLennan is a contemporary tale of a strange triangle which harks back to the period of crisis in Montreal and of World War II. "The Hedge of Thorns" by Helen Ashton has its setting in Ireland during the trying years of the potato famine and is the story of an English girl and how she took life.

Arthemise Goertz is that author of a new book which she calls "A Dream of Fuji." It has its setting in Japan during the war years and is concerned with the foreign correspondents living there. Miss Goertz writes from personal experience which gives substance to the story.

Biographies always have an appeal to the reading public. "The Poacher from Stratford" is the title of a new biography of Shakespeare, written by Frank W. Wadsworth. "I Am Anastasia" by Anastasia, the Grand Duchess of Russia purports to be the true story of Anastasia, whose adventures received a great deal of publicity with the play of recent years. You may read and decide for yourself, whether this book is true or not. "Elizabeth the Great" is the title of another biography of England's Great Renaissance Queen. This one was written by Elizabeth Jenkins and is well worth reading. "Johnson and Boswell" by Hesketh Pearson is a very interesting evaluation of these two men who have added so much to our knowledge of early eighteenth century England. "Wave as You Pass" by Harry Lee Neal is an account of an interesting marriage and a musical career. "Say Darling" by Richard Bissell and Abe Burrows is the play version of the popular book.

In the field of practical books there are three titles: "Fun with Flowers" by Julia Clements adds to our knowledge of flower arrangement; "Effective Library Exhibits" by Kate Coplan, will be widely used by the library staff of all our branches; "The Rockhunter's field Manual" by D. K. Fritzen is a practical guide for anyone interested in this exciting hobby.

As the spring approaches each year a number of new religious books are released, many of them designed to meet the needs of Lenten readers. "The First Easter" is a beautiful collection of the sermons of Peter Marshall, edited by his wife. "We Believe in Prayer" by Lawrence M. Brings is compilation of statements by Americans and world leaders stating their belief in the value of prayer. "Warriors of God" by Walter Nigg is a study of the great religious orders and their founders. It will be of particular interest to members of the Catholic Church. "Publicity Goes to Church" is a handbook for everyone concerned with church communication and public relations. "Point of View" by Isreal Levinthal is an analysis of American Judaism.

In the field of Social Science there are several interesting books. "My Ten Years As a Counterspy" by Boris Morros will be popular with those who enjoyed "I Led Three Lives." "The Communist World and Ours" by Walter Lippman should be read by every thinking citizen who wants to know how to deal with the threat of world communism. C. Wright Mills has written a very thoughtful, but frightening book, which he calls "The Cause of World War Three." This is also for the reader concerned with present day survival. "Okinawa, the History of an Island People" by George H. Kerr, tells the story of a people about whom we knew very little. "An Anthropologist at Work" by Ruth Benedict and Margaret Mead tells us a great deal about the way in which anthropologists carry on their studies. It is a very splendid book for all of those engaged in this sort of work. Last of all there is "The Crossing of Antarctica" by Sir Vivian Fuchs and Sir Edmund Hillary. This is a story of courage and endurance and one that is unique in the annals of adventure.

COOPER, SCHELL

'The Hanging Tree' Now At Paramount

"The Hanging Tree," one of the important film events of 1959, spotlights the intriguing new romantic combination of Gary Cooper and Maria Schell in a drama-charged frontier background.

The Baroda production for Warner Bros. opens today at the Paramount Theatre.

Filmed in Technicolor amid the breathtaking mountain scenery of the Northwest, "The Hanging Tree" introduces Cooper and Europe's Maire Schell as a potent new box-office team.

As a gun - slinging medico of the gold - mining days, Cooper plays the kind of role that made him and has kept him an international film favorite. Miss Schell is rated not only Europe's greatest acress but also one of the world's most beautiful women. Together, their appeal is irresistible and they spell cinematic dynamite.

Making Miss Schell's presence in this film even more outstanding is the fact that she is appearing in a story laid in the early West, a complete departure for this highly talented actress.

An added dividend cast - wise is Karl Malden, one of the screen's most versatile actors and winner of an Academy Award. In fact, the three stars of "The Hanging Tree" are all award winners. Cooper has won two "Oscars" ("Sergeant York" and "High Noon."), while Miss Schell has won almost every conceivable award Europe has to offer in addition to being voted "Find of the Year" recently by the nation's critics. This literally is a prize cast.

Along with these three notable personalities, "The Hanging Tree" introduces a screen newcomer, Ben Piazza. In fact, Piazza is a newcomer to the acting profession, having done his first work in New York only a year ago. The handsome 24-year-old actor has been compared to James Dean because of his smoldering, quiet personality which hides an exciting talent.

Delmer Daves directed "The Hanging Tree" from a prize-winning novelette by Dorothy M. Johnson. Wendell Mayes and Halstead Welles wrote the screenplay. The Technicolor photography was handled by Ted McCord, and Max Steiner wrote the musical score. The producers are Martin Jurow and Richard Shepherd.

TODAY AT PARAMOUNT — Gary Cooper, Maria Schell and Karl Malden star in "The Hanging Tree," filmed in Technicolor and now showing at the Paramount Theatre.

THE SILENT ENEMY — Hand-to-hand underwater combat between British and Italian warriors is seen in "The Silent Enemy," Romulus production which Starts Thursday at the Jim Theatre. Released by Universal-International, the picture deals with the deeds of famed Frogman Crabb during World War II.

INTO THE UNKNOWN — Yul Brynner, as Jean Lafitte the pirate, sails into the unknown with Claire Bloom, George Mathews, Charles Boyer and Mickey Finn in the memorial production "The Buccaneer" which opens today at the Joy Drive In. Also starred in the Paramount production is Charlton Heston as General Jackson.

DRAMATIC ROLE — Elizabeth Taylor as Maggie is shown in a secene trying to win back the love of her husband, Paul Newman, in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," the MGM filmization of Tennessee Williams' Prize-winning play. Also in the cast are Burl Ives, Jack Carson and Judith Anderson. The film begins today at the Star Drive In Theatre.

'YOUNG AND WILD' is the explosive teenage story of kids looking for fast kicks. The co-feature is "The Solid Gold Cadillac" starring Judy Holliday, now at the Delta Theatre.

Cuba Revolution Has Humorous Stamp Design

Cuba's recent revolution has also had its repercussions in the philatelic field.

An interesting first day cover especially printed for the occasion bears a humorous design. Pictured on the left side of the envelope is a cartoon - type drawing of General Batista "getting the boot." A foot is seen kicking Batista in the seat of the pants. Beneath the drawing is an inscription which reads, in translation, "Jan. 1, 1959. Day of Liberation."

The new stamp is a 2 centavos gray and white adhesive with red border. It depicts a bearded rebel soldier of Fidel Castro's forces waving his arms in front of the Cuban flag.

As previously reported in this column, Australia is issuing a new 4 pence stamp to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the post office in that country. The new stamp, pictured here for the first time, will be released in April. The main design will feature Ausrtalia's first postmaster, Isaac Nichols, boarding a ship to pick up packages and mail. The inscription reads: "Birth of the Post Office 1809."

HOW TO SAY IT

NEW YORK (AP) — There's more to a trombone than the sound it makes, says Meredith Willson. There's the way you pronounce the word.

"I figure I stepped across from amateur to professional the first time I said it with the accent on the second syllable," says the composer of Broadway's hit "The Music Man."

"For some reason people who aren't musicians always accent it the other way."

TALLULAH DERAILED

NEW YORK (AP) — Tallulah Bankhead's plans to come to Broadway in "Crazy October" have been scrapped. The James Leo Herlihy comedy ran into critical headwinds on tour. The show was financed at $100,000.

Carr Is Named Head Of Theatres

Leonard H. Goldenson, president of the American Broadcasting - Paramount Theatres, Inc., yesterday announced the appointment of Kermit Carr as president of Paramount Gulf Theatres, Inc. New Orleans.

Paramount Gulf is a subsidiary of AB-PT and operates theatres in principal cities in an eight-state southern region with headquarters in New Orleans. The Paramount and Gulf Theatres in Monroe are operated by the Paramount Gulf corporation. Ted Hatfield is manager of the local theatres.

Carr succeeds Henry G. Plitt, who was recently elevated to head ABC Films, Inc.

He began his theatre career in 1929 and has served in various capacities in the industry. He managed several theatres in Des Moines, Ottumwa and Waterloo, Iowa, for the Tri-States Theatres Corporation.

During World War II, he was for three years in the field artillery.

Upon his return from active service, Carr rejoined the Tri-State circuit and in 1948 was promoted to district manager for 24 theatres. In 1952 he became film buyer and two years later was promoted to the position of assistant to A. H. Blank, president of Tri-States.

In December of 1957 Carr became executive assistant to the president of the Florida State Theatres, Inc., with headquarters in Jacksonville, Fla.

HOW TO SAY IT

NEW YORK (AP) — There's more to a trombone than the sound it makes, says Meredith Willson. There's the way you pronounce the word.

"I figure I stepped across from amateur to professional the first time I said it with the accent on the second syllable," says the composer of Broadway's hit "The Music Man."

"For some reason people who aren't musicians always accent it the other way."

TALLULAH DERAILED

NEW YORK (AP) — Tallulah Bankhead's plans to come to Broadway in "Crazy October" have been scrapped. The James Leo Herlihy comedy ran into critical headwinds on tour. The show was financed at $100,000.

Carr Is Named Head Of Theatres

Leonard H. Goldenson, president of the American Broadcasting - Paramount Theatres, Inc., yesterday announced the appointment of Kermit Carr as president of Paramount Gulf Theatres, Inc. New Orleans.

Paramount Gulf is a subsidiary of AB-PT and operates theatres in principal cities in an eight-state southern region with headquarters in New Orleans. The Paramount and Gulf Theatres in Monroe are operated by the Paramount Gulf corporation. Ted Hatfield is manager of the local theatres.

Carr succeeds Henry G. Plitt, who was recently elevated to head ABC Films, Inc.

He began his theatre career in 1929 and has served in various capacities in the industry. He managed several theatres in Des Moines, Ottumwa and Waterloo, Iowa, for the Tri-States Theatres Corporation.

During World War II, he was for three years in the field artillery.

Upon his return from active service, Carr rejoined the Tri-State circuit and in 1948 was promoted to district manager for 24 theatres. In 1952 he became film buyer and two years later was promoted to the position of assistant to A. H. Blank, president of Tri-States.

In December of 1957 Carr became executive assistant to the president of the Florida State Theatres, Inc., with headquarters in Jacksonville, Fla.

NOSIY NEIGHBOR

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Residents living near the Warner Bros. studio were kept awake recently by a coyote that howled long and loud. The critter had been imported from Oklahoma by Mervyn Leroy for a scene in "The FBI Story."

'YOUNG AND WILD' is the explosive teenage story of kids looking for fast kicks. The co-feature is "The Solid Gold Cadillac" starring Judy Holliday, now at the Delta Theatre.

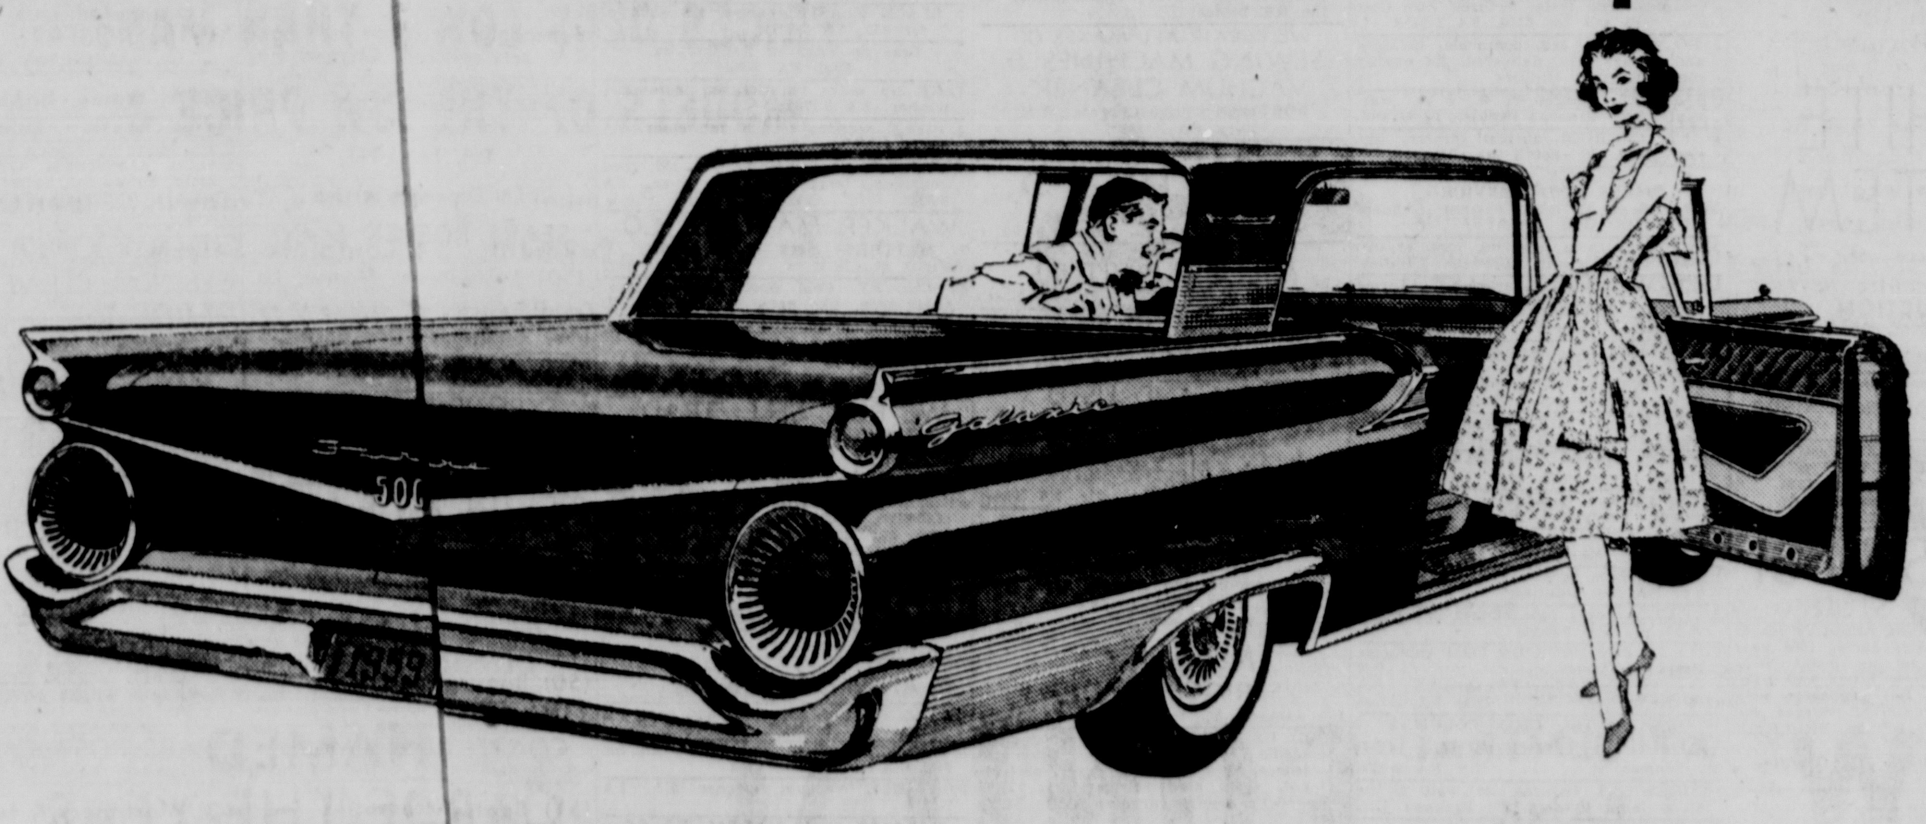
It's Easier To Own...The Car Most People Want



THE DOUBLE VALUE '59 FORD

BUILT FOR PEOPLE
. . . IT'S COMMON SENSE DESIGNED

You just have to sit in one of our Fords once to know why people who try Fords buy Fords! No car in Ford's field is so easy to enter. Ford does not have the foot-cramping deep wells you'll find in its top competition. Ford has full-depth seat cushions for all of its passengers. And even big six-footers have hip, hat and knee room galore.

BUILT FOR SAVING
. . . YOU NEVER HAD IT SO THRIFTY

Not only do Fords cost you up to $102 less than any other car in the big-selling three (with the equipment most people want). You keep on saving. Ford standard V-8 and Six engines use regular gas . . . saving up to $1.00 a tankful. Fords only require oil changes each 4000 miles. Come in for the full saving story!

It's Easier To Own...The Car Most People Want

THE DOUBLE VALUE '59 FORD

BUILT FOR PEOPLE
...IT'S COMMON SENSE DESIGNED

You just have to sit in one of our Fords to know why people who try Fords buy Fords! No car in Ford's field is so easy to enter. Ford does not have the foot-cramping deep wells you'll find in its top competition. Ford has full-depth seat cushions for all of its passengers. And even big six-footers have hip, hat and knee room galore.

BUILT FOR SAVING
...YOU NEVER HAD IT SO THRIFTY

Not only do Fords cost you up to $102 less than any other car in the big-selling three (with the equipment most people want). You keep on saving. Ford standard V-8 and Six engines use regular gas . . . saving up to $1.00 a tankful. Fords only require oil changes each 4000 miles. Come in for the full saving story!

MOON MULLINS by Ferd Johnson
IT'S REALLY POURING OUT THERE. WELL, I FEEL BONE DRY IN HERE, MOON.
SO DO I, BUT A FEW BOTTLES OF POP DOWN AT TH' POOLHALL WILL FIX THAT.
WHY DO YOU WANT TO GO TO THE POOLHALL WHEN YOU CAN HAVE MORE FUN HERE?
WELL, LOOKIE THERE-- I THINK SHE'S RIGHT, PLUSHIE!
MY WORD!
I'LL ASK WILLIE TO BRING IN SOME WOOD AND BUILD US A NICE CRACKLING BLAZE IN THE FIREPLACE WHILE I GET THINGS READY.
NO BUGGING OUT, WILLIE! IF YOU DON'T DO IT, I'LL HAVE TO!
STOP GRUMBLING, MAMIE-- IT'S NOT MY FAULT WE'RE OUT OF SUGAR.
WELL, HOW SHOULD I KNOW WE DIDN'T HAVE ANY LEMONS EITHER?
IF WE HAD SOME ICE CREAM, IT WOULD ENHANCE OUR LITTLE AFTERNOON PICK-ME-UP, MOON.
ICE CREAM? WELL, IF YOU THINK SO, I'M GAME. WHAT DO YOU WANT, VANILLA?
SHE'S REALLY MIXING UP A CONCOCTION-- WELL, I'LL TRY ANYTHING ONCE.
BRR-R-- I HOPE YOU'RE FIXING SOMETHING TO TAKE THIS CHILL OFF, LADY P.
STOMP STOMP
CHOO! IT'S SOME SORT OF A HOT TODDY, I TAKE IT.
WHATEVER GAVE YOU THAT SILLY IDEA? THIS IS GOOD WHOLESOME TEA!
OH, IT WILL-- IT'S NICE AND HOT!
WHAT HAPPENED TO THE STUFF IN THEM BOTTLES YOU BROUGHT OUT?
OH-- I POURED THAT DOWN THE SINK-- I THOUGHT IF I USED THE BOTTLES FOR CANDLEHOLDERS, LIKE THIS, WE'D HAVE A REAL COZY ATMOSPHERE.
OH, NO! SAY, IF YOU WASN'T A LADY, EMMY, I'D-- HECK! I THINK I WILL ANYWAY!
FOR PITY'S SAKE!

IT'S REALLY POURING OUT THERE. WELL, I FEEL BONE DRY IN HERE, MOON.
SO DO I, BUT A FEW BOTTLES OF POP DOWN AT TH' POOL HALL WILL FIX THAT.
WHY DO YOU WANT TO GO TO THE POOL-HALL WHEN YOU CAN HAVE MORE FUN HERE?
WELL, LOOKIE THERE-- I THINK SHE'S RIGHT, PLUSHIE!
MY WORD!
I'LL ASK WILLIE TO BRING IN SOME WOOD AND BUILD US A NICE CRACKLING BLAZE IN THE FIREPLACE WHILE I GET THINGS READY.
NO BUGGING OUT, WILLIE! IF YOU DON'T DO IT, I'LL HAVE TO!
STOP GRUMBLING, MAMIE-- IT'S NOT MY FAULT WE'RE OUT OF SUGAR.
WELL, HOW SHOULD I KNOW WE DIDN'T HAVE ANY LEMONS EITHER?
IF WE HAD SOME ICE CREAM, IT WOULD ENHANCE OUR LITTLE AFTERNOON PICK-ME-UP, MOON.
ICE CREAM? WELL, IF YOU THINK SO, I'M GAME. WHAT DO YOU WANT, VANILLA?
SHE'S REALLY MIXING UP A CONCOCTION-- WELL, I'LL TRY ANY-THING ONCE.
BRR-R-- I HOPE YOU'RE FIXING SOMETHING TO TAKE THIS CHILL OFF, LADY P.
OH, IT WILL-- IT'S NICE AND HOT!

READY OR NOT OUT THERE···
SUSIE! WHAT···WHAT'S HAPPENED?
DON'T JUST STAND THERE WITH YER BIG FACE HANGIN' OUT! DO Y'LIKE IT OR DON'TCHA?
LIKE IT?!! WHY, SUSIE, YOU'RE ALL OF A SUDDEN THE GIRL I REMEMBER, FROM BACK THERE!
THEY SAY MONEY CAN'T BUY HAPPINESS, BUT IT SURE CAN BUY A HEAP O' FANCY FIXIN'S!
THE RIG? CLOTHES? SURE! BEAUTIFUL! BUT YOUR SMILE, SUSIE! AND YOUR LAUGH AGAIN! IT'S NOT BITTER ANY MORE!
